VARIETY

I'll solve the puzzle

Jordan Spector and Virginia Livesay spin and solve during College Week on "Wheel of Fortune"/page 7

SPORTS

Love 'em and leave 'em

Women's tennis dominates W&M Invitational, taking five out of six flights in season opener/page 15

VARIETY

Why do birds sing?

Jay Putnam's senior directorial Fool for Love offers sad story to packed house/page 7

The Flat Hat

VOL. 85, NO. 6

Assembly submits parking proposal

The Student Assembly has sub- Assembly president. mitted a proposal to create twenty-two new student parking spaces on 16 new parking spaces and reallo-

McGrew approved the proposal

The final decision lies with the space, the Assembly proposes con-Traffic Advisory Committee, which See PARKING, Page 2

cording to Jonas Geissler, Student campus. Campus Police Chief Dick dent use.

with only minor changes.

"I recommended most of the proposal except those parts that changed spaces from one group to another," McGrew said. "I didn't want to get involved."

McGrew was enthusiastic about the proposal in the center row of the Morton parking lot, which would create ten new spaces. Currently drivers use the gap to access Jamestown Road.

The Assembly recommended closing the larger gap in the center row of the Morton parking lot, which would create ten new spaces.

Currently drivers use the gap to access Jamestown Road.

the proposal in general.

"Most of what the group proposed is doable and should be done," McGrew said.

The plan now faces approval by Facilities Management and College president Timothy Sullivan.

The Assembly also suggested reallocating one of two motorcycle spots in the Morton parking lot to day student parking. The proposal claims that "motorcycles have an abundance of parking options."

To compensate for removing the concept the Assembly prepagate to the Assembly prepagate to the Assembly prepagate to the Assembly also suggested reallocating one of two motorcycle spots in the Morton parking lot to day student parking. The proposal claims that "motorcycles have an abundance of parking options."

Bike rules enforced

Religion guidelines face debate

College Religious Accommodations 1. Students should inform professors of religious observances that conflict directly with classes or other academic activities.

Rep. Farrell quits Assembly

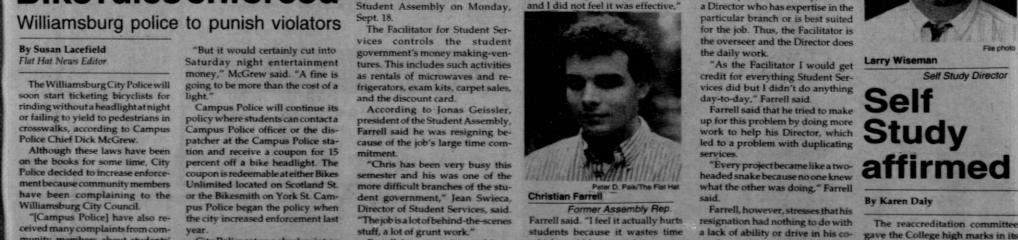

Junior criticizes new student government's effectiveness

Williamsburg police to punish violators Sept. 18.

The Facilitator for Student Services controls the student "But it would certainly cut into government's money making-ven-Saturday night entertainment tures. This includes such activities money," McGrew said. "A fine is as rentals of microwaves and received many complaints from community members about students' general lack of respect for bicycle laws," McGrew said.

Bicycle violations result in a civil fine which varies in amount. The law school when police of the law school of t April. Farrell said that he has sev- tor of each department.

Christian Farrell resigned both his position as Facilitator of Student Services and his seat on the Student Assembly on Monday, eral problems with the new government government, including duplication of services and excessive red tape.

"I mainly resigned because I did not like the system of government and I did not feel it was effective,"

In the new government is responsible for overseeing a department. The Facilitator, who is elected by the student body, chooses and I did not feel it was effective," particular branch or is best suited for the job. Thus, the Facilitator is the overseer and the Director does the daily work.

"As the Facilitator I would get Larry Wiseman credit for everything Student Ser-students because it wastes time which could be spent doing more productive things."

resignation had nothing to do with a lack of ability or drive in his co-gave the College high marks in its verbal report Wednesday, according to Self-Study Director Larry tion of Colleges and Schools Reaccreditation process, the com-mittee visited the campus from Sun-approximately three times the per-centage of women in the army, ac-cording to Leonard. The team, composed of faculty members from various southern universities, met with President In spite of the high figures, Leonard said that the number of Cell and Wiseman on Wednesday women in ROTC at the College has morning to informally review its not increased significantly in re- results.

"We passed with flying colors,"
"At William and Mary, we've Wiseman, who has spent two years

ROTC boasts high number of women fine total is decided in court.

INSIDE

Sports Weather

mercury. Find your flannel as the sun takes a weekend hiatus, rain delivers a cold greeting, and temperatures fall into the 60s like a clumsy little kid on roller skates hits the pavement. Hard.

Quote

By Mary Beth Budnyk Flat Hat Asst. News Editor Twenty-five years ago, freshman Molly Nicholson would not have had the opportunity to wear an ROTC [Reserve Officers Training Corps] uniform.

The College's ROTC program began in 1947, but women have only been allowed to participate

emale ROTC Participation V&M ROTC

U.S. Army

and the second section is a second second section of the second second second

leyond the Burg

Florida up in arms over mangroves

Miami—Florida residents are currently debating the fate of the state's mangrove tree population. Since Republican Representative Jack Latvala's Mangrove Trimming and Preservation Act passed a few monthsago, controversy has surrounded the bill. Yet, this week, tensions between supporters of private property rights and environmentalists intensified. Local residents responded to the legislation, which provides greater trimming freedoms, by excessively cutting mangrove trees to gain a view of the beach.

The destruction of mangrove trees disrupts the coast's ecological balance. The mangrove plays a crucial role in the environmental atmosphere and the economy by supporting eagles, osprey, endangered wading birds and the commercial and recreational fish industries. Although the actual damage is still disputed, Latvala admits that there were flaws in the bill and says he plans to revise the measure.

d says he plans to revise the meas

Children maim, kill horse

Silsbee, Texas—Eleven children aged 8-14 brutally and inexplicably maimed and killed one of their neighbor's horses. The young suspects broke the animal's leg, jammed sticks up its nostrils and chased it until it collapsed. No one comprehends the sense-ess cruelty, and the small town is devastated. When arrested, the children gloated over their act. The eight and 9-year-olds were released because of their youth, but the remaining suspects face probation or up to ut the remaining suspects face probation or up to a

Poll: 50% believe British government outdated

Nuclear labs to remain open

Washington—President Clinton decided Monday that all three federal nuclear research labs should remain in operation. Though independent studies suggested that the institutions close, the Clinton administration believes that the research conducted in the labs will decrease the likelihood of testing nuclear warheads. The Energy Department argues that simulations in lab will replace tive explosions.

Although the budget for the projects will be reduced by $1.6 billion over five years, this decision saves many jobs in California and New Mexico.

-Compiled by Elyce C. Morri

Study

evaluated those findings by researching and interviewing on cam-

According to Wiseman, the committee was so impressed with these interviews that they "emphasized the loyalty of the faculty, staff and students at both the graduate and undergraduate levels

Although the reaccreditation team only spent three days here, the College has been preparing for its visit for two years. To begin the process, the College formed a Self-Study team to perform an initial sisting of faculty members, administrators and at least two undergraduate students composed the team which published its results in a 200 page report released this sum-

The college's self-study committee highlighted areas in the report, which included over a hundred recommendations. The committee suggested formally tracking its recom ties committee to replace the University Policy Advisory Committee, creating a "Blue Ribbon Panel" of Faculty to assess faculty assembly effectiveness, beginning a new College tradition of "town meetings" and a University Club for informal College community gathering and designating a universitywide information coordinator.

"The Self-Study team hoped to influence the future of William and Mary, not just look at what the College has been doing in the past,"

Official reaccreditation of the College will occur in December at a convention, assuming the College follows through on all six of the

"We had no doubt that the College would be reaccredited," Wiseman said. "What the excellent report means is that we're doing a

Copies of the self-study are available at Swem's reserve desk, and the reaccreditation report will be available when it arrives.

Saha wins national honor

Biology professor receives Presidential Faculty Fellow award

By Jonathan Hunley Flat Hat Asst. News Editor

Following U.S. News & World Report's recent ranking of the College's faculty as third best in the nation, biology professor Margaret Saha has garnered acclaim from the nation's president.

Saha has received one of 30 1995 Presidential Faculty Fellow awards.

These annual accolades showcase "young faculty members who demonstrate excellence and promise both in scientific or engineering research and in teaching at some of America's universities and colleges," according to the White

Saha's award includes a $100,000 grant from the National Science Foundation for each of five years.

"It's liberating. It's wonderful," Saha said. "It allows me not to have to think about writing a grant."

Saha has spent vacations applying for grants for her work in molecular biology. Her research involves studying the patterning of the nervous system during devel-opment, and examination of a gene that deals with the formation of blood vessels.

"This grant is going to look at that particular gene," Saha said.

Concentrating on this gene could, in the future, contribute to the creation of a therapy for tumors and certain kinds of cancers, according to Saha. This treatment would offer to make it more effective.

Farrell

Continued from Page 1

flawed system."

Farrell suggested that the new government should be reevaluated

"I think we need to look at another commission on another form of student government," Farrell said. "Its a shame, we could have worked wonders with last year's

Many members of the student overnment, however do not share

the belief that the Assembly is fail-

an alternative to chemotherapy be-cause it would focus on specific cells rather than on all dividing cells.

Saha has worked with this particular strain of research in all of her three years at the College and has

Margaret Saha Biology Professor

previously received grants. The state government awarded her a Jeffress grant of $17,000 in 1993, and the National Science Foundation gave her a grant of $260,000 in 1994. The National Institutes of Health also granted her $105,000 in The Presidential Faculty Fellow award, however, is in a class apart from these grants.

"This is certainly the biggest one so far," Saha said.

These grants benefit the College by providing overhead in addition to funding research.

our projects so there should not be any gap," Sweica said. "I'm still carrying on my duties and I look forward to working with the new

Saha said Provost Gillian Cell, former Dean of Faculty of Arts and Sciences David Lutzer and Biology Department Chairman Eric Bradley all helped her in her application for the grant.

This aid was especially important since Saha juggles raising five children along with teaching and conducting research. She said she only sleeps about five hours a night and survives on "serious caffeine." Bradley even gave her a sign to hang on her office wall that describes her busy lifestyle.

"Sleep is for the weak," it says. Some of Saha's students praised her as well.

Krista Stimson, a senior biology major, said Saha is "very person-able" and has even had office hours after midnight to accomodate stu-

"She's by far the best professor I've had," Stimson said. Rahsaan Burroughs, also a senior biology major, agreed.

"Dr. Saha was honestly one of the best professors I've had at the College," he said. "Even with the enormous amount of lab work that she does she still makes it her business to get to know as many of her students as possible on a personal level.
"She's an incredible asset to the College community."

Flat Hat Sports Editor Brett Tobin contributed to this story.

Student Assembly President Parking

Continued from Page 1

verting "an odd shaped half space" near Zable Stadium to motorcycle

The proposal recommended removing the empty newspaper ma-chine and relocating the kiosk in Common Glory parking lot, which would create two new spaces. The Assembly's plan also calls for instituting a one-way traffic pattern on the road leading from the Common Glory ticket office to the art shelter. A one-way pattern would allow emergency vehicles to access the area along with creating four parallel parking spaces for day and resident students The proposal claims that a series of underutilized faculty-staff spaces along Campus Drive should be converted to five student spaces.

Finally, the Assembly recommended placing gravel and curb blockers on the grassy area beside the access road on the side of Randolph Complex that faces Swem. The action would create eight to ten student spaces.

"The new government has been chugging right along, dealing with CELLAR DOOR

Grant Lee Buffalo RICHMOND COLISEUM

TUESDAY OCTOBER 10 • 7:30 PM

FLAT HAT NEWS. ANYTHING TOO IMPORTANT FOR VARIETY

MAMA MIA'S DELI

253-2225 DELIVERY SPECIAL 253-2225

3 DELI SUBS FOR $10

THURSDAY NIGHT 9PM - 12PM LADIES' NIGHT

EVERYTHING HALF PRICE FOR LADIES

William & Mary

VOLUNTEERS

NEW OPPORTUNITIES

Salvation Army - Assist with interviewing and taking applications from needy families who wish to participate in Thanksgiving and Christmas programs. Great for people who want experience with intake for social service related work. Sept 25, 26, and 27 from 9-12am. Oct 9-10 from 1-4pm.

Adult Skills - Work two hrs/wk with adults who need help improving reading and math skills, earning their GED, or learning to speak English. Program is located in basement of Bryan Hall.

William sburg Prevention Project - Tutoring M, Tu, &/or Th 3:30-5pm for at-risk high school students involved in the program. Location will be on campus.

WCWM-FM - Participate in the training program for W&M's radio station. After ten hours of work, you can learn how to broadcast and get a show of your own playing college rock, classical, jazz, hip-hop, Christian or World Beat.

Dominion Village - Volunteers needed to work with seniors in an assisted living facility.

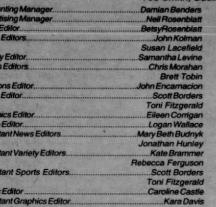

Community Youth Initiative - Participate in the early development of a multi-faceted program working with "at-risk" youth in the Williamsburg area. Planning meeting on October 5th at 6:45pm in the Campus Center ballroom.

Williamsburg Campus Child Care - Assist teacher, interact with young children, play games, read stories, and have fun. Choose your own hours between 7am and 6pm, M-F. FOR MORE INFORMATION CONTACT: The Office of Student Volunteer Se 221-3263

The Flat Hat

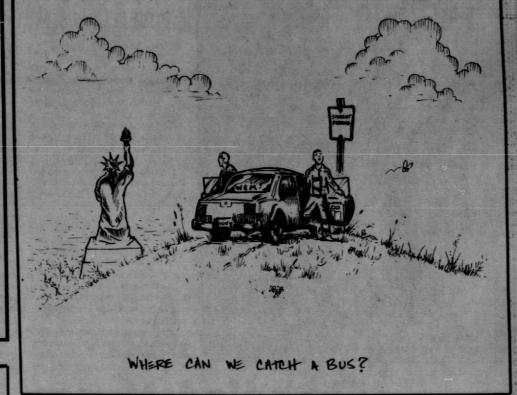

'Stabilitas et Fides'

Ted Smith, Bus

y, Editor	36
lanaging Editor
ness Manager
Assistant Photo Editor	Brandon Okes
Advertising Production Manager	Arney Sadler
Assistant Business Managers	Gary Plunkett
	Adam Schreiber Circulation Manager
	Brennan Bolt
	John Newman
Calendar Editors	Abe Delnore
网络	Mark Leson
Head TypesetterOffice Manager	Wendy Bunting
Advertising Representatives
	Kristina Kreamer
Editorial Cartoonist	Aaron Quidort

	Brennan Bolt John Newman
Calendar Editors
	Mark Leson
Head Typesetter	Wendy Bunting
Office Manager	Marianne Hamei
Advertising Representatives	Jennifer Butsch
	Kristina Kreamer
	Aaron Quidon
Production Assistants
Lisa Arends, Greg Barber, Call	an Bentley, J.D. Berkley, Lauren
Butcher, Sara Cole, Mike Coor	, Anthony Critelli, Jennie Daley,
Scott Dearle Caroline Dieser	el, Becky Eaton, Karen Galley,
	Molly Lohman, Adrian Merry
Brian Hatleburg, Katy Hicks,

A policy that works

ew to the Registration Bulletin this year are the new guidelines for "Religious Ac commodations at the College of William Mary," which the Faculty Assembly passed over ammer. Based primarily on a proposal by the aith Council [IFC], the Faculty Assembly's verontains few substantive changes from the IPC's osal. First, the guidelines as passed say that ous observances are not allowed if they are not cordance with state and federal regulations and stent with the safety regulations of the College."

change seems to us to be legitimate. elines was changed from "a student absent. . to a religious holiday will. . .be given an opunity to reschedule without penalty" to "a stu-. should be allowed, whenever possible, to blete without penalty the work missed because ch absences." The phrase "Each student has to to be excused from class meetings due to reliobservances and to be allowed to complete out penalty the work missed because of such nees" was eliminated completely in the final

ges, while slight, take the responsibility off the protects students' rights

In almost all cases, professors are more than happy to reschedule to avoid conflicts, whether or not there is an official religious policy. Dean of Undergraduate Studies Heather Macdonald is correct to say that this new policy is a step in the right direction.

What we find disturbing is that it was necessary to change the language of the proposal in the first place.

We find nothing wrong with the idea that students are guaranteed reasonable accommodations for the practice of their religious beliefs.

Faculty members may be concerned that guidelines which are too strong will force them to change lesson plans or exams for any student who asks for a sched-ule change due to a religious holiday. The guidelines explicitly state that students must inform their professors of conflicts during add/drop period, a rule that we feel is fair to both the student and professor. Indeed, professors should not be held at the mercy of a student who uses religion as an excuse to miss a class. Disagree ments between students and professors about the le-gitimacy of a conflict would be brought before the Dean of Students, who would have the authority to mediate.

of Students, who would have the authority to mediate. William and Mary is one of the most religiously active public universities in the country, and the implementation of a coherent religious policy is important been passed by the Faculty Assembly. Profesare suspicious of intrusions into the classroom force them to modify their teaching. The new guidelines are suspicious of intrusions into the classroom force them to modify their teaching. The new guidelines will contain the type of language that next the death of the most religiously active public universities in the country, and the implementation of a coherent religious policy is important because it affects many students. The current guidelines are suspicious of intrusions into the classroom of the most religiously active public universities in the country, and the implementation of a coherent religious policy is important because it affects many students. The current guidelines are suspicious of intrusions into the classroom of the most religiously active public universities in the country, and the implementation of a coherent religious policy is important because it affects many students. The current guidelines are suspicious of intrusions into the classroom of the most religious policy is important because it affects many students. The current guidelines are suspicious of intrusions into the classroom of the most religious policy is important because it affects many students. The current guidelines are suspicious of intrusions into the classroom of the country, and the implementation of a coherent religious policy is important because it affects many students. The current guidelines are suspicious of intrusions into the classroom of the country, and the implementation of a coherent religious policy is important because it affects many students.

