LAW CLUB WILL FEATURE TRIAL

Wythe Law Club Will Hold Annual Moot Trial Tonight; Marshall, Shaffer, Bruner, and Brown Act as Attorneys.

C. M. HALL TO BE JUDGE

The Wythe Law Club will hold its moot trial tonight in the James City County Courthouse in Williamsburg. Charles Marshall and J. C. Shaffer, Jr., graduate students in the law school, will be the defense attorneys, and Ben Bruner and Merrill Brown, also graduate students, will serve as prosecutors. Channing M. Hall, prominent attorney of the town, will act as judge.

The case which is to be tried this year will parallel the famous Mooney case in California, the verdict of which has been severely criticized. The evidence will closely follow the original evidence which was presented in the Mooney case.

The part of witnesses will be taken by members of the School of Jurisprudence, and a jury will be selected from the college. Paul Broderick, a law student, will take the part of the defendant.

Among the witnesses will be Benjamin Burrow, Donald Gordon, Harriet Council, J. James McPherson, Dorothy Bowman, Charles Hagberg, Harry Spack, and Marianne Norris.

The Wythe Law Club is composed of outstanding students of the School of Jurisprudence, members of the law school faculty, and prominent members of the local bar. These moot trials are presented every year as an integral part of the law school work. Last year, the case of the nephew of George Wythe, who was accused of murdering the former William and Mary Law professor, was tried.

The trial will begin at 7:30. The public is invited to attend. It is hoped by the Law School that as much interest will be manifest in this trial as was shown in the one that they conducted last year.

The program will open with services in the old church at twelve o'clock noon. The College choir will furnish the music for this service. Right Rev. Arthur C. Thompson, Bishop of the Diocese of Southern Virginia of the Episcopal church, will preside at the service.

At 1:40 P. M., the Ninth Annual Conference of the Young People's Fellowship of the Province of Washington will meet at the Robert Hunt Memorial at Jamestown. The College Choir will furnish the music for that program.

At 3:00 P. PLAY GROUPS WIN CONTEST PLAQUES

Waverly, Maury, and Hampton High Schools Awarded Trophy Plaques in Fourth Annual Play Tournament.

The fourth annual Play Tournament of county and city high schools in Tidewater Virginia, which was held in the Matthew Whaley High School on Friday and Saturday, April 7 and 8, was won by Waverly High School, Hampton High School, and Maury High School of Norfolk. These contests are sponsored each year by the William and Mary Players.

Three William and Mary Players Trophy Plaques were awarded by the judges, Mr. T. J. Stubbs, Miss Jeanette Kelly, and Dr. Walter A. Montgomery. Dr. Montgomery, who is now at the University of Virginia, was formerly head of the Latin department here.

Last year's tournament was won by the Sussex County High School, the Matthew Whaley High School, and the Newport News High School.

There will be no issue of the Flat Hat next week due to the Easter Holiday Period. The next issue will appear on April 25.

Mortarboard and Omicron Delta Kappa Announce Tentative Date For Tapping

Mortarboard, senior women's honorary organization, will participate again this year in a joint tap service with Omicron Delta Kappa, senior men's honorary fraternity. The tentative date for the service has been set between April 23 and 29.

Mortarboard held a meeting at the Kappa Delta house last Thursday at which time they eliminated the majority of the names on their list of junior women, and selected a tentative list of prospective members. This list was read in a meeting of Mortarboard held Monday night, and the final group of women was decided upon. This selection was made with the approval of the faculty advisors of Mortarboard, who are Dr. Landrum, Dr. Young, Miss Hunt, and Miss Barksdale.

The local chapter of Mortarboard was formed from the old Alpha Club, a senior women's organization which was founded shortly after William and Mary started admitting women students in 1918. The Alpha Club affiliated with the national organization of Mortarboard in 1928 and since then has held annual spring services to tap outstanding junior women. Selections are made on the three-fold basis of scholarship, leadership, and service. Mortarboard is the oldest co-ed organization at William and Mary, and is the only senior women's national honorary society in the country.

Mortarboard and Omicron Delta Kappa held joint tap services for the first time last year, and it is expected that this policy will be continued because of the interest shown by the student body.