Smoker posters offend

Fraternity signs depict women as sex objects

While walking through the Campus Center one recent evening, I stopped to read announcements posted outside of the dining area. I was appalled to see a cluster of flyers, some of which were denigrating to women, advertising upcoming smokers.

One pictured a woman with a milk" moustache with a caption reading "[fraternity name], more than a mouthful." Others had similarly offensive sexual connotations. Some may consider these flyers as simply an annual symptom of the fraternity rush season. I believe that they mean much more.

The nation's highest courts currently struggle with hate speech and other forms of expression that stretch the boundaries of what would qualify as worthy of protection under the First Amendment. The challenge in upholding a Constitution which serves to protect all and not a select few is that we must often protect the rights of even those as human beings to cooperate in whose beliefs and practices are re-fostering a non-hostile environ-

This democratic challenge, however, extends both to the protectors women. and the protected. With freedom comes responsibility. We owe a moral responsibility to each other

ment. I would venture to say that flyers that make sexual hints about "other people's mothers" help to create an environment that is hostile to the emotional well-being of American technological advancement has marked our country as the intellectual and creative worth of the individual. Advancements in human relations during our historical evolution have enabled us to realize in the present the dreams our forefathers conceived of as enour forefathers conceived of as encompassing only a select few of a young nation's inhabitants. We have certainly reached a point where we need to give more than mere passing consideration to publicly sanctioned devaluations of chool success depends on funding is a busy time for you. But you are choosing classes aking the decisions that elp you build a good life for elf, the Congressional ven in your scholarships. he cuts will jeopardize the you and your generation orking toward. int you to know that I e these cuts. I will do thing in my power to fight and to see to it that the of higher education ns real for all Americans. I o this not only by defending ly in college, but by opening oors further to make sure ven greater numbers of ving Americans have the e to stand where you stand rs from both parties are al budget. From the day I office, I've been committed s goal-to getting rid of the ational debt in the 12 years e I came to Washington. So e have made great progress. ree years, we have cut the t nearly in half, from $290 n to $160 billion. w we are ready to eliminate eficit entirely. On this, the ressional majority and I see tipus how we get rid of the it is another matter. The rity in Congress wants to be the budget in seven years, to it while giving an unnecity large tax cut. But in order these things, the Congressi majority would make mous cuts in education.

The budget plan delace the congression of the cuts in education.

Congress' plan to eliminate the deficit, but that's a small price to pay to keep your scholarships, your student loans, and national service safe and well. It would ty is working to make also preserve our ability to cuts in education—in your protect the environment and the won't do us much good in the long term if your generation does not have the education it needs to meet the challenges of the next century.

My balanced budget plan builds on the national consensus

Balancing the budget is about more than numbers. It's about our has always been the currency of your age, it was assumed—based on our long history—that each generation would have a better life than the preceding one. More than anything else, a good education is the way we pass this vision on to those who come after

The facts speak for themselves. Earnings for those with no post-secondary education have fallen substantially in the last 15 years. The only people for whom earnings have increased steadily are people exactly like you— those Americans with more those Americans with more education. Every year of higher education increases your earnings by 6 to 12 percent. Those years also mean a stronger overall economy and richer lives for those who have them.

Balancing the budget will be good for our economy and your future if it's done right. But simply balancing the budget education. It elim plan cuts wasteful spending by more than $1 trillion, but it also increases investments in educa-tion by $40 billion over the next

My plan will:

Increase funding for Peli
Grants by $3.4 billion. Almost one million more students would benefit from the scholarships. And we would raise the top award to $3,128 by the year 2002. ■ Expand Americorps to let even more young Americans serve their communities and go to Protect our direct-lending program, which makes student loans more affordable, with more repayment options, and saves taxpayers, parents, and students billions of dollars.

I just returned from Pearl Harbor, where I took part in ceremonies marking the 50th anniversary of the end of the Second World War. In the late 1940s, when the veterans we honored left their loved ones to go off and serve their country, they were the age most of you are

When they came home, the country recognized their service and their potential, and it responded with the G.I. Bill, which guaranteed a college education to every returning veteran. Those who served weren't given a handout, and they didn't want one. They were given the oppor-tunity they needed to take responsibility for their lives.

Your generation has its own battles to wage. You face the choice of doing something right and difficult—or something easy

In taking on the responsibility of educating yourselves, you have chosen the right and difficult path. You did the work you had to do to get into college. You may be weaking now to pay your way. be working now to pay your way And your family may have worked long hours and made great sacrifices to help you get where you are today. You deserve the nation's support. And your future success will likely repay our common investment. I do not accept the arguments of those who condemn irresponsibility in young Americans and then seek to deny the nation's helping hand to the millions of you who are doing the right things.

I hope you'll support my efforts to protect education and balance the budget. The fight for education is the fight for your future. In my life—and in the lives of countless Americans—education has meant the difference between the impossible and the possible. It should be true in your lives, too. With your help, we'll keep it that way.

Bill Clinton is the President of the Team cautions fans

to build a program which is nationally competitive.

However, as is true with all of our intercollegiate programs, skill level is not always the deciding factor in a competition. In those tight situations where skills are evenly matched, it is the noise of the crowd and the feeling of support from our peers and fans which can make the difference between a win or a loss.

Although we are excited by the support, we are concerned that our

The members of the men's inter-collegiate soccer program would like to thank our fellow students ingly forced to deal with abusive or vulgar language from selected. W&M fans. This is an image that and fans for their growing support of our team. We have worked hard to build a program which is nationally competitive or competition.

Please help us to alleviate this situation by not supporting this type of behavior from any W&M fan. Thank you for your support! Please come, enjoy, and cheer for Tribe

> W&M Men's Soccer Team Captain Billy Owens Vice-Captain

Search committee seeks College input

The Search Committee for the Director of Intercollegiate Athletics invites members of the College Community to a general discussion of the qualifications required in a new athletic director.

The discussion will take place on Wednesday, October 18, 1995 in the University Center Chesapeake

The following is the schedule for

2:00-3:30 pm — Student Body 3:30-5:00 pm — Faculty and Staff

We welcome your comments and

Search Committee for the mond Road.

A student was referred to the administration for underage consumption of alcohol and appearing drunk in public at the fraternity complex.

A student was referred to the administration for underaged consumption of alcohol and appearing drunk in public at Dupont.

Monday, Sept. 25—A vehicle/bike accident was reported at Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall.

Obscene and threatening phone alls were reported at Munford.

Suspicious dorm fires remain unsolved

Campus Police "very confident" that incidents in Dupont, Madison are unrelated

By Greg Barber Flat Hat Staff Writer

Campus Police continue to investigate two recent arson cases and are confident that the events are not

The two major cases involve a bulletin board fire at Dupont and a trash fire at Madison.

"Nobody has been accused [of the arsons]," Campus Police Chief Dick McGrew said. "We are still investigating cases and active

The object set on fire at Dupont was a folder full of empty work order slips. [It was] "right across from the R.A.'s room and directly under a smoke detector."

The fire, which occurred at 3:30 in the morning, set off the nearby smoke detector, and the building was evacuated.

"There was a good deal of smoke in the hallway," said Dupont Resi-dent Assisstant Dave Sobel said.

"We didn't get back inside until about 4:30."

The Williamsburg fire depart-ment responded immediately, ac-companied by an arson investigator who questioned residents for clues about who may have set the

"The residents had seen some-one running from the hall after the fire was set," Sobel said, "but obviously everyone in the building is a suspect since we are the ones who

Sobel does not believe that any malicious intent was tied to the ar-

"This was just stupid," Sobel said. The fire at Madison involved a blaze in a cardboard box full of trash. Police put out the fire before any major damage was done. Cam-pus Police are working with fire department investigators, and are pursuing active leads in this case as "We have interviewed an awful lot of students, and, in most cases, in a residence hall, someone knows who did it," McGrew said. McGrew points to the last major student arson at the College, as what could happen to any aspiring ar-sonists. According to McGrew, a fire was set in the duty office in Yates in the winter of 1993. Police eventually caught the students involved with student assistance. The nists received a year prison. While the fires at Dupont and Madison may seem minor, McGrew does not take them lightly.

"Any fire has the potential to grow and be a killer or create a lot of damage," he said.

The biggest danger from fires does not come from the fire itself, McGrew said, but from the possibly toxic fumes of burning carpets, trash, or simple smoke inhalation. "The fire might be small, but if it sets the carpet on fire, fumes from the carpet could suffocate some-one," McGrew said. "More people die from smoke inhalation than from fire."

Because of the potential dangers imposed by the fires, the College has set up safety programs to try to keep further fires from occuring.

"Fire education and safety is a big thing now," Sobel said.

McGrew does not believe that arson is more of a problem at the College than at any other college of on this size.

"Ihope that [arsons] will not conschools will experience these types is of fires; but occasionally I read that one gets out of control."

The police, McGrew said, are us "very confident" that each arson in was an isolated incident, but they en hope that student help will lead exp them to the arsonists.

The biggest motivation for the police is the danger involved in arson. "Hopefully," McGrew said, 41 "no [prank arsonist] wants anyone to get hurt, but sometimes people

Correction: Last week's article on sorority rush incorrectly stated the number of women who preffed only one sorority and did not receive a bid. The correct number of women who failed to receive a bid from their single preference is 17.

Flat Hat News

To Die For

THE MOST EXHILARATING AMERICAN MOVIE SINCE 'PULP FICTION'!"

"NICOLE KIDMAN GIVES THE BEST PERFORMANCE OF THE YEAR. She's this year's dead-on lock for an Oscar

"NICOLE KIDMAN DELIVERS A KILLER PERFORMANCE. Van Sant deftly blends film, and headlines.

THE BLACKEST, MOST WICKED COMEDY NICOLE KIDMAN IS AS GOOD AS GOOD AS IT GETS.

"NICOLE KIDMAN IN THE BEST PERFORMANCE

 $\star\star\star\star$ OUTSTANDING CINEMATIC ENTERTAINMENT. DON'T MISS IT.

NICOLE KIDMAN IS DEVIOUSLY DELICIOUS.

OUTRAGEOUSLY ENTERTAINING AND PROVOCATIVE FUNNY, SHOCKING AND WICKEDLY PACED. NICOLE KIDMAN DELIVER A DELICIOUSLY PERFORMANCE.

NICOLE KIDMAN

DOMENICO'S NEW YORK

Cutting Edge OPEN 7 DAYS sun til 3pmemon til 6pmethurs til 8pm

Design Cuts Relaxers Men Women Custom Color Permanent Waves Weaves & Tracks "Ask About Our Student Discounts for William & Mary Students" TECHNICAL ADVISOR IN THE REPAIR OF DAMAGED HAIR

455 Merrimac Trail (Next to Farm Fresh)

Colonial Sports Cards 173 Second Street

Baseball—Football—Hockey Basketball—Racing—Non-sports Supplies

253-1309

OPEN DAILY

Our Top Sellers are ON SALE

$1298 CD

$798 / 898 Cassette

BOTH LOCATIONS

2. G. Love & Special

3. Rusted Root 4. Lenny Kravitz

5. Red Hot Chili Peppers

8. Dangerous Minds-ST

6. Alanis Morisette 7. Silverchair

9.Dave Matthews (Under the Table) 10. Bush HOT Prince

HOT Sonic Youth HOT Natalie Merchant HOT Hootie & the

HOT Morissey HOT Blues Traveler

Get your $200 OFF Coupon

for CD's and Cassettes (limit 10) at Band Box Video-U.C. when you sign up or renew your video membership.

BOX

1930

◆The William & Mary Junior

College opened in Norfolk, VA.

The new facility, which began its first year with an enrollment of 150 students, was created "with the hope of enabling students in,

or near, Norfolk to attend college who would have been unable to do so under former circum-

A Flat Hat editorial said that too many students complained about the College and its problems. Although the writer recognized problems with the food,

the grounds, and the laundry services, he reminded students that "if we do not like the prevailing conditions, we are not obliged to remain here." The editor also told and before long we will all look upon something new, yet very old and beloved."

ollege hosts conference

re than one hundred student. y, and community leaders red at the College for the Sixth al Statewide Conference on nunity Service and Higher ation today.

onsored by the Virginia Camoutreach Opportunity League COOL], the conference will on campus involvement in mmunity and will feature two ote speakers, Nikki Giovanni Maxine Waller, in addition veral workshops and comevanni, a renowned poet and or, gives her presentation to-at 7:30 pm, followed by a tion and book signing. Acng to Kevin McCoy, the cooror of public and community ce for Student Activities at the ge, Giovanni decided to speak opic, "Cultivating Commu-'As a representative for social ervice issues, Giovanni chamcommunity involvement, and onference committee felt she a kick-off fundraiser for VA L. comedian leff Marder pers tonight at 9 pm in the Chesaoose their own path. The army

pt. Jennifer Gray, assistant pro or of military science, attributes increase in part to the equal ortunities ROTC offers women.

The percentage of women on campus is very large," she said.

ray also identified the chal-

es ROTC provides as a possible vation for women to join. s something new," Gray said.

ey get to try things they've never

People are starting to realize tit's all about and what it has to phomore cadet Kelli Kidwell

wanted to see what it was like," said. "Plus, I'll have a job when out of college."

the army provide equal opporties for men and women

There is not a glass ceiling in the d be instrumental in promottudent service activity.

tinued from Page 1

g to be held back

," she said.

es with Gray.

File photo Nikki Glovanni

Poet and Visiting Speaker peake Room at the University Cener. Students receive a $2 discount off the $6 regular admission price.

The VA COOL conference offers a variety of workshops that center around volunteer options, from "How to Utilize Student Volunteers" to "Service as Leadership Development." Members of AmeriCorps, along with presenters from school and community agencies, will be on hand to provide information regarding their organizations at the Opportunity Fair tomorrow in the UC as well.

Members of the Alpha Phi Omega [APO] service fraternity and Circle

The playing field is level for every-

Gray has been on active duty for ne years. She joined the College's

"The opportunities might even be better for women," she said.

"Some areas, like aviation, are just

Leonard said that ROTC aims for

"What we push is equal treat-ment," Leonard said. "We're always evaluating our cadets. We evaluate them to determine which will be offered commissions in the army. We want to know what their true performance is. The only way to do that is with a level playing field." Several female cadets said that they are treated no differently than

"Except for physical differences, we're looked at the same," Kidwell

The only differences in expectations for female cadets involve physical fitness tests and body fat opening up to women."

one regardless of gender."

faculty in August.

equality," she said.

K are providing their services as volunteers for the conference.

"We've been in contact with VA COOL in the planning process since June," Brian Ashenfelter, service chair of APO, said. "In the past month, we've started getting all the logistics set up."

Circle K and APO stuffed registration envelopes for the delegates, and the service organizations set up tables and chairs in preparation for the conference. In addition, members of the associations volunteered their time to work at the conference today and tomorrow.

"People are helping with registration and setting up, and people are cleaning up Sunday. It's a good cause," freshman Amy Thompson, Circle K member said

According to McCoy, VA COOL selected the College to host the conference because of its students' exemplary involvement in volunteer

"We've had 20 different agencies call us in the past two weeks." McCoy said. "The numbers [of people who want to volunteer] keep overwhelming us.

McCoy hopes the conference will result in even more opportunities for students to become involved in

"They don't expect any more or any less of me," Nicholson said. Females in ROTC have not experienced different treatment by the

"Theguyswework with are good "Compared to most civilian orguys," junior cadet Amy Connelly ganizations, there is probably more said. "They don't treat girls any opportunity for women as far as differently than they treat each Wendy Ferguson, a senior cadet, hopes to fly helicopters after she

"It's kind of like a family," Nicholson said. "We're all in the Leonard has noticed only slight differences in treatment of women in the ROTC program.

"You would expect a guy is go-ing to view a girl differently than he would view another guy," Leonard

During her time in the army, Gray has observed some differences in

"There are some differences. A lot of it boils down to human nature," Gray said. "It depends on the individual. Forme, it has never been

◆"Do you inhale?" the Philip Morris Tobacco company asked consumers in a Flat Hat adver-◆The Jefferson Hall swimming pool was open for women's swimming classes. College co-eds who wished to learn how to swim tisement, "then you're better off smoking Philip Morris."The ad urged consumers to "Call for Philip Morris" because PM ciga-rettes were "definitely less irri-tating, definitely milder than any other leading brand." or improve their skills could use the facilities for practices. Beginner-level classes focused on swimming fundamentals; intermediates learned professional strokes; and advanced swimmers were trained in life-saving tech-

CHAPTER THE PRODUCT OF THE PRODUCT OF THE

A review of this week in the history of the Colle

◆William & Mary tackle "Big Jawn" Kreamcheck impressed students and all College football fans with his 6'5", 245 lb stature and his feats on the field. Kreamcheck, a junior and a WWII veteran, was named All-American by three national sports magazines and called "one of the outstanding tackles in the country" by pre-season prognos-ticators. He led the team to a 34-25 victory over Boston University in the season-opener and pre-dicted a winning season for the ◆Two Flat Hat staff writers protested the cartoon movie Alice in Wonderland playing in local theaters. "It is our recommendation that the picture be banned from Williamsburg," the writers said. "The feature itself is a sordid affair concerning a mentally deficient Hatter and a drunken Hare who do nothin' but throw one party after another. Is this any way to educate our youth?

◆The Board of Visitors issued a resolution governing drinking rules. The rule outlined a new neutral policy that neither prohibited nor condoned drinking, but simnor condoned drinking, but sim-ply enforced Virginia laws gov-erning the practice. The rule re-quired fraternities to record the names of all those attending par-ties and prohibited alcohol consumption in public areas.

◆A Flat Hat editorial writer protested the registration system in a "chance not choice" registra tion. "Under the present system of confusion, all too often students are channelled into unwanted and unneeded courses-ignorant of the content," the writer said. He recommended, a pre-registration system that "would greatly ame-

♦William & Mary football suf-fered a crushing defeat at Vir-ginia Tech this week. The Indi-ans' 31-7 loss was largely due to three interceptions, all of which resulted in Gobbler touchdowns. We were forced to come from behind, and in order to do this, we had to take more chances." Coach Mary Levy said, "and of course the more chances taken, the greater the possibility for errors."

-By Délice Williams

To all of you fools taking the LSAT's tomorrow: Good luck you blood sucking lawyer

types.

Student, Youth & Budget Airfares

· Eurail Passes issued on the spot! · Adventure Tours • Budget Accommodations · International Student, Teacher & Youth ID · Hostel Memberships

Language Programs Worldwide
 Work Abroad programs & More!

Council Travel

1-800-2-COUNCIL

anvacedoreago indupparara torramigante caso

y," Leonard said. "If you per-n well, you get promoted. Pay is ed on rank and time of service. percentage standards, Leonard RICK'S BEDROOMS

Your Mattress Store 18 sets on display
SEALY•KINGSDOWN•KING KOIL

ood Futons • Iron Beds • Brass eds • Iron Daybeds • Futon eplacement Matresses

10% Student Discount Every Wednesday

lerchant's Square Next to Brown Dorm)

GIVE US YOUR IDEAS AND WE'LL GIVE SOMEONE ELSE THE CREDIT.

apital One is more than a company that issues credit cards. We're an idea company. An information-based company with an environment that inspires, generates, and produces one breakthrough after another. Today, we have firmly established our position as the company with the talent, and the technology that has redefined our industry.

If you are an "idea" person interested in a team environment in which you can truly make an impact, consider a career with Capital One.

As long as people will take credit, you might as well take the opportunity to put your ideas to work. Join us and realize your most ambitious goals, with a company destined to do the same.

Resume Drop Date: September 29th

Disability Services expands facilities

By Brian Frickert

A branch of the Dean of Students office, Disability Services contin-ues to try to further meet the needs of students on campus with dis-

For example, Disability Services, with the use of a $25,000 alumni gift, has begun installing a new Assistive Technology Lab for the visually impaired. The lab will inficude 30 computer workstations ficulty and braille translation software.

They can scan the textbook and that converts their textbook to Word Perfect and another cable will trans-"Clate the Word Perfect to braille." Lisa Bickley, assistant dean of students, said.

The College was not always this

Things have dramatically im-Siproved," senior Tonia Valletta, a visually impaired student, said. When I was a freshman, there was Cno (Disability Services) coordinator. The service was not as helpful as it could have been."

Although the Assistive Technology Lab is not yet functional, blind and visually impaired students lis-

By Andrew Bhattacharya

University Center.

Representatives from the CIA, di Colonial Williamsburg, and IBM doublined tips on how to succeed in interviews with potential employ-ers last Wednesday evening in the George Owens, former director of personnel at the CIA, offered a list on how to make "a lasting impression on a potential employer."

Owens suggested researching the rganization before the interview.

"It helps you prepare what I decribe as the 'questions' you want ask an interviewer," Owens said.

This is an interview, and it goes roways. It's not just someone ask-ng you questions, it is an opportuthing about that organization just as they're entitled to know some-

Owens also emphasized such nings as punctuality, communica-

on skills, proper dress, attentive-ss to the interviewer, communication skills, making eye contact, doing internships, taking a copy of our resume, a list of recommenda-ons, and obtaining a business card

rom your potential employer.
"That business card tells you who or her name, what their title is, and now to direct correspondence to hem," Owens said. "Send a thank-ou note immediately after that interview and express any continued interest on your part.

nity for you to ask questions bout you."

ten to their texts as read by student

We always have a reading program going on," Bickley said.
"[And] whatever hasn't been previously recorded by Recording for the Blind in Princeton, New Jersey, we do in-house

This Saturday from 10am to 4pm Disability Services will hold its annual Read-a-thon. Thirty student volunteers, who are each given an hour, will read a chapter of text.

"The sign-up list is about to overflow, so we should get all the reading done," Joy Cha, a sophomore reading program student assistant,

In general, Disability Services works "to create a barrier-free environment for matriculated students with disabilities by considering reasonable accommodation upon request on an individual and flexible basis," its mission statement reads.

The department approaches its task by working in conjunction with Parking Services, Residence Life and the Faculty.

"Through Disability Services, we can take care of most things,'

"It's up to you to sell yourself," Owens said. "You should tell them don't rely on your resume having told them that. You need to express yourself clearly, and probably most

Owens also told students not to

You come from an institution be nervous and talked about the that gives you the right to be self-confident," Owens said. "However, when you go into an interview it's not unusual to be nervous. That's accepted, but don't be overly so.

Show a positive attitude. Try to impress upon them that you are not afraid to work, that you're willing to put in the hours and do whatever

Greg Russel, who works in human resources for the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation, and

Mike Stevens, former director of personnel at IBM, both echoed much of Owens' advice and offered

Russel, who worked for twenty sources division, suggested go-years in the U.S. Army's Human ing through the mock interview program offered by Career Services and creating a portfolio that includes your resume, a copy of the job application, and writing

"You need to organize," he said.

"A lot of jobs require you to be able to write and to speak. Put some papers that you're proud of in the portfolio."

samples among other items.

ne additional tips.

is necessary to get the job done.

importance of first impressions.

importantly, succinctly.

what your skills and talents are-

Disability Services aids students with handicaps ranging from hear-ing impairment/deafness to quadriplegia. Much of its work involves hidden disabilities, such as depres sion, attention deficit disorder and head trauma. Hidden disabilities demand an equal amount of coor-

Jan Brown, a senior, has severe brain trauma and, although she looks perfectly healthy, she has trouble reading and writing. Disability Services coordinates resources so Brown can keep abreast with other students.

"I have note-takers and extended test time and my books are on tape," Brown said.

But registration still creates a problem. "I have to rely so heavily on printed material and I don't read...so registration is very difficult," Brown said.

Brown also has difficulty walking distances. With few handicap parking spaces on old campus, walking to Wren proves challenging. Many of the College's temporarily disabled also said getting to class is a struggle.

"The school is not handicap accessible." Ben Wyli, a sophomore with a stress fracture in his foot,

The handicap ramp behind Washington is at the base of sloping hills and the door sticks," he

"Everything is too spread apart," Petra Schmidt, a sophomore now recovered from a knee injury sustained last year, said.

Even though ramps and electric doors are recent features, she believes transportation could be pro-

"[When we're] going from new campus to old campus or old to new, [the College] could help us," Schmidt said.

But as far as coordination for individual students, "none of this is ever done without the student's direction. They must make these requests," Bickley said.

She worries students may not know what is available and would like to educate prospective freshmen at college fairs.

"My goal has been to make a video that would be made available for the same types of recruitment time for students with disabilities." Bickley said.

Until then, she will continue sending Disability Services information

many times I've asked people about themselves and they say, 'Well, I'm a hard worker, I get along well with

Ken Smith renewed WCWM's FCC broadcasting license this summer

Smith renews radio station's license

By Adrian Merry

Concern arose at WCWM, the College radio station, as the station's Federal Communications Commission Director Patricia Anderson thought she missed the deadline to apply for re-licensing from the FCC this past August. As it turned out Ken Smith, associate vice president of Student Activities, took care of the paperwork last spring before the June 1 deadline.

Licenses expire Dec. 31 and need to be renewed every five years.

The mix up occurred when Anderson replaced Kara Preissel, a graduating senior at the station last spring. According to Anderson, her duties were not well explained, and she did not receive clear information about the license renewal dead-

"Somehow the paperwork got lost in the shuffle," Anderson said. "There are a lot of things you have to catch up on at the beginning of the year, but that wasn't one I expected. We were all really worried that that could cause potential problems for the station.

Fortunately for WCWM, Dave

Oxenford, a former station manager who now works for a broadcasting consulting firm in Washington D.C. sends regular messages to Smith about approaching deadlines, changes in FCC regula-tions and other information of use to the radio station.

Smith secured copies of the re-licensing forms and mailed them in before the deadline.

"It's not a complicated process, Smith said. "It's just one that could easily slip by you if you're not careful. I think it hit the radio station right when people were getting into

Anderson commended Smith for his help on the re-licensing process. "He kind of sidestepped the trauma for us and figured it all out," she pulled him over for riding without a headlight. Moore received a $31

Continued from Page 1

There was no way I could have know about the law. It wasn't publicized at all," Moore said, "And it was happening at the same time when all the rapes and assaults were happening on campus. I was really annoyed with the Williamsburg

When Moore asked if the police put out a bicyle rule book that he could consult, police informed him that they had nothing published.

"So I had no access to the law," Moore said, "And being an out-ofstater I was especially at a disad-

McGrew said he complained to the City Police after last year's crack-

"I told them before they started ticketing they've got to let the stu-dents know that they're changing the rules," McGrew said. Campus Police officers are currently warning students that the City Police will be handing out tickets in the near future. According to Moore, who now owns a light, a bicycle headlight usually costs between $25 and $30. "The law has good intentions," Moore said, "but they are not using it the way it should be intended."

ecturers offer job interviewing tips people-persons. "Employers are looking for someone who is going to fit in and who is likable," Stevens said. "A little small-talk doesn't hurt in the beginning of a conversation. Get a little rapport between you.

Stevens said employers want

Most importantly, Russel said to be yourself.

We want to know who you arewe don't want some fake, some phony," Russel said. "We want to know how you are going to react in certain situations. You need to know vourself."

Stevens also suggested intereviewees should have a planned two minute speech about

Stevens concluded the presentation with several points

"Before you go to an interview, you have to have a good idea in your mind of what you want to do for at least the next five years of your life," he said. "You ought to ave an idea of what area you want to go into. I've talked to so many students who have no earthly idea even where to start. Guess what? Neither did all of us. That's not a bad thing, but just realize you have to get some general idea of what you want to do-sales, administration, law, whatever."

Stevens emphasized the importance of personal anecdotes.

'When you get into an interview you turn into a salesman or sales oman," Stevens said. "And that's why it's important to have stories about yourself. I don't know how people, and I like to travel.' And I say, 'Have you ever considered driving a bus? That's a great way to do all those things.' I never heard anybody yet in all my years of interviewing say, I'm not really a hard worker and I don't like people too much.' What's going to make you stand out from everyone else is to have a story or example—why are you a hard worker? You need evidence such as 'I'm an RA in a dorm filled with 150 crazy people. And the building never caught on Stevens had one last simple piece of advice for students.

'After the interview, ask them for the job if you'd really like it," he

Students appreciated the advice, but many felt that they did not learn anything new.

"A lot of it was just common sense," Massi Behbahani, a senior, said. "I just have to practice by taking mock interviews Eric Just, a senior, also echoed

"I found it interesting, but most of the stuff they said is really just plain old everyday sense," Just said. Who in their right mind would think of being late to a job interview or not know where the interview is taking place? I mean, come onwe're William and Mary students. We're smarter than that."

THIS AD IS IN HONOR OF OUR BELOVED AND

WORKING ON HER SENIOR THESIS, SUSAN, WE WILL MISS YOUR EFFERVESCENT PERSONALITY AND UNDYING ENTHUSIASM. GOOD LUCK!

NOW DEPARTED NEWS EDITOR SUSAN LACEFIELD. NO, SHE IS NOT DEAD, SHE IS JUST

Religion

Continued from Page 1

dar Committee for further exami-

Although the guidelines are fac-ulty-based, Macdonald said the final result was a collaborative ef-

"It's probably not what any of us would have ideally wanted but it's something that was worked out to the satisfaction of the people on the committee and was passed by the Faculty Assembly," Macdonald said. "It's remarkable that we were able to talk with lots of groups of people and hear from people from all different perspectives come at this and really work to get some thing done."

The Flat Hat

The new guidelines currently appear in the Revised Fall Registration Bulletin and will appear in Student Handbooks and the Course Curriculum Guide next year. Additionally, all faculty members re-ceived a memo about the guide-lines at the start of the semester.

PLEASE RETURN THIS COUPON Please send me all issues of The Flat Hat for Fall 1995 (14 issues)—enclosed is a check for $28 Please send me all issues of The Flat Hat for Spring 1996 (11 issues)—enclosed is a check for $22

Please send me all issues of The Flat Hat for Fall '95 and Spring '96 (25 issues)—enclosed is a check for $50

Mailing Address: Phone Number:

make checks payable to The Flat Hat expect a delay of approximately 2 weeks before your first issue.

The prochased subject availability for $4 each. Please call Ted Smith for e College of William and Mary o The Flat Hat—Subscriptions Campus Center lliamsburg, VA 23186

ith at 221-4863

entre en la recompagnación de managementa de la constitución de la final entre de la final de la constitución

VARIETY

athleen Sullivan and Thomas Kelly play May and Eddie in the Theater epartment's new production of Sam Shepard's Fool for Love.

Second Stage Fool opens strongly

By Brian Hatleberg Flat Hat Staff Writer

Fool for Love, the theatre department's first Second Stage Pro-duction of the season opened yeserday to a full house in Phi Beta Cappa Memorial Hall's Studio Thetre. The play was well received by oyed this showing even more than he play's director, said. Written by Sam Shepard, the drama originally debuted in San Diego in 1982. It was a success, and raveled to New York and other

Putnam chose Fool for Love as his

The story revolves around an old man and his love life with two women, but is explained by the reationship between their children, May and Eddie. The action takes place in a Mojave Desert motel room, and opens in the middle of a ight between Eddie, a lasso slingng cowboy played by junior Tho-mas Kelly, and May, the frustrated half-sister played by senior

Theirs is an uncertain relationto violent hate. After driving a long distance to find May, he promis that "this time it will work out "

While the play is primarily about the tangled relationships between characters, it is not without its moments of humor. Martin, played by sophomore William Hargett, is the confused man who shows up to take May out to the movies. Hargett plays Martin well and makes a great straight man for Eddie.

The father, an old man played by senior Donald Bledsoe, also adds a touch of humor, and keeps things moving by commenting behind the action in small flashbacks.

Relationships get delightfully twisted over the course of the drama, and what seems simple at the beginning of the play is quite complicated by the third act.

"The play really doesn't try to explain anything, "Putnam said.
"You have to draw your own conclusions about what's going on."
The motion never stops, rolling from argument to fight, fire to final showdown. There is plenty of in-formation for the audience to di-

The actors work well together, and are obviously enjoying them-selves as they yell and throw each other around. Even the final scene, when Eddie, May, and their father piece together their versions of the same story, is interrupted as Eddie's old girlfriend blows up his truck. It all works out though, and the ending is satisfying, if not entirely un-bunch of characters, but the ac the play well worth the free admis-

The play's run extends to tonight and Saturday at 8pm, as well as a 2pm matinee on Sunday.

Campus Catholics welcome priest Tom Magri fills position as Campus Minister left vacant by Charles Kelly.

The most striking thing about Father Tom Magri, the College's new Catholic campus minister, is his voice. He does not have the urban northern accent of so many Roman Catholic clergymen. Instead, his mellow tones speak of the farms and foothills of southwestern Virginia.

"I was born to Catholic parents in Lynchburg, which was very un-usual for that period [the 1950s]," Magri said. "It was a very non-Catholic setting, so I think that I have a certain ecumenical aware-

Magri embarked on his path toward the priesthood at an early

"Eversince the sixth grade, I knew

I wanted to be a priest," he said.

After attending Catholic grade school in Lynchburg, Magri attended St. John Vianney Seminary High School, a preparatory school for aspiring priests. After gradua-tion, he spent his freshman year at William and Mary before transferring to St. Mienrad College in Indiana, where he earned a B.A. in psychology. He attended divinity school at St. Michael's College at the University of Toronto, and also received a master's degree in liturgy from the Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C.

Fr. Tom Magri Brandon Okes/The Flat Hat

new Catholic minister at College pus ministry at Radford University and earned another master's degree there, this time in psychology.

Magri also found time to travel, although his were working vacations. During his sabbatical in 1988, he ministered in Guatemala. He also made a short trip to Nicaragua in 1991. Magri said that he has always been interested in Central American missions and social justice pro-

"I've long been involved with peace groups and various types of groups that try to bring a measure of social justice to the world, both globally and locally," he said.

globally and locally," he said.

This past spring, Magri learned that he would replace Fr. Charles Kelly as the College's Catholic campus minister. Kelly had been named rector of the cathedral in Richmond and left the College after the spring 1995 semester. Magri thinks previous experiences had much to do with his selection for the position.

"I think I got the job partially

"I think I got the job partially because I had been to school here and had some experience of the place," Magri said. "I enjoy working with young people and I hope the feeling is mutual."

Magri sees availability to students as the key to effective campus min-istry. Although liturgical functions are the most essential part of any ministerial job, Magri said that he must go beyond the bare bones. He will try to play sports and attend art events, as well as educate and counsel his students. Private counseling forms a major component of the

"I do have some counseling back-ground, so I'm comfortable with ground, so I'm comfortable with that aspect," Magri, who has two degrees in psychology, said. Magri is also a parochial vicar at St. Bede's Parish, and has responsi-bilities to his parishioners there as well. These duties include celebrating mass and visiting the sick.

Upon his arrival, Magri received help getting started from several sources. He credits Fr. Kelly with providing a solid basis from which known as an effective priest," he said. "My job this year is largely to observe and to maintain. My vision for this campus has not been shaped Magri is also pleased with the level of enterprise and initiative shown by Catholic Student Association [CSA] members.

"As an individual, I am not going As an individual, I am not going to be able to touch that many stu-dents' lives," he said. "The minis-try here is based on a peer ministry model. The students here are like a parish with the laity empowered. I don't know that I would have found that level of commitment and ma-turity elsewhere. That which CSA has done, I would like to support."

Magri's ecumenical background has also helped him work effec-tively with fellow members of Campus Ministers United [CAMU], composed of clergy of many de-nominations assigned to the Col-

"I have been very pleased with the level of support offered by CAMU," he said. "They have helped me get oriented and have been a very good resource. I look forward to working together with

See Magri, Page 13

Lucky students spin the Wheel

Virginia Livesay, Jordan Spector schmooze with Vanna, Pat

By Kate Brammer Flat Hat Asst. Variety Editor

For most people, stepping into the surreal world of a television game show would be an amazing experience, but one that "would never happen to me." Two students at the College recently had the chance to enter that world by being chosen as contestants on Wheel of Fortune, the popular puzzle-solv-ing game show.