Alpha Kappa Psi established a chapter on the William and Mary campus in 1921, and serves to bring together students in the School of Economics and Business administration who have a high scholastic standing and have shown an interest in Economics and Business. Trips to nearby plants are taken each year, and a tour of the Liggett and Meyers plant in Richmond will be made in the near future.

At the next meeting of the fraternity new officers will be elected. Present officers include: Sumner Waters, president; Fred Eilers, vice-president; Traver Hulse, secretary; and G. Ruffin Winfree, treasurer.

SCRAPMEN TO MEET GENERALS APRIL 15 ON LOCAL FIELD

Washington and Lee Comes for Encounter After Defeat at the Hands of V. P. I. Gobblers; Indians Favored to Win.

GENERALS WEAK IN FIELD

Tribesmen to Use Same Aggregation which Saw Action Against Duke Here Last Week

On Saturday, April 15, Coach "Scrap" Chandler's trackmen encounter the Washington and Lee outfit. The Generals met with overwhelming defeat at the hands of the V. P. I. Gobblers, and the Indians also suffered defeat when the strong Duke University squad won by a 72 1-2 to 53 1-2 score. Both outfits, however, will have full strength for the coming event which is to take place at Cary Field on Saturday afternoon.

A summary of the recent General meet with V. P. I. shows that the Lexington boys are woefully weak in the field events. Some of their most outstanding performers are Finkelshtein, hurdler, Sawyers, dashman, Hazel and Dungey, middle distancemen.

The Tribe aggregation will be composed of practically the same men that faced the Duke Blue Devils.

Coach Chandler is very optimistic over the prospects of his team and he is confident that his boys will show up as well as they did in the V. M. I. meet.

The probable Indian tracksters that will compose the team that will face V. P. I.:

100-yard dash—Little, Hemingway.
220-yard dash—Little, Hemingway, Harrison.

440-yard dash—Cifelli, Talley.
880-yard run—Sparrow, Bishop, R. Upson.

1-mile run—Dudley, Torrence.
2-mile run—Roberts, Deitrich.
Shot Put—Meade, Quirk.

Discus—Johnson, Meade, Sorenson.
Javelin—Little, Meade, Casey, Bradley.

High Jump—Bacon, Reid.
Broad Jump—Perzekow, Little, Upson.

The informal initiation consisted of stunts by the initiates, with the membership acting as jury, each initiate was tried to prove that he was worthy of membership. The attorney for the defense was Les Litwin and the prosecuting attorney, Norman McLeod. Anne Chalkley, the president of the club, presided at the formal initiation which followed.

Those initiated were Helen Singer, Waddell Stuart, Kitty Bush, Elizabeth Coleman, Hardy Dudley, Ena Collier, Frances Meadows, Bunny Young, and Ethel Lee Cross.

HONOR GROUP HAS FAREWELL BANQUET

On Monday, April 3, six members of the Honor Council together with Catherine Cubberly, staged a farewell party to its outgoing members at Colony Inn, Hilton Village.

The favors, planned by Mary Butterfield and Ruth Kolb, were small paper mortarboards, each inscribed with the proper official title of the Honor Council members. During dinner, the usual fund of jokes and remarks filled the interval between courses, climaxed by short speeches made on topics drawn by lot. These topics related to some happening or phase of the year's events and were of humorous, not serious, context. At this time Virginia Romm welcomed the new members.

EXCAVATION IS STARTED FOR NEW ROW OF SHOPS

A new row of shops was begun at the intersection of Prince George and South Boundary streets, April 4, 1933 when excavation for the basement was begun. Plans of the building, as filed in the City Manager's office, call for a two-story brick building in keeping with the Colonial atmosphere of Williamsburg.

The ground floor will have four modern shops, two facing on Boundary street and the other two on Prince George. Around the rear sides of the building, there will be two covered driveways for the convenience of shoppers and deliverers. The basement will be suitable for business.

HO, HUM . . . another day, another dollar. But why let it put you in a state of vertical collapse, when the nearest campus eating place has the best pick-me-up awaiting your command?

It's Shredded Wheat, the food that's VITALLY DIFFERENT, that puts the spring in your step. Some folks call it "energy by the bowlful." And it is—for Shredded Wheat is whole wheat, the one cereal grain that's packed with proteins, carbohydrates, minerals and vitamins. All these vital, life-sustaining elements—nothing add-

Why is the Stem removed from the tobaccos used in Chesterfield?