Junior Virginia Livesay and senior Jordan Spector participated in the "College Week" segment of the show, which was filmed in Seattle.

"I knew [getting on the show was kind of a shot in the dark," Livesay said, "but when I got my letter I was excited, thrilled. It's kind of an hilarious, random situa-

the show last spring, when a test was given at the Collegeto screen for possible contestants. A total of 50 students participated. After re-ceiving their letters of congratulations in June, Livesay and Spector were informed that the taping would happen within 18 months and they would be given 15 days

"I got a call in the beginning of ptember," Livesay said. "Exactly September," Livesay said. "Exactly 15 days before the taping."

Expenses for the trip to Seattle, including airfare and hotel rooms, were paid for by the students. In turn, the primary goal for both was to win back the cost of the trip.

"My only hope was to make the money up to cover the costs," Spector said, "but on my first puzzle, I won ten times the cost of going back."

Both Livesay and Spector were very successful on the show and advanced to the bonus round.

"I also won his-and-her I think I'll probably sell them," Livesay said. "I don't get out to the ntains much." Unfortunately, neither was able to solve the final puzzle to win the Additionally, they both also enjoyed meeting host Pat Sajak and famous letter-turner Vanna White.

"Pat was surprisingly friendly, cordial and very funny," Spector

Spector and Livesay had never met at the College before they were chosen for the show and were not allowed to meet before the taping.

I was so nervous my knees were shaking. I was kind of hanging on to the wheel. Once the cameras were rolling though, I was concentrating on the game.

-Virginia Livesay

My only hope was to make the money up to cover the costs [of traveling to the show].

> -Jordan Spector contestant on Wheel of Fortune

"Those five seconds were so long," Livesay said, "and the word did not enter my head."

In addition to the first taping, Spector played on "Finals Night" because of his ranking as one of the top prize winners. The relaxed atti-tude of the contestants, according to Spector, made for a fun night.

"All the contestants were rooting for each other," Spector said. "We were chumming with Pat [Sajak]."
On the whole, Livesay and Spector said being on Wheel of Fortune was an exceptional experience. "It was so unreal," Livesay said. "Everything was so bright and big."

"I had a tremendous time," Spector said. "It was a lot of fun."

Their opponents included stu-dents from University of Washington, San Diego State University, University of California at Berkeley, and University of San Diego. The only contestant who was not from a West Coast university was a female student from Old Dominion. University, who had tried out with

Swim teams cross the James

By Scott Deacle Flat Hat Staff Writer

This afternoon at Jamestown swim teams rushed into the James River and swam to the other side. After the swimmers crossed the river and stood on the shore at Swan's Point, they gathered their bearings, rushed back into the water, and returned to Jamestown

The event was the 18th Annual James River Swim, a fundraiser for the American Cancer Society. Walley and Mark Riley, a father and son with close ties to Tribe swimming, sponsor the yearly swim with the Williamsburg

Walley Riley, an assistant swimming coach at the College from 1961 to 1983, and former Tribe head coach Dudley Jensen organized the first James River Swim in 1978.

"We figured on doing something for the community," Riley, who also swam for the Tribe from 1948 to 1950, said. "We got five hundred dollars the first year. It's really grown since then."

gone above that level." Donations will be accepted until

"The goal is ten thousand dol-lars," Skinner said. "We've never

John Rockwell, captain of the men's Junior Andrew Schneider said he enjoys door to door fund raising.

"Most people want to help out," Schneider said. "There's a lot of swim come from a variety of sources

ey, Ned Skinner, Tim Sullivan, and Mark F lames River Swim, which was held this aft in the Williamsburg area. The retired people in the area, and it's Williamsburg Kiwanis Club, to fun talking to them." which Skinner and the Rileys bewhich Skinner and the Rileys belong, makes a substantial donation, every year. The Williamsburg Pottery Factory and New York Life Insurance Company are the largest contributers among the local business community. Tribe swimmers also ask local businesses and residents for donations.

"We organize a couple of dates when members of the team are required to go in the neighborhoods and ask for flat donations," senior fellow members of the College com-

After raising money during the weeks preceding the James River Swim, the swimmers faced the task of paddling across a two mile ex-

Author instills a lasting awe of nature

Columnist bids farewell, encouraging readers to appreciate the world around them

By Callan Bentley Flat Hat Staff Writer

If you have been one of the faithful readers of The Flat Hat, you will possibly recall the first time this column ever appeared. It was two years ago, almost to the week. It was a long proclamation on the lives of squirrels. I was a Variety editor back in those days, and used my influential position to get a column about nature, my favorite subject,

Wild Williamsburg

I wanted for a long time to use the newspaper to explore different as-pects of the natural world, and share the wonder and enthusiasm I felt about nature with anyone else who cared to read about it. My goal was to make natural science fun, interesting and accessible to people who might not otherwise bother with it. Since that incipient period, I have written 50 consecutive articles, each week exploring another subject of the natural history of the Williamsburg area, and this is my

I feel a little bit sentimental, writing my last column. For the past four semesters of my college education, Wild-Williamsburg has been a part of my life, demanding attention and care each week. I have spent numerous hours researching in the library and interviewing pro fessors in preparation for writing. I spenteven more time sitting in front of the computer, searching for the right analogy to elucidate some topic for my audience, or drawing a picture to accompany the article. A lot of who I am has gone into this column, and I would have to say that Wild Williamsburg has changed me, too.

To write every week about nature requires some thought, and when I think about nature and try to make logical connections for my readers, strange things happen. I

With every article I wrote, my respect for the intricacies of the natural world increased. Look out there past your dormitory doors: it is amazing out there. Sometimes it blows my mind to think of the structure and internal workings of each animal and plant, the layering of the sediments underlying the tree roots, the clouds overhead, the autumn leaves falling, and the ecological interdependence of everything. It is such an incredible system out there. Each organism, each soil particle, each gust of wind has its own place to fill and its own role to play. A tiny little gnat has as important a part in life's rich pageant as the largest blue whale. Everything that anything does affects every-

It sends my mind reeling when I think of things like that. If there is one thing I have gotten out of my education here in biology and geology, it is perspective. When you think holistically (that is, considering the perspective of everyone and everything), then you begin to realize what is actually important in life. It doesn't actually matter how poorly I do on a given test, for example. The universe does not care. The mountains and swamps won't reject me. This planet is 4.6 billion years old. Think about that next time you get overly concerned with an artificial worry. 4.6 billion years. That is a long, long time. Humanity itself is but a speck in history, one step in the relentless ancient drive of time, geologic process, and evo-

I appreciate this dose of perspective from time to time. It helps me along by the tide of life. If I perform poorly on a test, my remedy is not to study harder. Instead of hitting the books, I hit the trail. A solo afternoon walking through the College Woods is all it takes. Trees

And it's not just trees, either. Bar-ren mountain tops also do nicely, as will deserts and canyons and rain forests and seashores. Even grass-lands will make do in a pinch. Natural areas are, and have always been, the greatest resource on the planet. I like just thinking about it, knowing that it's out there: a place that is not yet paved with Progress and lit

Wild places are simply fantastic. If you don't believe me, go see for yourself. See how close you can get to a great blue heron. See what's around the next bend in the trail, what another five miles on your bicycle will show you. See what it feels like to lie on the ground during a hurricane. Listen to the insects, the birds, the sounds of rivers and thunderclouds and the wind in the willows. Taste the spring water, smell the roses, feel the warmth of a granite rock in the sun. And after you're done, go get your family, and show them what you've found. Bring your friends. Bring your enemies; they need it the most.

There is life out there, past academic obligations, past career planning, past the campus and the town and the most remote trace of hu-man habitation. It is true life, essential and basic and full of amazing detail. Just go out there and look at it. Appreciating it is the important thing, figuring out the nuts and bolts can wait until later.

Now that's said. Thanks for lis-

Reader ponders Ganter plaque

By Makya McBee

Who is Herbert Ganter? Under a window in the Marketplace is a plaque commemorating the table where he sat. What's his story?

-Herbologist

Dear Herb Watcher,

You mean you haven't heard of Herbert Ganter, author of the everpopular Winnie the Pooh books? Where have you been for the past...oh, wait, that's A. A. Milne—I always get those two mixed up.

CONFUSION ? CORNER ,7?

All right Herbie (mind if I call you Love Bug?), here are the facts: Ganter graduated from William and Mary in 1927, and got his law degree in 1930. He would never practice law, however, as he dedicated his life to the invention of peanut butter...oh, whoops, that's Carver. Ganter worked as the College archivist from 1948 to 1974. In 1968 he was awarded the Alumni Medallion, but declined it (either he's modest, or it was too heavy to carry home). It wasn't until the heart-wrenching movie Schindler's List, however, that he got the Oscar he had so long deserved . . . nope, that's the guy with the mustache.

Ganter devoted his life to historical research and the preservation of antique books. He handled many of Earl Gregg Swem's (whom, of course, our pool is named for) re-search needs, and he was considered an authority on the history of the College and Virginia in the 18th century. Ganter died August 20,

The main mystery that remains in my mind is why did they make him work in the Marketplace? Wouldn't people spill food on his old books? Oh, and speaking of his books, here comes the scandalous part. When Ganter passed away, did the College use his books to gift create a Ganter Library Wing? No, 42 we took all of his books and sold at them for cash! 17,000 big ones to be gift exact. When Park College bought on these valuable books, an article ran in The Access City Times College 10 and in The Kansas City Times (Nov. 30, o) 1981) that stated that the College wacquired the books "when a former archivist there died." Herb wasn't

So, my amorous insect friend, we can see what side William and Mary's bread is buttered on. I bet they gave Herb that plaque because hil they felt bad about selling his books. It seems, though, that anyone with money can get a plaque. (How about 27 David Letterman's plaque at Ball 25 State dedicating the telecommunications room that he donated. It reads, "Dedicated to all "C" stu-

So my advice is (a) if you don't want plaque, floss daily and (b) if you do want a plaque give lots of money to the College. When I leave I'm going to have a plaque put up next to Munford 135. It will read, "Makya McBee (1992-1996) resided in this dormitory room for three years. He may have been an absolute moron, but, man, was that cat

CAMPUS ESCORT is looking for volunteers!! Call Jason tabes at x5626 for information come to a Campus Police Safety Session in Washington 201

We in Variety would like to wish you a happy fall break. Be safe. And if you can't be safe, be unsafe.

There was a farmer had a dog... That is such a stereotype. I mean, couldn't the poor man have a llama?

lock for charity tfield headlines benefit concert

ichael Coon lat Staff Writer

cious, but this weekend it adds an all-day show in Richmond fiting a group that works to at hunger. iana Hatfield is the headliner e Awful Arthur's Oyster Roast, to start from."

John Doe of d two per-ers familiar What we're trying College au-ce, Fighting ity and Shan-Worrell. The to do is bring a lot of people from e Oct.1 in mond or throughout the region to raise Street in money for Feed the koe Bottom, Future and have a 12pm to lot of fun at the tfield is cursame time. ort of her latlbum. Only ything. The se, her third his record felt like a gift," ield said, according to a Mamning fell into place. It seemed as a payoff for all the creative tration I've had. After eight sof waiting it finally happened.

Commonwealth, and has released es, combines the familiar hooks er poppy songs with a new acteristic—extensive guitar

e dissolution of the Blake Baand her last trio, The Juliana ke over much of the musicianherself, including playing some and keyboard during the re-ling sessions for Only Every-She has also changed her lyricing style to some extent, focusmore on philosophies of life self-exploration.

The songs don't capture me be little pieces of me mixed up things I make up that are bet-rworse than me," Hatfield said only Everything. "I've been aced of being too sincere in the , like with [debut album] Hey You do get ridiculed, and I probably affected by that. My cs are a little more cryptic now, that's how I like it. It's more resting. I never meant to be so other step in her development as a

"Now that I know I can do this, it has opened up a new world of pos-sibilities," Hatfield said. "It's not like I'm satisfied. It's like a door I've been beating on for so many years has just opened. I finally got inside, and now there's a whole new level band, will be playing in its own backvard in Richmond. The group has played nu-Lake Matoaka and the University Center Café. It is known for its theatrics and fastpaced jazzy rock that combines work, and brass. The band has gar-nered a consider-

-Shawn Church, concert promoter able following throughout the > a number of albums on an indepen-Like Fighting Gravity, Shannon Worrell is no stranger to the College. During the past two years, she has played twice at the Café, and her acoustic guitar talents have brought large audiences. At this weekend's concert, however, her as the band, Monsoon, backs her. Feed the Future, a Richmond-based organization that operates an emergency food pantry. Feed the Future coordinates food service operators in the area and attempts to aid the hungry before they turn to government programs. The group aims to eventually open a cafe to provide meals on a consistent basis, and hopes to offer counseling to assist

"What we're trying to do is bring a lot of people from throughout the region to raise money for Feed the Future and have a lot of fun at the same time," Shawn Church, the concert's promoter, said.

Tickets for the concert are $8 in advance and $10 at the door and can be obtained by calling 1-800-

by thello to all the moms and dads out there.

Especially Ma and Pa Castle and Ma and Pa Levine

Robbers will play Café

By Brian Hatleberg Flat Hat Staff Writer

When the Graverobbers play at the University Center on Oct. 4, don't expect some frilly Goth-rock schtick. This Northern Virginia threesome plays a drum-driven radio pop along the lines of Tom Petty ist Karl Straub, the group chose their name because, "We borrow a lot of musical ideas from musicians and bands that are not around or are literally dead, like Hank Williams, Muddy Waters, Johnny Thun-

The band has been around since All benefits from the Awful late 1991, when drummer Matt Arthurs Oyster Roast will benefit Cook and bassist Dave Pera were taking guitar lessons from Straub. The three decided to play together. After Cook and Pera switched instruments and second guitarist Randy Austin came on board, the band began to play at clubs in the Washington, D.C. area. The y have released two 7" singles, entitled Justintine and *It Doesn't Mat*ter, and two full length CDs, Soul Parking and Toast of the Town.

The band released Soul Parking, the earlier album, in 1992. It kicks off with "Try to Explain," a catchy tune that is well rooted in the rhythm section, and flows into "It Doesn't Matter," a melodic pop song with some drive. From this point on, the entire album mostly follows the same pattern set by the first two songs — good, solid pop with an occasional guitar break.

Two tracks that come along later "Drinking from a Swimming Pool," are worth special mention. "Shonen Knife" is a brilliant piece, catchy and fun, everything a pop song should be. The band almost manages to sound like the Beach Boys, with a little harmony and a bouncing surf guitar rhythm. The subject of the song is, of course, Japan's riot girl band Shonen Knife, who seem to be a particular favorite of the Graverobbers.

"Drinking From a Swimming Pool" is another great song, coming very close to country music with its bass rhythms and vocals. It comes album, breaking up the standard sound of the band and adding a

The band's second release, from 1994, is the album Toast of the Town. from the album's credits on this one, but his presence isn't missed. The Graverobbers must have done some expanding in the two years between albums because Toast has added a harmonica, saxophone, organ, and a clarinet to the mix.

The CD's 11 tracks are fairly close to the sound they had on Soul Park-ing, though the band's instrumental skills have obviously increased. "Caroline," the album's fourth track, has a nice flowing melody, and the second track "I Hate the Radio," is worth a listen for the lyrics alone. "Irish Mist" features some decent guitar work and the alto sax is a nice touch. The group included another country-sound-ing song, "Big Chips Off the Moon," reminiscent of the Eagles. The album closes with the old jazz stan-dard, "All of Me," completed adequately, but it's nothing special.

Loeb releases debut

The nerdy-looking girl with the monster hit "Stay" is back with her debut full-length release, Tails.

Nearly a year after Geffen won the major label bidding competition for Lisa Loeb & Nine Stories, a superbly crafted collection of songs has

Now on CD

Rather than release an album full "Stay"-like ballads, Loeb unveiled a mix of rockers, ballads, and dis

The first single off of Tails, "Do" You Sleep?" displays Loeb's excel-lent songwriting abilities. She man-ages to flawlessly execute drastic dynamic changes through a simple, yet beautifully orchestrated, chord

At times, lyrics like "I can't say" I'm able to stand for you or fall for you ever again" make Loeb sound deceivingly vulnerable. The strength of the vocals, however, balances the effect. Tails exhibits incredible string and harmony arrangements throughout its thirteen tracks. The final product has virtu-

Watch out for this girl. She is definitely not a one-hit-wonder of the nineties, and maybe she's not as nerdy as you think.

FREE STUFF!!

Listen to the Chewbacca, What a Wookie! show on WCWM Monday (Sunday night) 12am-2am

We play all kinds of music!

We give away prizes! WCWM 90.7 FM

Chewbacca, What a Wookie! ' is hosted by Steve Perkins and Caroline Castle.

$$ Need Cash $$

MBNA, a Leading Credit Card Provider, is Hiring an on Campus Representative m $5 an hour and $4 per Approved Application Call 221-1168 M-F 8am-5pm

Self-Motivated and Energetic Students Wanted!

Kappa Alpha Theta would like to welcome its New Members Christine Breinig Katie Kjome

Brittney Bullock Elizabeth Burton Connie Ciccolella Casey Cornelius Tanya Czarkowski Melissa Daly Deanne Dent Marieclaire Gallagher Jennifer Gates Juliet Gold Erin Gooch auren Greene-Roesel Ryan Jennings

Laura Lotz Erica Ong Allison Papovich Rosemary Peterson Amanda Pion-Goureau Sara Rablin Claire Rice Holly Sortomme Jill Spangler Heather Swanson Karin Talbert Elizabeth Townsend Rebecca Williams

It's never to early to begin thinking about your future.

Finance Trainee Program

Resume Deadline: September 22nd Career Exploration Day: October 13th Interviews: October 20th

Sophomore Kermit Kaleba plays Anatol, a man who successively falls for different wise, from left) Lara Al-Lan Johnson, Andrea Clark, Suzannah Ancell, Kavita Rajagopalan,

Actors play Game of Love

Students focus efforts on building characters in new musical

By J.D. Berkley

Round and round, like a waltz in a summer breeze, The Game of Love, the first production of William and Mary Theatre's seventieth seas sweeps onstage beginning Oct. 5 at Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall. In marked contrast to the jazzy brassiness of the department's two previous musicals, Chicago and Guys and Dolls, The Game of Love presents a comical blend of sentiment and slapstick fitted to a European sensibility. Librettist Tom lones, who also created The Fantasticks, takes the unusual step of adapting previously written material (in this case, five one-act plays by Austrian playwright Arthur Schnitzler) and setting it to previously written music, namely that of Offenbach. It's quite a confection, a kind of many-hued valentine to the sweet and utter confu

The story begins in turn-of-thecentury Vienna, and revolves around the life of Anatol (played by Kermit Kaleba). When the audience first meets Anatol, he is a dashing young man in his twenties and "in love with love." His best friend. Max (Rodd Bayston) narrates the tale, and tells of Anatol's romantic pursuits of, and escapes from, five extraordinary women, across a span of some thirty years. These women include Annie (freshman Emily Greble), a dancer who has a little surprise for Anatol when he comes to break off their affair; Gabrielle (junior Andrea Clark), a respectable Viennese housewife who left Anatol and now, maybe, wishes she hadn't: and Illona (senior Lara Johnson), an actress who hates beinglied to. Anatol, not surprisingly, spends a great deal of time explaining himself to the only person who'll listen-Max. Max is equal parts trouble-shooter, jokester, confessor, and shrink.

Pulling off high comedy set to classical music is exceedingly tricky, but director Richard Palmer, prosor of theater and speech, relishes the challenge.

"Musicals are a fact of life in the theatre, and I enjoy them, both as a director and as an audience member," Palmer said. "I try to look for the unusual when I pick a musical."

Musical Director Peter Mantey, manager of Video/Audio Production Technology Services, spoke about the work involved in coordinating the voices and the orchestra.

"It's tough . . . reconciling myself to taking well-known instrumental music and trying to put words to it," Mantey said. "At the same time, it's easier for me because, unlike most musicals, the score is written for just three pieces [piano, cello, and violin], so the orchestral de-

Cha-nell-o's

PIZZA • SUBS • WINGS

DELIVERY

Another distinctive characteristic of The Game of Love, according to Kaleba, is that since the play does not have the long Broadway run that generally precedes most musicals going into regional and college repertory, there are no set standards on how the play or its characters should evolve

"There's nothing you can hold up and say, 'Oh, this is how to do it,' so there's a real sense of creating a role," Kaleba said. "I've never earned more about acting than I

His female counterparts agreed on the problematic nature of building characters. With each female character appearing in only one scene each, these actresses have to convey a great deal in a short pe-

"What's difficult is establishing an entire range of emotions in just one scene," Johnson said. "Thave to go from one extreme to the other so

Freshman Kavitha Rajagopalan, who plays Annette, a young girl who tries to entice the aging Anatol to "play the game" one more time, described the rehearsal process as 'overwhelming

"[Dr. Palmer' has] let it evolve on its own, Rajagopalan said. "As an actress, it's nice to be given that

Jones expressed his vision as well "The overall effect should be part theatre and part memories—memo-ries of a world long since vanished."

Seven's serial killer plot delivers chills to audiences

By J. D. Berkley

Gluttony. Greed. Sloth. Lust. Pride. Envy. Wrath.

In twentieth-century America, serial killers have taken the place of those antiquated demons, witches, and vampires, as the foremost examples of pure evil to lurk in our public consciousness. These killers are characterized as diseased reprobates devoid of humanity, and as amoral malcontents who view mass murder as revenge against a piti-less world. The rarest breed, the predators, are also the most frightening. They are not insane, and they aren't out for kicks. They kill precisely, methodically, and they see murder as simply a means to a greater, darker end.

Now on Film

Dr. Hannibal Lecter of The Silence of the Lambs is a killer in this mold, and so is John Doe, the unnervingly systematic menace at the heart of Seven, David Fincher's bleak vision of a pair of cops in a nameless city, searching for a man they never believed could exist.

His trademark is unmistakable: with each of his mutilated victims is found the name of one of the seven deadly sins scrawled on a wall nearby, accompanied by a pas-sage from Shakespeare, Dante, or Chaucer, almost by way of a polite explanation. As the body count case, William Somerset (Morgan Freeman) and David Mills (Brad Pitt) discover their killer's plan to kill seven people in a single week.

Screenwriter Andrew Kevin Walker makes his first effort here, and occasionally makes the mistakes of a newcomer. He relies a bit too much on clichéd dialogue, and his fondness for literary cross-referencing gives the film the scattershot sense of an ambitious master's thesis in creative writing. Still, these are intellectual object tions, and Seven doesn't leave you much time to ponder, because it's far too busy scaring the living day-

This film plays on every raw nerve, by employing indescribable gore. It honors the traditional rules of the thriller to create an atmosphere in which your fear of leaving your seat and missing something is matched by your fear of staying to watch something you'll never forget.

I'm not just spouting hyperbole here. The physical viciousness of these crimes will turn your stomach. Even more disturbing about Seven, though, is the twisted urban wasteland that engulfs its characters. Even when the sun shines on this city, it doesn't get very bright, and the helter-skelter visuals and thrashing, uneven soundtrack (a mishmash of everything from Billie Holliday to Nine Inch Nails) suggest the chaos and decay of a modern-day Nineveh.

Accordingly, every character does anything possible to transcend the gloom. Pitt, turns Mills' obses-sion with his work into a palpable rage so intense it hangs over him like a storm cloud.

Gwyneth Paltrow, a gifted and underused young actress, plays Mill's wife. She exudes an easy go-ing aura that later reveals itself to be a sham. She is far more vulnerable than she will let on to her hus-

As for Freeman, he inhabits the role of the soon-to-retire Detective Somerset like a second skin. He befriends his new partner and his wife reluctantly, because, as he tells Mills, "This isn't going to have a happy ending." Experience has taught him that friendship doesn't survive weeks like this.

The casting masterstroke, however, was to place character actor Kevin Spacey (Glengarry Glen Ross) in the role of the sadistic John Doe. From his brutal handiwork and fiendish clues, you expect a monster. When you finally see the bookish, undersized Spacey, it's almost a disappointment, until you realize that the only reason you see him at all is because he wants to be seen.
When at last, too late, you've learned why he wants to be seen, you will feel more spooked than you have felt in a movie theater in a

Swim

Continued from Page 7

panse of water. The swimmers contended with cold muddy water and a strong downstream current. In swimmers far from the straight four mile circuit.

"People have been known to take a five mile trip," Rockwell said. "The distance you swim depends on who you follow."

"I think it's the equivalent of two workouts," Skinner said. "There's no warm-up, there's no kickboards, and the water is cold." Coast Guard boats carrying coaches and other observers join the swimmers on their journey. Swimmers who cramp or stray too far from a direct course receive help from the escorts. To remain visible, the swimmers wear brightly colored belium balloons tied around their waists or ankles. Despite the distance, temperature, and color of the water they will swim in, most swimmers look forward to the James River Swim. "It's a welcome change from do-ing laps in a pool," Rockwell said. "The only bad part is that the water isn't very clean. Freshman swimmer Tesla Cheltema, who swam across the river for the first time today, was not intimidated by the swim

"I think it will be long, but fun," Cheltema said before the event. "The only thing I'm fearful of is that the water may be cold."

After they completed their aquatic trek, the two teams trav-eled to the home of John Williams, another supporter of Tribe swimming, for a cookout. There they ate hamburgers, hot dogs and salad prepared by the diving teams.

'It's their job to get the grill ready and make good food after we get out of the water," senior Virginia Wood, captain of the women's team, This year's James River Swim was dedicated to deceased Athletic Di-rector John Randolph. Randolph died from lung cancer last August.,

"He was a real bedrock of the athletic department," Schneider said. "He did a lot for Tribe swim-rename it the John Randolph James River Swim to Fight Cancer," Skin-The swim team will accept donations to the James River Swim until Oct. 13. Checks should be written to Aquatics Unlimited and given to: a member of the swim team or taken , to the swimming office in William and Mary Hall.

Kate Brammer contributed to this

Soft Serve Yogurt Small $0.99 + tax

Baskin (31) Robbins

Expires 10-31-95

Expires 10-31-95

BUSINESS RELATED MAJORS

YOUR IDEAS. YOUR AMBITION. YOUR ENERGY.

OUR TRAINING YOUR FUTURE.

CIRCUIT CITY

OPEN DAILY Ham Open Late - 2am Friday & Saturday till 3am Sunday till lam

Carry Out Specials

2 MEDIUM CHEESE PIZZAS $7.99 + TAX

2 large 1 topping pizzas $9.99 + tax

1 small 2 topping pizza $4.99 + tax

1 large order cheese breadsticks $6.99 + tax

Poetry in Motion

Poets Robert Hershon and Donna Brook will read their work October 17 at 8pm in the University Center. Here is a sampling of their poetry.

The Crack-ed Knuckle by Robert Hershon

Unable to stop once I learned to snap my fingers crack my knuckles and my big toe Even the persistent sniff is half habit The breathing you hear through the keyhole still trying to whistle I'm working now on a noisy wink

Desire by Donna Brook

Delicate but strong, like an anchovy, something I felt for 20 seconds must have been a tremor or desire. Why, hello desire. What a lovely name you have and what large greedy hands.

Museum exhibits ceramics

na arangaryana menarahkan kengan kadan kada dalah mengan bada darah berain darah berain darah bada a

The Muscarelle Museum invites members of the College commuity to view its current presentanity to view its current presenta-tion of the National Council on Education for the Ceramic Arts [NCECA]1995 Clay National exhi-bition. The show, which features ceramic artists, is a juried competition for varied artists

"[The artists] use a broad selec-tion of formal and technical approaches," the Museum said. Three popular approaches are well-illustrated in this exhibition: the use of wood-firing, interest in the traditional teapot form as an interpretive and technical challenge, and combined use of mixed

Muscarelle Curator of Collections Ann Madonia said the Clay National "is a competitive juried expedition that's done every two years." For this type of expedition, artists submit works to be considered for exhibition and one Juror [art expert] decides which pieces will be displayed.

"This [competition] gives the artists an independent judgment of their works," Madonia said. "They can compare their works to others and compete with their peers, not against someone from thousands of years ago."

The Clay National does not focus on one theme, because the pieces are by so many different artists.

"There's no theme or unity to the exhibition," Madonia said, "so you just see what artists are doing nowa-spired her to write The Journey of English, a non-fiction account of the history of the language, aimed at young audiences. The book is schedaled for publication next year by Clarion Press, a division of Houghton Mifflin.

Brook said she is fascinated with 10-year-old children, whom she de-scribes as "able to do a lot of things,

"They are not trying to give you the answer you want," she said.

Her interest in this age group prompted her discovery that little literature exists for them to read, which sparked The Journey of En-

Brook sees broad applications for

"All the skills you need for poetry you need for other things too Brook said. "The ability to make comparisons, organization, rhythm.

A poem might organize itself in a different way than an essay but it

Writing poetry takes more than

"You can't just write down your feelings," she said. "I like the process of writing poetry— where it makes you look atthings—it makes you more alive. If you're writing you have to be listening to what's happening around you."

certainly has some organic form.

but not inhibited yet."

"We have works from the repre-sentational to the "bstract, the large to the small, and the functional to the decorative. This is what artists have done within the past two years," she said.

Madonia believes the exhibition's variety will impress Muscarelle visi-

"The variety, the kind of work done, and the scale will surprise people," Madonia said. "Everyone thinks: clay, reddish brown, pots. This is very different. There are a lot of colors, forms, shapes, and textures," she said. Madonia stressed that there are a number of teapots included in the

"Some are functional but others can't be used because they've become more decorative. They've gone in another direction," Madonia said. "They show such individual creativity. Every one has to be judged on its own. It's a traditional shape, but texture and pattern make a different object."

exhibition is a piece entitled "Teapot with an Attitude" by artist Nicholas Joerling. The teapot re-sembles a person with his hands on "This [piece] has such a sense of humor," Madonia said, "To take a teapot shape and give it such human presence-a human attitude altered in some way or other to given to an inanimate object. That takes a lot of creativity."

Another work which Madonia particularly appreciates is a John Balisteri piece entitled "Monolith". The work is a 100 pound object that resembles a stone wheel.

"We found out exactly how heavy it is when we tried to move it,"

The NCECA Clay National e hibit closes Sunday, October 15.

James J. Brashear's Lost at Tea, is at the Muscarelle Museum of Art.

Madonia said. "It's pure imagina

Despite the individuality of each Madonia's favorite work in the chibition is a piece entitled "Tea-exhibition, Madonia said they reflect new trends in modern ceramic

> "They're using traditional shapes more imaginatively and they're very interested in texture and finish." Madonia said. "[The works] are functional pieces that have been express the imagination or creativity of the artist. "Some of these things you have to look at two or three times before you realize what the artist is doing, or what your reaction is to it,"

The NCECA Clay National ex-

oets

ad their work Tuesday, Oct. 17 at om in the University Center. A Brooklyn, N.Y., native, ershon grew up with a love for ading that was inspired by his ther, but with little knowledge of

"In school I was taught to hate petry as everybody is," Hershon aid. "I had no interest in poetry ntil I started writing it. I thought ou needed a license from God to rite poems."

Although he had published his petry in a number of different litped an interest in a particular magazine called Things. After submitting poems to Things and failing to receive a response, Hershon allowed up by contacting the ollowed up by contacting the agazine's staff. The editors anted to print his poems but were nsure the magazine was going to ontinue publishing.

Hershon gave not only his poshing effort and began Hanging cose magazine, as well as Hanging cose Press. The magazine still enys readership today and the press ublishes five or six books each

"Our stress has always been in ublishing new writers," Hershon aid. "We're particularly proud of ne fact that we've done a lot of first ooks. To me that's what small press ublishing is all about—giving [po-

A small press called New American and Canadian Poetry, established in 1967, chose to publish Hershon's Swanslovingbearsburningthe ltingdeer as its first publication. Since then Hershon has published nine more. His most recent volume is entitled Into a Punchline: Poems 1984-1994. He has received several grants from the National Endowment for the Arts [NEA], both for his individual work and for Hang-

In addition, Hershon is the executive director of The Print Center, Incorporated, a non-profit or-ganization that assists schools, individuals and arts groups in print-

But he still delights in writing a

"Making the poem is still a real adventure— that's the real kick in writing poetry," he said.

Hershon's poetry is for everyday people—it is about cities and subways and dogs and liquor stores and families. His poetry speaks a great deal of New York, where he

"The geography of where I live is important to the way I write," Hershon said.

Brook, who grew up in Detroit, started out writing a lot of Detroit-centered poems. The Detroit of her childhood and young adulthood, when and where Aretha Franklin and Diana Ross grew up, was a thriving artistic community.

"It was fantastically stime for me as a young artist," she said. That Detroit is gone now. Now that she lives in New York, Brook has adopted that city as a theme as Brook and Hershon met when a mutual friend and poet introduced them and suggested Brook submit her work to Hanging Loose. She did, first book and the magazine accepted it, but inadvertently omitted a couple stanzas from one of her poems. This mistake led to correspondence be-tween Hershon and Brook and in 1979 they were married.

Brook enjoys the partnership of poets and says there is no competition between them, only mutual support.

Brook has loved poetry since she was a child, but did not know she was a poet until college.
"I would write what I thought were poems," she said. Then she took a class with poet Donald Hall.

"That changed everything, He said to me, You're really a poet—you're the real thing.' Since he was the real thing that blew my head off."

Brook's poetry is as accessible and straightforward as her husband's, but the subject matter is different. Her poems range from discussion of relationships, teach-ing, and appetites to experiences in cities. Both Brook and Hershon site similar influences on their poetry in poets who they admire: Frank O' Hara, Allen Ginsburg, and Robert

Creely, among others. Brook pu d her first book History of the Afghan, with Red Hanrahan Press in 1975 and has published several subsequent vol-umes. Like Hershon, her poetry has appeared in a variety of poetry magazines. Brook has received creative writing grants from the NEA

The majority of her career has been spent in the classroom, as Brook has taught English to every VARIETY: level, from children in elementary school to college students, as well as to union workers. She also served as Poet-in-the-School at two schools. This experience with students in-

GRE GMAT MCAT LSAT Haise your scores 15 students per class Expert instructors Satisfaction Guaranteed (800) 778-PREP THE PRINCETON

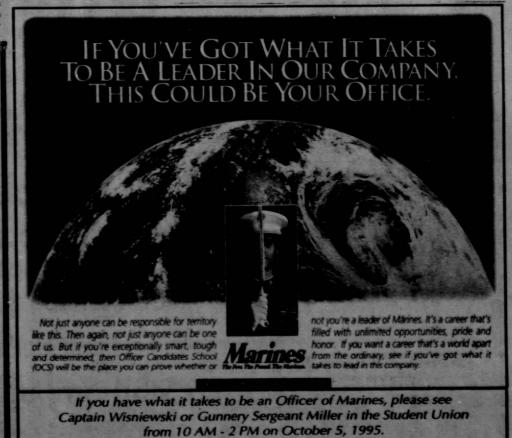

your cultural meat and potatoes. Au gratin, that is. (Not the meat.)

PI BETA PHI Congratulations to our new baby angels

Cory Arberg Carrie Brooks Amie Capo Kirsten Collingwood Jen Cook-Karr Hilary Darilek Erika Goddard Jen Harvie Sarah Kingston Jill Krohn Julie Lawrence Cindy Leary Stephanie Loehr Kathryn Maher

Elcenora Martinez Rebecca McBride Vanessa McLaughlin Phebe Omullane Ruffin Priest Caroline Rogers Carrie Ruff Katherine Saul Kelly Snyder Sara Solfanelli Catherine Tyler Dani Vissers Erin Watson Sarah Yoselevsky

We can also be reached at 1-800-552-9548.

SPOTLIGHT ON ...