That's a very simple question to answer. The stem in a tobacco leaf, like the stem in most other plants, is "woody". It hasn't any of the flavor or the aroma that you want when you smoke. And it doesn't burn right.

So after tobacco has been properly aged, one of the first things to do is to remove the stems.

But what has this to do with your enjoyment of Chesterfield cigarettes? Just this. It means that we start right when we make Chesterfield—the right kind of leaf with the stem removed, the right manufacture—everything that science knows that can make CHESTERFIELD a milder cigarette, a cigarette that tastes better.

That's why people say "They Satisfy."

Tobacco used to be stemmed by hand—Now this machine stems 14,300 leaves every hour.

Well, the old spring season of athletics, co-eds in the sunlight and a few sessions upon the tropical sands of reliable old Yorktown is upon us.

The Indian ball outfit may not win all their games this season but they can lay claim to the distinction of having the best pitching corps in Virginia, if indeed not in the South.

And for another Tricolor distinction, try and find another institution in the South, or even the East, which has a better group of javelin throwers than the Indians.

They tried to trap old Jack Dempsey, former ruler of the oversized ring maulers of the world, into offering a few words on Shakespeare before the assembled populace of the Faculty Club at Columbia University last week.

Following an endorsement of the adopt-a-family movement at the university, Jack was asked as to whether he would rather be a boxer or a college professor, to which subtle effort Dempsey replied—

Speaking in a boxing horizon, marvel a bit at this lad, Eddie Edson, a young St. Louis middleweight boxer. This lad likes the boxing game so well he trains on the road and in the gym all day long and at night he holds down a full time job.

TIDBITS YOU MIGHT HAVE MISSED: Big League ball clubs spend about $1000 for baseballs during the spring training season.

Depression stuff. Henry Perlick, a 23-year-old lightweight boxer of Kalamazoo, Michigan, was sentenced to jail for fourteen days on seven charges of violating city traffic ordinances.

Well, the sixteen clubs in the two major loops start a 154-game schedule tomorrow in eight cities, which mite make it an appropriate time to offer a few statistics on the paid men who amble in the various orchards throughout the country.

The oldest player is Jack Quinn of Brooklyn, 48 years old, who has been with 6 major league ball clubs and is one of the few spitballers left in the big show.

DRAMATIC TOURNAMENT

The Fourth Dramatic Tournament of the Tidewater High Schools that took place in the auditorium of the Matthew Whaley High School during the past week-end showed that despite the economy moves that have so crippled the extra-curricular activities of this nature in so many of the schools of the nation there are still many youthful devotees of the drama and coaches who get no remuneration, who are willing to spend time and effort in staging performances merely for love of the stage. The general high standard of the performances shows also that these players and coaches bring more than an enthusiasm to their work, for no performances could attain the standard that these groups set here on the local stage without competence in directing and acting.

This work of staging this annual tournament is probably one of the most valuable contributions that the William and Mary Players make to the life of the school and to the drama of this region. The benefits that accrue to the college in the way of advertising are only equalled by the benefits that the high school groups obtain from competition with those of similar interests.

THE AKRON WRECK

The recent tragic wreck of the giant of the skies, the "Akron" and the fall of the blimp, the J-3 while searching for remains of the larger airship have raised again the question of the value of airships in view of the record of death that attaches to them. The increasing record of disasters that these ships have made in the last decade has turned nearly all the great nations of the world from their use. France has abandoned them, Italy has no vessels of the type, Great Britain discarded them after the wreck of the R-101 three years ago, and now the prospect that the United States will abandon them is greatly increased by this most destructive of all disasters of this type.

The only nation in the world that appears to have any success in the construction of the dirigible is Germany, where they had their birth. The two longest lived ships of this class today, the "Los Angeles" and the "Graf Zeppelin," were both constructed in that nation, and both seem to be weathering the hazards of the airways with great success. In view of Germany's success and the rest of the world's failure with the dirigible, it would be just as well if that nation alone were allowed the privilege of continuing the advance of that vessel. If perhaps she can demonstrate to the world at some future date that they are really as safe as their proponents claim that they are, the rest of the nations will be able to commence their construction once again with some measure of faith in what they are building.