RICH ROYANG

By J. Rebecca Ferguson and Christina Taylor

The "all-American" pastime of base-ill became one of the recreational pas-mes of the College when junior Rich coung established the first club base-

Q: Why did you want to estab-ish a club baseball team?

play tennis but all I could do was it the ball over the fence, so he

I played baseball during all four ears of high school but I didn't vant to make the same time comnitment in college. I thought it would be a good idea to get a club team going. So we [senior John Kratzke and I] did the legwork and

Q: How did you get the team on sponsor so we walked into Colonial Sports and said we needed backing. They had only been open for three days, but they agreed. In the beginning, it was an ongoing battle for us to convince people we could do it for real and that there was a real interest. It was a battle to convince Denny Byrne [head of club sports for the College] that a lot of kids were in the same time-constraint situation and that is [team baseball] would be a great

Q: What does your team look like this year? A: We had about 15 core people play last year. The policy was who-ever came could play.

This year, we had 57 people show up for the first practice, which was really exciting. We have a girl named Lauren Jefferson playing on the team this year who is ing on the team this year who is thinking of trying out for the Sil-ver Bullets [women's professional team]. She came up to me on Ac-tivities Night and asked me if girls were allowed to play. I told her

Q: What kind of support has the team received from the Col-

A: The school's policy is that they do not fund first year clubs. The budget is yet to come out for my first love. It's the one thing I can say I'm really good at. It's a great way of getting rid of stress. I know I had a hard time my freshman year. It is a good way for the other guys to relieve some stress as well.

Q: How are games scheduled?

A: We play at home at Mid-County Park [in Williamsburg]. Most of our games, or nine out of ten Igames], are on the weekend.

We usually get girlfriends and parents at the games. We'd love to see more of the community. Besides the varsity team, it's a great showcase of talent. Look for a schedule in the spring at the end of

Q: What is your position on the

A: I'm the coach as well as player. It's actually easier to coach from the field because it's easier to see and understand what's going

But the coach-player is in a sen sitive position. I'm being very care ful about picking my successor. Q: Is baseball a part of you reate a powerhouse baseball tea ke my high school coach did.

I want to teach history in a co lege, higher-level manner to be abl to help kids get into college throug learning as well as athletics.

Variety Calendar

Saturday September 30

LOVE: PBK STYLE. Join W&M Theater at 8pm in the Studio Theater at PBK Hall for its performance of Fool for Love. The best thing about this play may be that

EVERYBODY DANCENOW. The Asian Student Union invites you to its Club ASU dance party tonight at 9pm in the UC Café. This event is free. Make sure to wear some mad cool threads so you can bust a phat move out on O'MERIDIAN. Everyone's favorite student-run coffee house, the Meridian, is having an Irish Session tonight at 10pm. Anyone interested in playing Irish folk music is invited to show up with his or her instrument and jam with the other random folks who show up.

ANDRE THE GIANT, R.I.P. Come pay tribute to one of the finest actors and wrestlers ever. Tonight at 11:15pm at the Williamsburg Theatre, watch The Princess Bride, a very silly movie, which everyone has seen except for Mark, who feels obligated to go and see it. After all, you have to conform and have common experiences and stuff.

Sunday

October 1

AWFUL OYSTERS ROAST ARTHUR. Uh. . . wait. That's not it. We meant to say that today from noon until 7pm, you can catch Awful Arthur's Oyster Roast in historic Shockoe Bottom in Richmond. If you think that's a mouthful, then check out the bands that are playing: Juliana Hatfield, John Doe, Fighting Gravity, and Shannon Worrell. Yes, that's right. The female Dave Matthews is back. If you're still interested in going to this bash, call 1-800-594-TIXX for tickets.

Monday October 2

I GOT YOUR GIANT TREA-SURE RIGHT HERE. The gutter-minded folks down in the bowels of Swem at the Zollinger Museum present an exhibit entrated Folios." On display are a variety of manuscripts and rare books representing five centu-ries of book making. But hurry up, because today is the last day of the exhibit, and we know that you don't want to miss this one,

Tuesday

October 3

THE VARSITY SPORT OF THE MIND. It isn't fencing or wrestling. It's College Bowl, not to be confused with Tidy Bowl, the varsity sport of the toilet. Today is the last day for teams to sign up at the UC Information Desk. So get three other brainboxes together and start training because only one team will get to go to the intercollegiate level.

PLAY IT AGAIN, SAM. It's kind of ironic. This line is never actually spoken in the classic Humphrey Bogart film Casablanca, which UCAB shows tonight in the UC Auditorium at Wednesday October 4

FIELD HOCKEY VS. UVA. Come out and watch Tribe field hockey unhorse the Cavaliers of UVa. The game is at 4pm at Barksdale Field, so you'll probably see it on your way to class.

STRAIGHT OUTTA DELHI. The Department of Music's Ewell Taranath and Samir Chatterjee, two Indian musicians, who are said to be among the foremost performers of raga, a genre of Hindustani music. The concert is at 8pm this evening in Ewell Recital Hall, and is free to students.

BETTER LOCK UP YOUR CORPSES. And what about those skeletons in your closet? Tonight at 9pm, the Graverobbers, a band reported to sound like REM, come to the UC Café to steal our dear departed away from us. The sponsors of this desecration are our unholy friends at UCAB, who are charging $2 for the show.

Thursday

October 5

IT'S NEVER TOO EARLY TO PLANAHEAD. You'd better start looking for a summer job. If you wait until the last minute and don't get one, don't come whining to us, wuss. Maybe the Office of Career Services can help you. They're having a seminar on "Locating Internships and Summer Jobs" today at 4pm in Blow 311.

Friday

October 6

HAVE A SUPERPHAT PHALL BREAK. Go home, fools. It's time to relax. Ignore those four twenty-page papers you have hanging over your head for a few days. Catch up on your sleep or

-Compiled by Abe Delnore

springy teens Spring brings young juniors to life with parties, sports and other teenage

(VARIETY: WE DON'T DO "SPRINGY")

fun times. And we know just how to fill her Spring wardrobe! Stop in today.

Licensed William and Mary Merchandise

Serving Williamshurg and The College of William and Mary since 1920

Duke of Gloucester Street (2 doors from the Williamsburg Theatre)

100% Cotton White Oval William and Mary Design Tee Shirt REGULAR $14.95 SPECIAL $8.95 September 29 - October 5

Students, Faculty, and Staff

When you care enough to send the very best receive a 20% discount on all non-sale William and Mary licensed and Hallmark merchandise with a valid I.D.

We are the closest Hallmark dealer to Campus!

SHOEBOX GREETINGS

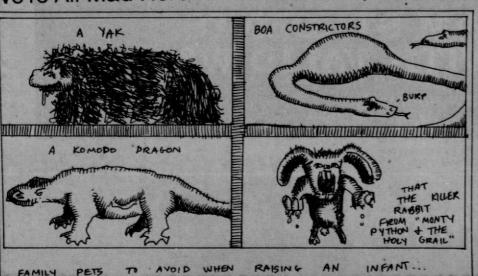

Licensed William and Mary Merchandise

We're All Mad Here

FAMILY PETS

By Josh Schendel

Tommy Hawk

By Chris Daily

Hangin' In There

By Christopher Reiger

Magri

Continued from Page 7

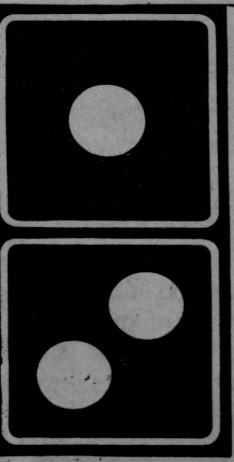

and the one he attended in 1971.

"I am amazed by the participa-tion, interest, and enthusiasm levels here," Magri said. "All kinds of students take philosophy and religion courses as electives. I would recommend these courses for anyone, because they are important for human development."

"The school has not changed greatly since I studied here," he said. "I think it's the history that "The school has not changed greatly since I studied here," he said. "I think it's the history that the level of religious sophistication and involvement shown by today's selves for their involvement in the study and practice of religion.

"It's not a continuation of the parents' religion necessarily," he said. "Students here have their own journey. It's a sign of a healthy reli-giosity. What I hope to do is to help students that are engaged in that quest by providing a base from which new ideas can be tested."

LARGE 1 TOPPING REGULAR OR THIN CRUST

(CAMPUS ONLY)

REFUL DEAD HUNDRED YEAR HALL FRANKFURT, GERMANY $ 16.95 APRIL 26, 1972 2-CD'S

AVAILABLE TUESDAY - SEPT. 26th

Hundred Year Hall, the third release from the VAULT is the live chronicle of the Dead's classic show at the century-old Jahrhundert Hall in Frankfurt Germany which was a highpoint of their legendary Europe '72 tour. This 2 CD set, Re-Mastered from the original tapes is Specially Priced for a limitted time only !!

Williamsburg Shopping Center

14 THE FLAT HAT Friday, September 29, 1995

CAMPUS SHOP

OFFICIALLY LICENSED W&M APPAREL & GIFTS

20% OFF FOR W&M STUDENTS, FACULTY AND STAFF WITH VALID W&M I.D.

(excluding weekly special) sale items excluded

STUDENT SPECIALS

100% COTTON T-SHIRT

REGULAR $14.95 SPECIAL $7.95

SEPT. 29-OCT.

Sophomore Leighanne Wright of the W&M Riding team shows off this week's special.

Annie Mitchell, president of ΦM, receives a $25 incentive check from the Campus Shop. ΦM bought over $250 worth of Greek merchandise during the month of August.

FULL SERVICE GREEK SHOP

- Custom Clothing Decals
 - l'addles Glassware
- Gift Items Special Orders
 - · Jewelry

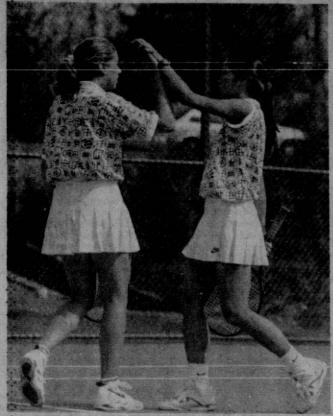

letter turn around time in 3-4 days

New patterns available, adding more soon!

CAMPUS

425 Prince George Street Open Everyday 9 AM - 9 PM 229-4301

Sports

earned her way to the round of four

by eliminating Mary Beth Laing (Richmond) and Jennifer Hayes (Minnesota). Nikolaus beat Sones to win a spot in the finals against O, who dominated her half of the Orouted Thea Ivanisevic, a highly egarded freshman from Maryland and niece of Goran Ivanisevic, 6-0,

6-1. O also crushed Cornell's Olga

Itshoki, a nationally ranked player last year, 6-4, 6-0. In the finals,

Nikolaus came from behind for a 1-6, 6-1, 6-1 victory over her team-

"It's always tough playing your own teammates," Kalbas said.

Caltour and Toro were the Tribe

on over Sofia Hiort (VCU) and

participants in Flight B. Caltoum

Robyn Gurney (North Carolina) in the first two rounds. In the semifinals, Caltoum ran into trouble in the form of Alice Rangsithienchai of Minnesota, falling 6-1, 7-6. Toro, a freshman competing in her first collegiate meet, met little opposition on her way to the finals. Against Rangsithienchai, Toro fought her way to a 7-5, 6-3 victory.

"[Toro] has been playing really well this whole fall," Kalbas said. "I was pleased to see her transfer it into matches. That'll add a lot of depth to our lineup."

Flight C featured another all-

W&M final, as Tsaggaris and Shawn

Johanna Sones and Michelle O did plenty of celebrating this weekend. Tennis captures title at tourney

By John Encarnacion Elat Hat Opinions Editor

With the most successful season in program history fresh in their minds, the women's tennis team has the tall order of replicating and surpassing its past achievements. As the results of last weekend's iennis

enstrated, the Tribe is prepared to erase and exceed all previous marks.

W&M cruised through the tournament, claiming three out of four singles flights and taking both doubles competitions. It narrowly missed sweeping all six flights for the second consecutive year.

"I was real pleased with the re ults," head coach Brian Kalbassaid. "Going into a first tournament, you don't know what to expect."

Lauren Nikolaus, Tari Ann Toro, and Laura Tsaggaris all triumphed in the top three flights respectively, while the teams of Johanna Sones/ Michelle O and Toro/Christine Caltoum picked up the doubles championships.

The Tribe's dominance was so prevalent that in Flight A, three was players captured the top three spots.

Nikolaus, an All-American last year, easily defeated Cornell's Mo rtsch and North Carolina's J.C.

Arrowsmith were victorious in early round play. Neither player dropped a set until the finals when

See TRIBE, Page 16

and has now been named to the All- so we knew it would be a strong

The women faced Western Ken-

Westruggled, but we still won," Hill said. "Better to win ugly than

Amberg paved the way for the Tribe with 13 kills and a .346 kill percentage and also served up 3 of

with a .333 kill percentage, and roughed up Western Kentucky for a total of 52 kills.

Football tames Wildcats, 39-0

Laycock earns 100th win with second shutout

By Brett Tobin Flat Hat Sports Editor

Although the New Hampshire Wildcats are the defending conference champions, they sure didn't look like it as they stood on the receiving end of a 39-0 thrashing courtesy of W&M last Saturday af-

Football

The 18th-ranked Tribe (2-2, 2-1 Yankee) used a stifling defensive performance to post its second straight shutout, earning head coach Jimmye Laycock his 100th career win. The game marked the first time since 1948 that W&M recorded back-to-back blankings.

"Now that I've reached 100 wins I'm going to enjoy the thought of it," Laycock said. "A fot of assistant coaches and players are responsible for the achievement, and I share it

The Tribe defense forced six turnovers to lead the way past UNH. Sophomore cornerback Ron Harrison recorded two interceptions in the first half, both of which halted Wildcat drives that had come inside the Tribe 40-yard line.

Tribe defensive standouts Pete Coyne, Melvin Griffin and Jim Simpkins take a well-deserved water break.

Senior co-captain and defensive end Jim Simpkins earned Yankee Conference Defensive Player of the Week honors for his performance. Simpkins recorded two sacks, batted down a pass, and made three solo tackles. In the third quarter the Tribe senior intercepted a pass and returned it 23 yards for a score to put the game out of reach, 27-0.

"Defensively we forced the action and made things happen," Laycock said. "We knew going in that they had a solid defense so it would be hard for us to drive the ball a long way. Fortunately we didn't have to because we got some

The Tribe offense, meanwhile, performed solidly, using a balanced attack to give themselves some breathing room early. Senior quar-terback Matt Byrne found wideout Josh Whipple open for an 80-yard touchdown strike early in the first quarter to get the Tribe on the board. Overall Byrne threw for 140 yards

See W&M, Page 17

Men prepared to take on Keydets

Flat Hat Sports Editor

For the past few years the William and Mary-VMI game has amounted to little more than a brief interruption of the Tribe tailgate parties. W&M has for the most part ended the game by halftime in re-

Gameday

45-7 pasting of the Keydets.

This year may be different, though, as VMI has already accumulated more wins and more points in its first four games than it did in all of last season. The two teams sport identical records and VMI is undefeated at home thus far.

"I've been very impressed with what I've seen from them so far," Laycock said. "They look to be much Leading the Keydet attack is run-ning back Thomas Haskins, who ran for 127 yards against the Tribe last season while scoring its only in I-AA," Laycock said. "I'm very limiting opponents to just 152 rushing yards per game. W&M must continue its solid play tomorrow against Haskins.

"We have to make sure to wrap him up because he's an elusive back," Laycock said. "He has great vision and cut-back skills."

VMI quarterback Al Lester has also shown great improvement over last year. Against Furman last week, Lester threw for 235 yards on 17 of 32 passing in a losing effort. "They've expanded a little bit offensively," Laycock said. "Their quarterback's playing with more confidence than last year and they're mixing it up some more. ey're not turning it

VMI is averaging almost 35 points a game and is plus 5 in turnover margin. The line, meanwhile, has

However, the Keydets defer has proven to be a bit porous. VMI has allowed an average of 40 points and over 220 yards rushing per game. A weak rush defense si uble for opponents when facing W&M this year, and if the Tribe can exploit that, its success against the Keydets should continue.

#18 William & Mary Virginia Military

Tribe

Keydets

Saturday, Sept. 30 1:30 pm Alumni Memorial Field

Lexington, VA

Jimmye Laycock

Coach:

OB: Matt Byrne Comp. Yds. Td. Bill Stewart

OB: Al Lester Comp. Yds. Td.

RB: Derek Fitzgerald

RB: Thomas Haskins

Att. Net. Avg. 69 409 5.9

W&M leads 37-33-2 including a 45-7 victory last year at Zable. The Tribe has taken nine in a row from VMI.

The Tribe defense is simply too good to give up 35 points to VMI no matter how much it has improved, and if W&M can take advantage of VMI's suspect defense, it should be all Tribe.

"They know us and we know Griffin said, "so we just have to go out and perform because everybody

Volleyball captures second Invite

By Toni Fitzgerald Flat Hat Asst. Sports Editor

The W&M volleyball team (5-7) won its second tournament in a row this past weekend, defeating Virginia Tech, Western Kentucky and Radford to capture the title at the Virginia Tech Invitational.

Volleyball

so sure that we had a good team that when we were 0-6, I thought I was crazy. I didn't know what was soing on," head coach Debbie Hill laid. "Going into the tourney I thought it was possible we'd win, but I didn't expect it. When you that 0-6, you don't expect anything." "The win was nice because I was

Senior Julie Amberg won the Tournament team in three of the Tribe's four tournaments.

"Julie played very, very well. She's been doing it all season," Hill

Junior Kim Ramsey and sophomore Natalie Kamper also made the All-Tournament squad. Ramsey finished the weekend with 40 kills and averaged better than a .250 kill percentage in two of the matches, vhile Kamper picked up 37 kills despite playing just one game against Radford.

against Radford.

The Tribe squared off against Virginia Tech on Friday, coming away with the 12-15, 15-9, 17-15, 15-10 victory in its closest game of the

"This was our biggest match and we played very well," Hill said. "Tech was coming off a win over George Washington, which is one of the best teams on the East Coast.

The All-Tournament selections led a solid team effort, Kamper boasting 11 digs and a season high 23 kills, Amberg contributing 16 kills with a 429 kill percentage and Ramsey registering 15 kills and 11

The team ended with 91 kills and a .238 kill percentage, one of its best totals of the year.

Freshman Christy Collison posted a season-high 57 assists, all out 10 of the team's total, and 9

Of the team's 66 digs, senior Carley Conley recorded 14, finish-ing with 29 for the weekend. "We've had games where a few players did well, but [against Tech] it was a night where finally every-one played well," Hill said. "I was very satisfied."

tucky the next morning, scraping together a 15-11, 15-13, 15-10 win.

Ramsey picked up 12 kills and 4 aces, while Kamper notched 11 kills, one more than sophomore Jill Hannah, who recorded a 350 kill a total of 52 kills.

"We played down to Western Kentucky," Hill said. "We experimented with the lineup which gave a chance for some people to play who hadn't yet, and that was great."
See VBALL, Page 17

TRIBE AT HOME SEPT. 30- MEN'S SOCCER VS UNC WILMINGTON OCT. 4-FIELD HOCKEY VS VIRGINIA em, Busch Field OCT. 4- MEN'S SOCCER VA EAST CAROLINA OCT. 7- POOTBALL vs RHODE ISLAND pm, Zable Stadio

Tribe

Tsaggaris, another freshman, edged

Maya Klavora looked to continue the Tribe win streak in Flight D as well. After winning easily in the first two rounds, Klavora fell to Richmond's Lindsay Woodworth. However, Klavora, along with Sones in Flight A and Caltoum in Flight C, battled back to claim third place in her bracket.

W&M's success did not end in singles play as the Tribe won both doubles flights with relative ease. Due to inclement weather, teams played pro-set doubles, where matches are decided by the first team to eight wins.

The team of Sones and O, currently ranked eight in the nation, dominated the Flight A tournament, yielding only nine games in three matches against teams from North Carolina, Richmond, and Minnesota. Nikolaus, a quarterfinalist in last year's NCAA doubles tournament, teamed with Tsaggaris to win the first two rounds before falling to their Minnesota opponents. Kalbas said that despite this loss, Nikolaus and Tsaggaris would remain a doubles combination for

In Flight B, Toro and Caltoum, with the help of a bye and a default, advanced to the finals with only one win. Regardless of the lack of competition, Toro and Caltoum easily outplayed their Minnesota opponents Alice Han and Hayes, en route to an 8-4 decision.

This week, Nikolaus, Sones and O traveled to Baltimore for the National Clay Court Championships. Nikolaus qualified for the main draw of singles with her status as one of the top 28 players in the Sones and O, in addition to taking part in doubles, competed in the singles qualifying rounds in an attempt to secure berths for the main draw. In the first round on Wednes-day, Sones defeated Caroline Hora of Miami, 6-1, 6-2, before falling to to Estelle Gevers of South Alabama. O continued her stellar play by sweeping four matches against Taryn Martin (Tulsa), Blair Sutton (North Carolin State), Cindy Summers (South Alabama) and Sarah Pritchard (Tennessee), the top seed of the qualifying round, and earning a spot in the main draw. Doubles also commenced yesterday and Nikolaus sees her first action of the tournament today.

"I was really happy and sur-prised. It made me realize I have some potential and I'm looking towards the future," Stemphoski said.

Next week the top seven will travel to Notre Dame for the biggest meet of the season thus far.

Alabama, Wake Forest, UVa, and

Notre Dame will provide the stron-

"Notre Dame will be a high qual-

Many of the other members of the team will compete in the Norfolk State Invitational at Mt.

ity meet. It will provide us with the test to see whether we are a great team or just a good one," Van

Flat Hat Sports Editor

Karate takes top sparring honors

Last weekend, four members of the William and Mary Shotokan Karate Club represented the Col-lege at the United States National Shotokan Karate Championship in Santa Rosa, California.

Club Sport

Damon Carroll, Norihito Kodama, Constantine Scordalakes, and Trevor Atwood, all seniors at the College, participated in several events in both the collegiate and adult levels of the championships, winning first place in national collegiate team kumite (sparr.ng) and third in collegiate team kata (forms).

Throughout the regular school year, the team participates in several regional collegiate tournaments against schools such as Temple, Johns Hopkins, and West Chester.

This past year, the team defeated all school teams from the Southern district of the East Coast region and then beat Brown University from the Northern District to gain the East Coast Regional title. This title earned the W&M team the honor of representing the entire East Coast at the Championships in Califor-

In addition to the National Team Sparring title, the team members did very well in individual events. Kodama made an excellent showing, fighting a very close match in the collegiate finals to earn second place. In adult kumite, Carroll and Kodama passed through several rounds of eliminations to the quarterfinals before being eliminated by more seasoned competi-

This tournament is the most prestigious martial arts event in the country. Until now, W&M has been virtually unknown in karate circles

"The Temple team always does well-they were last year's cham- tributed to this article pions. We came from nowhere and beat them," Carroll said.

However, tournament competi-tion is not the primary focus of the William and Mary club.

"Tournaments give us a chance to test out our techniques under pressure and to train interactively with students from other dojos, but the ultimate emphasis of our train-ing is self-development," Carroll

"The essence of karate is neith fighting nor sport," Atwood said. "Karate is an art form, a means through which the student learns and practices principles of charac-ter and action which are intended to be applied to real life. We train not only to defend ourselves, but also to become better people."

"Karate is a life-long activity." Carroll said, "and as in other facets of our life, we must learn to face the experience of both success and defeat and be able to change and improve in response. Tournaments are just one example of this."

The William and Mary team also competed well in the Goodwill Tournament held at East Coast Fall Campoutside Philadelphia on Sept. 9-10. Carroll placed first in black belt kumite. Atwood took first in brown belt kumite and second in brown belt kata, and the team placed second in kumite. Carroll, odama, and Scordalakes are all black belts, while Atwood will be testing for his black belt in October. The William and Mary club trains under Sensei Steve Pohle, a 4th dan instructor from Newport News. Tests and clinics are administered twice a semester by Sensei Okazaki, 8th dan and head of the International Shotokan Karate Federation The club meets from 6 to 8pm, Mondays at the Rec. Center racquetball courts and Thursdays in the fencing room in the basement of William and Mary Hall. All are invited to come train.

- Club member Trevor Atwood con-

W&M runs to second place at Mason

By Anthony Critelli

This past Saturday the women's Morven Park Invitational in Leesburg. The Tribe finished with 87 points second to a powerful UVa

"I thought we raced really well. I was glad to see the whole team compete. We were much closer to UVa this week, which is a step in the right direction," Coach Pat Van

Senior Barb Fallon once again led the Tribe, finishing in eighth place with a time of 18:35 for 5000 meters. The other four scorers raced together most of the way, finishing in a tight pack with only 12 seconds separating them, Becky Patten in 12th, Claire Torchia 13th, Becky Flowers 14th, and Sally Michael

"Our two through six runners switched positions throughout the race. They worked real well with each other in order to run a great peted in her first race of the season after recovering from an injury. She was consistently the Tribe's third runner last year. Van Rossum hopes that as she gets back into shape and gets some race experience, she will return to her prior level and further improve the team.

With an eye towards the future. Van Rossum entered many of his younger runners in the separate open race. Freshman Amy Stemphoski posted her first collegiate victory with a time of 20:12. Freshmen Jaime Cornish and Amy Morris completed the 1-2-3 sweep ssum said.

Harriers nipped by Cavaliers at Invite

By Jennie Daley

Many had high hopes for this years men's cross country season and so far there have been no disappointments. In fact, the team has done well enough to have moved up in the national rankings from 20th to 19th.

The team's strong performance at the George Mason Invitational helped contribute to the change in rank. Running only two of its top nine runners, William and Mary still finished second with 55 points. UVa won, finishing with 50 points.

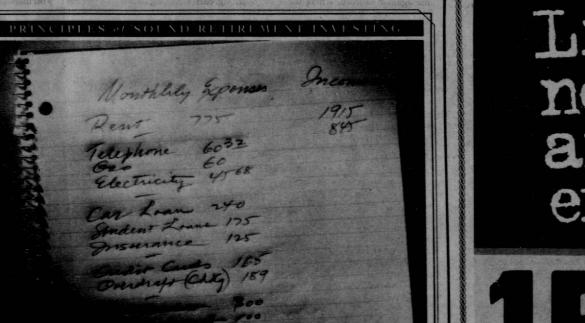

We had run really well last week at Virginia and the teams we were competing against this week were wanted to] see how they'd do without our leaders [and] they ran extremely well," head coach Walt Drenth said of the younger team

Mike Brown, a sophomore from Virginia Beach, finished third after finishing seventh at UVa. Sophomore Howard Townsend came in sixth after placing ninth in Charlottesville. The next W&M runner, Alex Gibby came in 11th.

"This was a developmental experience. Some of our younger athletes needed to compete with the pressure on them," Drenth said. "I think we're going to be good the next couple of years too because these guys are really good."

The Tribe's next meet will be the Murray-Keatinge Invitational at the University of Maine during fall break. W&M's top nine will run against, among others, Dartmouth, Boston College, Michigan, Iowa, New Hampshire and Ball State.

IRONICALLY, THE TIME TO START SAVING FOR RETIREMENT IS WHEN IT LOOKS LIKE YOU CAN LEAST AFFORD IT.

to live at least as comfortably then as you do now. And that takes planning.

By starting to save now, you can take advantage of tax deferral and give your money time to compound and grow. Consider this: Set aside just $100 each month beginning at age 30 and you can accumulate over $172,109° by the time you reach age 65. But wait ten years and you'll have to budget $229 each month to reach the same goal.

Can't afford to save for retirement?
The truth is, you can't afford not to.
Not when you realize that your retirement can last 20 to 30 years or more. You'll want

Even if you're not counting the years to retirement, you can count on TIAA-CREF to help you build the future you deserve—with flexible retirement and tax-deferred annuity plans, a diverse portfolio of invest-ment choices, and a record of personal service that spans 75 years.

Over 1.7 million people in education and research put TIAA-CREF at the top of their list for retirement planning. Why not

Call today and learn how simple it is to build a secure tomorrow when you have time and TIAA-CREF working on

Start planning your future. Call our Enrollment Hotline at 1 800 842-2888.

uring the future those who shape it."

ed to TIAA Retirement Annairies. The rate is and older to dow the power and effect of an

Like you need another excuse to get off campus.

Fearless Picks '95

For whom the Bell tolls

odically, we here at Fearless Picks like to direct our attention and or towards institutions we feel deserve recognition. As a fixture in the msburg community, and most other upstanding American commusas well, Taco Bell has provided sustenance to many a fine U.S. a. Of course we don't know exactly how many have been served by Bell because they don't self-servingly proclaim "Eight quadrillion of like some other fast food joints. Taco Bell lets its tacos do the constant and how do they are reserved to the process of the process ge grown man can have a filling meal for approximately the same a book of Elvis stamps. (Incidentally, if Taco Bell had been around is' day just imagine how big he would have gotten. The Memphis Bell outpost would have seen more traffic than the Newark airport.) soint is that Taco Bell hooks you up and we're certain the king I've recognized that.

nk about this aspect for a minute. Taco Bell is open late—real late. ne this scenario: You and your cronies have just gotten out of a phat rt. You're hungry, real hungry, and is Burger King open? No way, in't even stop at the right place. And Denny's? Come on, is the Moons My Hammy really worth the wait, not to mention the gratuity? No ou make a run for the border and you make it fast—real fast. We all stories to tell about being saved by "the Bell" when all others failed ommodate. Nothing caps a late night better than two Wild Tacos and en-layer bad boy.

ile we fully endorse the products and service at your average Bell ishment we find their marketing scheme to be lacking at best. Take, ample, the Taco Bell One-On-One Championship. This media farce haquille O'Neal against Hakeem Olajuwon in a made for television er-view basketball absurdity. The commercials for this "event" each combatant running, lifting weights, breaking backboards, etc. attempt to show how tough and competitive it will be. In the ground a voice says such things as "no double teams, no substitutes, ruses..." How about no entertainment value? That sounds like a more ate description of this litmus test for stupidity, seeking out those enough to pay money to see this. Personally we'd rather watch two friends play Dr. J vs. Larry Bird on Atari than shell out $34.99 to see ex-Mex tangle. to their issue involved is the hypocrisy of the Taco Bell advertisers. It is summer they had us believing that Shaq and The Dream were the friends, frolicking like schoolgirls while pedaling a bicycle built for simply because they had discovered and shared the double decker Now we're supposed to think they hate each other again. Was it the Taco that ended their honeymoon or something more subtle? Either some explaining needs to be done and the Taco Bell ad chumps just t cutting it. We bet these guys never even enjoyed a simple 59-cent o why should we listen to them in the first place? If they ever did go ir local Taco Bell, they'd probably order a 32-ounce drink and then ed to eat in, and everybody knows you don't do that. s week's guest picker is Alfredo Sanchez, a Spanish celebrity and a ter like ourselves. Alfredo is an avid Taco Bell fan, though we're not he really cares too much about the one-on-one championship. The

Morahan

Bulldogs

Falcons

Steelers

Buccaneers

Buckeyes Nittany Lions

ege: M@VMI

e Dame@Ohio St.

na@Northwestern ni (Ohio)@Michigan Wolverines

onsin@Penn St.

ona St.@USC

no St.@UCLA

ama@Georgia

as@Washington England@Atlanta

Diego@Pittsburgh

pa Bay@Carolina ouis@Indianapolis

inued from Page 15

of 14 passing with one touch-n and no interceptions. n and no interceptions. Inning back Derek Fitzgerald ped in 83 yards on 14 carries, ng twice. Troy Keen added 40 s and another score, marking ixth straight game in which he recorded at least one touch-

/&M

-over probably loses a bit in translation -By Chris Morahan and Brett Tobin

(42-18)

Wolverines

Cowboys

Buccaneers

"The offense isn't the best one we've ever had, but today it had doing what they're supposed to be

Patriots Steelers

(46-14)

Buckeye

Wildcats

Trojans Huskies

Bulldogs

Cowboys

Patriots

Chargers

longest of his career.

Wolverines

Guest Picker

Outpickers

1. Det. Fuhrman	36-9
2. Dixie Boy	35-10
Broadneck	35-10
4. Fat Minor Threa	t 46-14
5. Mike November	45-15

Tiger Woodz

Slowhand

23.O'Grady for

24. Guest Picker

Sheriff

Miller

(45-15)

Badgers Wildcats

Wolverines

Crimson Tide

Cowboys Patriots

Chargers

Deep Rough 33-12 8. Big Country 43-17 Little Timmy Pasta 10. Berry Garcia 42-18

The Bedwetter 31-14 12.Woodchuck 41-19 OWD RODGER

14. Doug Terpstra 40-20 Krisitin McGough The Marquis de Sade Steel Driver 30-15 18. Uncle Bob 39-21 Lunenburg Fat Bihac

29-16

Sanchez

Tribe Fighting Irish Badgers Hoosiers

Wolverines

Sun Devils

Bulldogs

Redskins

Chargers

Patriots

doing what they're supposed to be doing and doing it hard."

The Tribe now stands in fourth place in the Mid-Atlantic Division of the YanCon behind James Madison, Delaware, and Richmond. The Tribe looks ahead to a non-conference game tomorrow versus the Virginia Military Institute before returning home next weekend to face Rhode Island.

Crimson Tide

22. Salinger Melville 26-19 "I think we were a bit better, and 33-27

Tribe rebounds after loss

Squad posts back to back shutouts after falling to Loyola

By Chris Morahan Flat Hat Sports Editor

CONTRACTOR OF THE PROPERTY OF

W&M's third loss of the season against Loyola last Friday surprised a team which lost only three times in the entire 1994 22-match season. The men's soccer team (6-3, 0-1 CAA) spent little time letting that fact bother it, however, and regained composure in consecutive 4-0 disposals of Adelphi and

W&M's Friday troubles at the Old Dominion Met Life Classic began in the ninth minute of regulation when Loyola's Ari Edelman knocked the ball past Tribe goal-keeper and captain Paul Grafer after a scramble in front of the net following a server kind. The Tribe Tribe and the scramble in following a corner kick. The Tribe failed to clear and yielded a pointblank opportunity for the Grey-

"When we give away opportuni-ties like that, [Grafer] doesn't have a chance," head coach Al Albert said. "We have one of the best goalkeepers in the country, and it's a shame we haven't done better."

The game remained even despite the Greyhound lead and the Tribe maintained their intensity, producing many chances for themselves. Albert felt that the attackers created sufficient opportunities, tak-ing 13 shots, but felt that the failure to convert proved the Achilles' heel.
"We failed to capitalize on the opportunities we had to win the e," Albert said. W&M pushed forward late in the me in order to generate further offense, but the move backfired as Loyola used a quick counterattack at the 88:44 mark to go up 2-0. Sophomore Josh Quinter answered for the Tribe with 29 seconds remaining to put the Tribe on the scoreboard, but it was too little, too we didn't show it on the scoreboard," Albert said. "It was a very frustrating game."

Soccer "We were very upset with our sire, emotion and enthusiasm,"

Grafer said. Going into Sunday's match versus Adelphi, Albert made an important roster change in an attempt to increase the team's offensive night. Albert replaced slumping unior attacker Waughn Hughes with classmate Steve Jolley, and moved Hughes to the wing where his speed may be utilized more ef-fectively. The move paired high school teammates Jolley and Senior Billy Owens on the feet Billy Owens on the front 'ine and gave the offense some needed size. The change proved effective against the overmatched Adelphi team on Sunday as the Tribe lit up the Panthers for four unanswered

Sophomore Wade Barrett, seeming fully recovered from a knee injury which sidelined him earlier in the season, provided the offensive spark for the Tribe. Barrett drilled home the game winner at 28:55 and also closed the scoring with another goal in the 63rd minute.

"That was the first time that I've felt [Barrett] played like he was ca-pable," Albert said. "He was very energetic and did a great job in the midfield."