THE THIRTY HOUR BILL

Of very doubtful constitutionality and even more doubtful economic and political wisdom in view of its non-inclusion of a minimum wage provision, the Black bill that recently passed the Senate to prohibit from interstate commerce all goods manufactured by plants that do not adopt the thirty hour week or the six hour day is at least a courageous attempt to grapple with one phase of the depression, and indicates to what a great extent the methods of meeting the crisis that existed during the Hoover regime have been abandoned.

This bill flies completely in the face of the belief that seemed to prevail in Washington for so many years that the way to start the wheels of industry rolling again was to grant a great amount of easy money to our already debt-laden industries, and then expect them to function regardless of the demand for their products. This bill is clear evidence that the futility of this method has been recognized, and that the attempt to restore at least some semblance of activity to our industries predicated the prior restoration of the Nation's buying power. As long as there are thirteen million unemployed in the land that buying power will never be normal, and the provisions of the bill are designed to cope with that situation by limiting the length of the working week so that if a comparable amount of production is to be reached, there will be re-employment of some five or six million men.

Even though it shows a more realistic grasp of the situation than the former attitude possessed, the Black bill will have very tough sledding indeed. The decision of the Supreme Court in the Child Labor law case indicates that the chances of the bill receiving the judicial O. K. are very slim, though the court has been known to reverse its decisions to meet changed national circumstances and sentiment. The storm of protest that has come from the manufacturers of the Nation is very likely to make its passage through the House of Representatives a stormy one. President Roosevelt is known not to be very enthusiastic over the measure because it contains no provision that would preclude too drastic wage cuts that the manufacturers would probably inaugurate to keep their wage bill from mounting because of the new law. As long as the bill contains no minimum wage provision it is to be regarded as certain that it will not do what it is hoped that it will.

Despite the futility of the measure in its present form, there is sufficient grounds for rejoicing over it, for its passage by the Senate would indicate that that body has seen the folly of trying to restore prosperity by cramming capital down the throat of industry, and letting the results of that cramming trickle down to the masses. It has given expression to its belief that the restoration of buying power is the first prerequisite to normal conditions, and indeed to any true prosperity, for such a condition does not exist unless it has its base in the wealth of the masses.

ECONOMIC NATIONALISM SCRAPPED

The invitations of President Roosevelt to eleven nations of the world to meet him in Washington for discussion of economic matters prior to the coming World Conference marks so definitely an abandonment of the economic isolation and don't-give-a-damns attitude of the last twelve years that it is rather difficult to believe such invitations to such conferences have really been given. Especially is this conference to be welcomed because of the willingness of the Roosevelt administration to discuss war debts and tariffs, subjects that the Hoover administration had tabooed.

The work of these Washington meetings will probably be in the nature of preparation to the larger scale meeting that convenes later in London. There certainly should be no clash in the results of the two, and the successful completion of the labors of the first group of consultations should greatly advance the work of the larger meeting. Even if the World Conference should prove barren of results, there might come great good out of these preliminary Washington discussions.

The planned discussions, however, give some indication of the thought of the administration as to the necessity of achievement in the approaching World Conference. There certainly would not be these advance meetings if the success of the later discussions was not dear to the administration. That in itself is enough to give solid grounds for optimism in the field of international trade and commerce. Nothing would more aid the world recovery than the leadership of the United States, the richest nation in the world, in the march to a sane international commercial order.

"ALABAMA JUSTICE"

Perhaps no more flagrant appeal has ever been made to the bigotry and prejudice of a jury of an important case than was made by the prosecution in the closing hours of its presentation of its side last Friday of the Scottsboro case, which is now being heard at Decatur, Alabama. County Solicitor Wright in summing up, asked the Alabama jury "to show . . . that Alabama justice cannot be bought and sold with Jew money from New York," and made other appeals of a similar nature to the bigotry and sectionalism of the jurors.

If this is the type of pleading that is allowed in the Alabama courts when such a case as this, that is already creative of a tremendous amount of prejudice, is being heard, there is no reason for Mr. Wright to plead that "Alabama justice" be not bought and sold. No one in sound mind would care to have anything to do with a system of justice that is already so prostituted. In the face of the stinging rebuke that the Supreme Court of the United States administered to the Alabama courts for their original handling of the case, one would imagine that there would be more circumspection in the handling of the rehearing. It is true that Judge Horton, presiding over the case, warned the jurors to banish bigotry and prejudice from their minds, but after listening to such pleas as that of Mr. Wright, it is difficult to imagine that all of their conscientious efforts will ever be able to eradicate the impression of his words upon their minds. The damage was done, and all the judicial admonitions in the world will not be able to wipe out its ill effects.

If the verdict in the case is that the negroes are guilty, these words of the prosecution will rise for many days to come to dog the State of Alabama in its attempts to prove that the trial was fair and just, and the state will find that it has created another Sacco-Vanzetti case. Even if the verdict should be one of not guilty, these words will ever form a standing question mark to the reality of "Alabama justice."

THE SQUASHED CHAPEAU

We haven't received an answer from Joe Bonomo, and, confidentially, we suspect his reason is not continuing our pleasant little correspondence. We don't think he likes us . . .

However, Joe isn't the only fish in the sea, and when we feel the urge to indulge ourselves in a bit of mental abuse we still have Bernard McFadden. As Lord Salisbury, exchequer champion of the English treasury, was wont to say,

"You know, jolly well, Old Thing, that a pound in hand is worth two on the head."

We'll ask the reader's pardon for breaking into verse so suddenly, but the following stanza of our mild tirade against the anti-beer party of the State simply could not be contained any longer. When you read it, Gentle Reader, you will have little doubt as to why we wanted to get it out of our system.

SIC SEMPER TYRANNIS DEPARTMENT

There was a man in our State,
 And he was wondrous wise,
 He peddled alky on the sly
 And campaigned for the "Drys".
 It ate the 'namel off the teeth
 And often wrecked the eyes.

There was a man in our State,
 His sentiments were Dry.
 He drove a cadillac sedan,
 His hat was very high.
 He shot all competition, and
 Incidental passersby.

There was a man in our State,
 And he was wondrous wise.
 With righteous pillars of the Church
 He'd always sympathize.
 Now, what his yearly income is,
 We can't exactly tell—
 There was a man in our State,
 And he was smart as hell . . .

MON DIEU! WHAT NEXT? DEPARTMENT

A certain Russian scientist has just proved that he can control the sex of an animal by electricity. In various experiments he found that he could make the next litter all males or all females, according to the application of his electrical apparatus. (Aha! A Literary Man).

The animals used in experimentation were rabbits.

POETIC AFTERTHOUGHT

We are glad he uses rabbits—
 They have such peculiar habits.

YEAH! SO WHAT? DEPARTMENT

On a certain gravestone in a Massachusetts marble orchard stands the following Puritanic epitaph . . .

"Here I am where all must be.
 Prepare for Death and follow me."
 Underneath this quaint command some wag has written in crayon:
 "To follow you I'll not consent,
 Until I know which way you went."

Now shall we tell you about our operation? Our Uncle Oscar used to say, after the manner of Aesop: "Don't count your chickens before they're hatched." Experience has taught us that this is more truth than Poultry.

NIZE PEOPLE DEPARTMENT

One of the strangest murder cases of recent years will go on trial before the Grand Jury of Martin County, Kentucky, this week.

John H. Mills, leader of a strange religious cult among the mountaineers of Inez, Ky., will go on trial for the "sacrifice" slaying of his 73-year-old mother.

It seems that John and several other members of the cult were holding a session of weird religious rites with the purpose of bringing some spiritual aid to Johnny's brother, Leonard Mills, who has for sometime been prominent among the inmates of the local booby-hatch. In a fanatical frenzy, Mills called upon his aged mother to demonstrate "the death of sin." His idea of the proper gesture was to strangle her to death with a heavy chain, while other members of the cult looked on and chanted incoherent phrases.

Mills' attorney has indicated that he will enter a plea of insanity engendered by religious frenzy.
 Recent investigation shows that Brother Leonard is still as balmy as ever. Seems as if nothing would do him no good.

UNPUBLISHED LEGAL OPINIONS DEPARTMENT

From the paragraphs of a contemporary (we flatter ourself) Columnist, we glean the following information:

A certain Judge in a near-by city was heard to remark unofficially that nobody would drink unless it was illegal. The sort of liquor we have become accustomed to in the past thirteen years is not exactly nectar, and it takes a pretty confirmed consumer to drink it for its taste.

It would be fatal to legalize beer in Virginia, because if that beverage remains illegal, lots of people will drink it instead of corn whiskey, which even Congress knows is intoxicating . . .

This is undoubtedly a good idea, but there seems to be a moral issue at stake. If we are wet in sentiment, and a large part of our population drinks home-made alcohol that retails for about four dollars a gallon, why not at least be publicly honest and admit it. Especially, in view of the fact that most of the other States of this grand and glorious nation are rapidly descending from the aqua pura standard?

BLANK (Extremely) VERSE DEPARTMENT

HALF BAKED BALLAD

To be sung to the tune of: When the Roses Bloom Again.

I.
 They are roaming in the gloaming where the air is very arid,
 Just a student and his sweetheart, not so gay.
 For her heart is all frustration as she views the situation,
 For she knows the boy-friend isn't going to stay.

Do not ask me love to linger for you know not what you say,
 When a man's thirst calls his sweetheart, voice is vain,
 But farewell you needn't bid me, for unless I wreck a kidney,
 I'll be back when the Noses bloom again . . .

Chorus:
 When the Noses bloom again in Virginia,
 And the government has given us legal beer . . .
 When the public sentiment
 Reaches 3.2 percent,
 I'll be back when the noses bloom again.

II.
 Mid the clamor and the glamor of an old free-drinking State,
 The boy has mingled freely with the brew.
 While it's sad to be relating that his sweetheart still is waiting,
 And now the year is 1942 . . .
 For with undue shouts and hooting, the State is still disputing
 In a most complex and diplomatic manner,
 'Til the boy was sad he'd tarried, so he changed his socks and married,
 A Barmaid in Indianer.

Chorus:
 When the noses bloom again in Virginia,
 It wont do this little gal a bit of good,
 When the State grows rash and ventures,
 We'll have beer within the century,—
 And we'll never drink Kornwhisky anymore.
 Amen.

CITY CONSIDERING RESTORING STREET

Telephone and Electric Wires Will be Underground; Single Road Will Replace Two Lane Street.

On April 3, 1933, the Williamsburg Holding Corporation showed to the City Council plans for making changes on the Duke of Gloucester Street. The corporation would have telephone and electric wires placed underground in conduits along the center of the street with man-holes at intervals.

The center grass plot will be removed and in the place of the present two-way traffic lanes, there will be a single road. The present lanes are each seventeen feet wide, whereas the proposed new single road will be forty feet wide. Approximately twenty feet of the street will be paved with a smooth surface preparation having the appearance of an ancient dirt road.

There will be a cobblestone pavement which will be filled in with loam so that grass can grow in ten foot strips on each side of the smooth pavement. These stripes are expected to be used for parking.

The cost of the project is expected to be between $500,000 and $750,000.

1 I SAW A MAGICIAN MAKE A BALL ROLL UPHILL LAST NIGHT...WITHOUT TOUCHING IT. HE WAS SIMPLY WONDERFUL

2 WHAT SHE SAW - THE PERFORMER MAKES A BALL DEFY GRAVITY AND ROLL UP AN INCLINE AT HIS BIDDING. IT PAUSES... ROLLS DOWN... ROLLS UP AGAIN... OBEYING EVERY ORDER OF THE MAGICIAN.

3 DID HE DO IT BY RADIO REMOTE CONTROL OR THOUGHT WAVES? THAT'S THE BUNK GRACE HERE'S THE REAL LOW-DOWN...

4 THE MAGICIAN DIDN'T HAVE ANYTHING TO DO WITH MAKING THE BALL PERFORM. THERE WAS A CONTORTIONIST INSIDE IT. BY SHIFTING HIS WEIGHT IN THE BALL, HE MADE IT GO.

Tuesday the Indian golfers face the University of Richmond Spiders on the Newport News Course in a 36 hole match. With only one defeat in seven starts, the Spiders will no doubt be tough opposition for the Indians. Already this season the Richmond team has defeated Duke and Washington and Lee, both of whom have turned down the Tri-Color golfers.

Saturday on their home course the William and Mary golfers face Boston College in another 36 hole match. Little is known of the relative strength of the visiting team, but the Indians expect a tough match from the Boston golfers. Last year the Indians defeated the Boston team and hope to repeat their feat this year.