Owens scored an important goal for the Green and Gold just one minute before halftime, making the lead 2-0. Sophomore David McGowan scored his first goal of the season on a head ball, accounting for the Tribe's other goal of the afternoon. Barrett, Owens, and senior Chris Scrofani all made the. All-Tournament team, while ODU took the team title.

"I think we were pleased that we did not allow a soft early goal, like we have in some games," Albert said of the team's first shutout of

W&M returned to Busch Field on Wednesday, hoping to build some momentum before reaching the toughest stretch of the schedule, which will feature matches with Duke, N.C. State, and James Madison. The team delivered an exciting performance against a Georgetown team which returned seven starters from last year's NCAA qualifying

The Tribe used size to its advan-The Tribe used size to its advan-tage, scoring three of the four goals on headers. Jolley opened the scor-ing with his first goal of the season, and first goal at his new position. He perfectly converted a David McGowan corner kick with his head at the 17:11 mark.

nario for the next goal in the 34th minute, as Jolley looped a short cross over the defender's head to senior Greg Richards, who headed the ball from short range past the defenseless Georgetown keeper.

"By moving [Jolley] to forward, it gives us another dimension we haven't had," Albert said.

Quinter and Jolley added further insurance with second-half goals which came amidst many other quality offensive chances, many of those created by Hughes on the wing.

The new lineup, which also features Richards at midfield instead of defense, looked sharp, and Albert eels that this move may be just what the underachieving Tribe needed. The two shutouts also to indicate that the defense has finally settled.

"It's worked for two games," Albert said, "we'll try to keep it

"I think it's important that we try to get consistency in the defense, Grafer said.

this weekend at home against UNC-Wilmington. Action begins tomorrow night at 7:30 at Busch Field.

"There is no question that every league match is big," Albert said.

VBall

Continued from Page 15

came against Radford, where the team rebounded from a close third ior Jennifer Orin contributed 11 kills and 8 digs, as Collison and junior Anne Ashcraft combined for 52 of the Tribe's 56 assists. Ramsey and Hannah also fin-ished strong, each knocking down

In the final game, W&M domi-nated not only the scoring but the kills column, recording only one

"It was a great weekend," Hill said. "We had lots of fans and parents who made the trip and we had a beauty against Tech. It was very

The team is off this weekend, but returns to action during fall break, when it makes its annual trip to the

"The break comes at a good time for us," Hill said.

The Green and Gold's final game game to finish with a bang for the 15-7, 15-7, 17-15, 15-1 triumph. Amberg closed out the weekend in proper MVP style, posting 15 kills, 423 kill percentage and 4 aces.

error with a .435 kill percentage.

OUTPICK THE PICKERS

Week six: Last week everyone picked up the free win because of the Michigan St./ Purdue tie; unfortunately, it kinda got cancelled out by the Va.Tech upset. This week remember to get those coupons in before you leave for fall break.

College: Rhode Island @ W&M Notre Dame @ Washington Va. Tech @ Navy Ohio St. @ Penn St. USC @ California

Miami @ Florida St. Kansas @ Colorado Virginia @ North Carolina Maryland @ Wake Forest Northwestern @ Michigan

Pro: Green Bay @ Dallas Denver @ New England Cleveland @ Detroit Indianapolis @ Miami Seattle @ Oakland

Wouldn't Your Ad Look Good Here!!

good balance and a consistency that produced some big plays," Laycock

In another highlight, sophomore place-kicker Brian Shallcross connected on a 49-yard field goal, the

"I think we're playing with a lot of confidence and we're playing

The Ad Deadline is Tuesday at 12 NOON the week of the issue for local ads and Monday at 12 NOON for national ads.

Call the ads department for information on pricing. Flat Hat Ad Department (804)221-3283

Cajun Cooking

time: Mondays 7:00 to 9:00pm

length: 5 weeks - starts October 16th

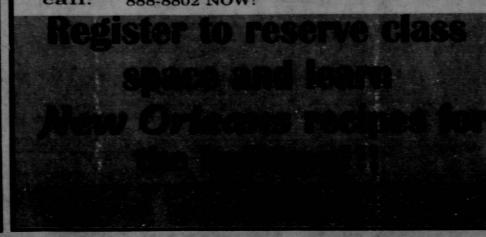

Ascension of Our Lord Byzantine Catholic Church place:

located between Bassett's and Uno's in Williamsburg

$50 ($45 Senior Citizens) fee:

$20 material fee payable to instructor

888-8802 NOW! call:

Soccer notches 2-1 mark

By Scott Borders Flat Hat Asst. Sports Editor

The W&M women's soccer team, ranked 14th in the nation with a record of 7-2-1, dropped a nailbiter to 12th-ranked Maryland 0-1 last Friday, but rebounded to crush UNC-Wilmington 10-0 on Sunday and inch past American 1-0 on Wednesday.

In the defensively dominated struggleagainst Maryland, the only goal came late in the second half. Maryland clinched the win when Terrapin forward Keri Sarver broke free past two defenders at the top of the penalty area and managed a shot that crept just inside the far

The Tribe took only 9 shots on goal, while Maryland recorded 18 total shots against junior goalkeeper Karen Wake. Wake tallied five saves in the losing effort.

"[The Maryland game] was a very tough game," head coach John Daly said. "It could have gone either way. We had some good chances and we didn't take them. Maryland really only had one good chance, and they took advantage of it."

Sunday's game against UNC-W was over soon after the opening kick. W&M administered a 10-0 pounding to the Seahawks, scoring a total of 7 goals within the first 20 minutes. Senior All-American Natalie Neaton completed a hat trick in the first seven minutes.

Neaton's first goal came just two minutes into the game, when she nailed the one-timer in front of the goal off a feed by sophomore Whitney Cali. For her second goal, Freshman Mary Totman collected a goal and an assist against UNC-W.

Neaton scored on the put-back off a rebounded shot taken by junior Erica Walsh. Neaton finished the hat trick with a header off a corner kick taken by freshman Mary

The offensive frenzy continued for the Tribe as Cali and Totman collected goals on two nice assists from sophomore Stephanie Loehr. Cali and Neaton contributed two more scores to the onslaught before the twenty minute mark, after which Daly pulled the starters, giving some younger players game time. The half ended with the score

In the second half, freshman Kara Cristaldi widened the lead with her first collegiate goal, booting in a corner kick taken by junior Caroline

Redshirt freshman Catherine Merril also notched her first collegiate career goal, sending a perectly placed corner kick around the near post and over the Seahawk's netminder. Merril later closed the scorebook with a second goal on as many shots, drilling a shot off of a cross by Loehr.

"We scored very early and took control of the game, which was good," Daly said. "It gave us a chance for younger players to get some work.

The Green & Gold offense produced 27 shots on net, while the defense allowed UNC-W only 5

Thanks to You, Family Weekend 1995 Was a Success!

The Division of Student Affairs extends much appreciation to all of the individuals who made Family Weekend a rewarding and enjoyable weekend for families and guests.

We would especially like to recognize the following individuals and groups for their time, effort, and support:

Rebecca Helms and Tameka Collier, Student Co-Chairs, Family Weekend Mark McLaughlin and Jason Zazzaro, Lantern Tour Coordinators Wren Guides and Admissions Tour Guides Edgar Williams, Conductor, and the W&M Orchestra

Frank Lendrim, Director, the W&M Choir and Botetourt Chamber Singers

Laura Rexroth, Conductor, and the W&M Concert Band

William and Mary SINGS! Performers

The Stairwells, Reveille, The Christopher Wren Singers, Doubletake, tonations, Accidentals, Ebony Expressions, and Gentlemen of the College

Featured Faculty Lecturers

Jim Axtell, Margaret Saha, John McGlennon, Todd Mooradian, Barbara King, Frank Lendrim

Freshman Parents Panel Presenters

Carol Disque, Deb Boykin, Ken Smith, Ed Cowell, Kathie Green, Randy Coleman, Greg Perry, Mary Glisan, Mary Crozier

Student Intern/Research Panel
Robert Wone '96, Tara Adams '96, Greg Werkheiser '96, Diane Stocks '96

Faculty and Administrative Staff members who attended Friday's Reception Faculty members who opened their Friday classes to Families and Guests Student Athletes, the Athletic Department, and Recreational Sports Residence Hall and Student Organizations who sponsored receptions The Parents Steering Committee

President and Mrs. Timothy J. Sullivan Marriott Catering Staff

William and Mary Hall Staff

ns, Accidentals, Ebony Expres shots. Wake snagged three saves and rookie goalkeeper Kelly Hostetler recorded her first two collegiate saves to hold on to the

On Wednesday, W&M dominated the action against American but could only convert on one scor-ing chance. The lone score came midway through the second half when junior All-American Ann Cook intercepted an Eagle pass and broke toward the goal. Cook launched a lob from 25 yards out that passed just under the cross bar and out of reach of the keeper. The game featured solid offensive pressure by the Tribe and some great saves by both squads' goal-keepers. W&M mustered a total of 25 shots, while only allowing 5. Wake recorded four saves to earn her fourth shutout of the season.

Now at the halfway point of the season, the Tribe's future is still uncertain. According to Daly, the team must either finish first or second in the region, or defeat UNC or Duke, to secure a NCAA playoff

"We need to instill some confidence and consistency in our play,"

W&M takes on rival Virginia, currently ranked tenth, this Sunday in Charlottesville. With a victory over UVa, the Tribe could move one step closer to an NCAA playoff

Hockey falls to Madison

Tribe upends Maine but champion Dukes too formidable

By Andrew Polly

The 20th-ranked women's field hockey team split its road trip in Harrisonburg as it edged out Maine, 1-0, before it reached the end of its five game winning streak against the 2nd-ranked and defending national champion James Madison

On Friday against Maine (5-4), the Tribe needed an entire half in order to adjust to the turf on JMU's home field. Once it adjusted to the terrain, the Tribe (6-2, 1-1 CAA) was able to take advantage of their sharp passing skills as they opened up the field and created some scorng opportunities

Both teams were strong on defense and denied each other numerous scoring opportunities. Tribe goalkeeper Jenn Rinella made five strong saves and came up big on a number of one on one breakaways. The Tribe offense accumulated only ten shots, a majority of which, including the gamewinner, came off of penalty corners. CAA scoring leader sophomore Saskia Bensdorp tallied her eighteenth goal of the season with a smash into the back of the cage, which left Maine's goalseeper frozen and helpless.

Less than 24 hours later, the Tribe took the field again against the 2ndranked Dukes. Ten minutes into the game James Madison midfielder Carole Thate, a member of the Netherlands Olympic team, took a pass off of a penalty corner and hammered the ball into the cage.

"We weren't used to the grain on the turf," head coach Peel Hawthorne said. "In one direction.

Field Hockey

the ball rolled very smooth, while in the other direction, the ball took a lot of odd bounces and hops. Maine plays on grass, so they were used to the conditions. Luckily, they couldn't take advantage of our mis

"It was a beautiful play on their part," Hawthorne said. "The ball had such a quick lift on it, that it was nearly impossible to stop."

The first half was mainly con trolled by JMU, who worked the ball quickly, looking for ways to penetrate the Tribe defense. JMU took advantage of a Tribe break-down when Thate broke free just before the end of the first half, Rinella came out to decrease the angle of the goal, and Thate calmly passed the ball across the goal to Kelly McDonald, making the score

During the second half, the Tribe started to mount a comeback. Senior Amy Giello made a dazzling stick save, which put her one save away from the school record. Junior midfielder Lisa DeJong and sophmore Vicki Saunders combined on a few runs down the field that almost developed into shots on goal.

At one point, the Tribe took four straight corners and forced JMU to take a timeout to regroup. Bensdorp, who had been shut down for the entire first half, used her dribbling skills to juke defenders and open up the field for her team-mates, but the Tribe could not put the ball in the cage.

"We had them on the edge for a while," Hawthorne said. "Saskia did some great things while being marked with two or three defenders, but the passes that were needed to spread out their defense and open up some holes, just weren't getting completed. Still, I felt that we had a chance to win the game."

James Madison ended those hopes as Thate added her second goal of the game with less than eight minutes remaining. Thate in-tercepted a Tribe free hit and took the ball straight to the goal. Rinella came out strong and appeared to be in position to save the shot, but the ball took a bad hop and rolled under her arm as she was dropping to

"Carole is a quick player," Hawthorne said. "She uses her experience and skills to create scoring opportunities for her teammates and herself. I was impressed by our defense. Our defenders are faster than they were last year, so we were able to prevent JMU from scoring any quick transition goals."

The Tribe took on Old Dominion (4-4) in Norfolk on Wednesday before returning to Busch Field to play Virginia on Thursday Oct. 5 at 7pm, Results were not available at press

Old Dominion was ranked 4th in the nation before losing two close games last weekend and is still expected to compete with James Madison for the conference championship. Virginia was ranked in the top 10 and is looking for revenge after losing to the Tribe 2-1 last year when William and Mary scored two goals in the last four minutes of the

Golf closes season subpar

By Theresa McReynolds

The men's golf team concluded the fall portion of its season Monday and Tuesday at the Virginia State Intercollegiate Tournament. The Tribe beat Radford, Virginia Military Institute, and Hampton

University to place seventh overall.

James Madison took top honors by shooting 594. Old Dominion finished second and Virginia Com-monwealth took third. William and Mary just edged Radford, 625 to

The members of the team were dissatisfied with the results. They had hoped to beat George Mason to place sixth, but GMU, played well Golf

the second day and ended up beat-By the second day we had all lost a little of our fire," junior Alex Sleeker said. "Unfortunately our hearts really weren't into it."

Even though the team was rather disappointed in its performance, head coach Joe Agee, was not.

"They [the results] don't sound good, but now we know about where we are in the state," Agee

Out of the 60 players who comeker tied for tenth. He shot 76 the first day and 74 the second for a total of 150 strokes. Senior Scott Tiernan also put in a solid performance with a two-day total of 154.

know I could've done better

The Virginia Tournament was the third the Tribe competed in this fall. It placed fifth out of twelve at the Seton Hall Invitational, tenth out of fifteen at the Georgetown Invitational, and then seventh out of ten at the State Tournament.

The spring season is set to begin in January, and a new qualifying round is the first item on the agenda. Agee doesn't expect much of a change in the order of the top three, with Sleeker, Tiernan, and sophomore Pete Corrigan topping his roster, with the fourth, fifth and sixth spots up for grabs.

"Wehave a long way togo," Agee said. "But now we just have to take off some time and regroup in the

Despite the hard work ahead of them, the players are excited about their prospects for the spring with their first tournament at home in

"I'm going to be ready," Sleeker said. "This team just has to take on the challenge and get out there and and I let myself down," Sleeker said.

"But overall I'm pretty satisfied with how I did this fall."

think it was Phillip Michael Thomas who said to his psychic friend: "Can you tell me where my career went? I think I left it somewhere in the mid '80s.' 10B5...J0BS The FLAT hat

IS HIRING

EXPANDING BUSINESS DEPARTMENT:

Advertising Representative- Wanted to work 6-10 ours per week, soliciting and creating advertisements. pplicant should have car, be under classman (Junior, Soph., Frosh.), and enjoy speaking to members of the community. Payed on commission.

Advertising Manager- Wanted to work 8-12 hours per week. Learn entire working of Advertising in newspaper and supervise 10 people. Experience with Macintosh, desktop publishing, and spreadsheets help-ful. Hoping to hire someone willing to work for a full year. Underclassmen, please apply.

= } .

For information on these positions please call Neilosenblatt at 221-5662 or at the Flat Hat at 221-328.

EDUCATION FOR THE REAL WORLD

Graduate degree programs MA, Ph.D) in International Affairs with an emphasis on contemporary policy-relevant issues.

Area and Functional Fields:

☐ Interamerican Studies (including U.S.-Latin American Relations)

☐ European Studies ☐ Post-Soviet Studies ☐ Comparative Development☐ International Business

☐ International Economics ☐ International Health Policy ☐ International Relations

☐ International Security and Conflict

☐ Foreign Policy Analysis

Apply by February 1 assistantships and other financial aid.

North South Center

Students who are interested in Interamerican issues are particularly encouraged to apply for North-South Center Graduate Assistantships.

GRADUATE SCHOOL OF INTERNATIONAL STUDIES Admissions, Room #307 Coral Gables, FL 33124-3010 (305) 284-4173

Muscarelle Museum Staff Technology Services Staff
University Center Staff
Joe Gilley, Peter Mantey, Dr. Marty Mathes

THE MANY OTHER STUDENT VOLUNTEERS WHO GENEROUSLY AND ENTHUSIATICALLY DONATED THEIR TIME AND TALENTS FOR FAMILY WEEKEND 1995

BREKENESKENESKENESKENESKEN

Briefs

efs, classified ads, and personal nust be submitted to The Flat by 7pm Tuesday, either by e-briefs@mail.wm.edu)or on the ope on the door of The Flat Hat e. All submissions must be l, double-spaced, and include uthor's name and telephone per. Late or untyped entries will be printed. For information, e call The Flat Hat Office from 30pm on Wednesdays. Please ot contact the Briefs Editor at ssifieds must be pre-paid at tte of $.15 per word per issue. mpus Briefs should be as short ssible and include a title. Briefs r non-profit groups and infor-on only. Briefs will be edited as sary and printed as space al-Briefs in a foreign language include an English translation. nore information, call The Flat t x3281 or x3285 ted by Toni Fitzgerald and

Upcoming Events

Poetry Contest

ne National Library of Poetry is ring $24,000 in prizes to over poets in the North American n Poetry Contest. Any poet, iously published or not, can winner, and all entries have a ice to be published in an anogy. To enter, send ONE origipoem to The National Library etry, 11419 Cronridge Dr., P.O. 704-1985, Owings Mills, MD 7. Poems should be no more 20 lines and the poet's name address should be at the top of page. All entries must be postked by September 30.

omen's Self Defense

female students, faculty and members are invited to enroll asic women's self defense class. course will run for three contive Sundays beginning Oct. 29. ses will be held from 2-5pm in Campus Center Little Theater. nore information, or to register, 3183.

Play Ed Project

y Ed Project, sponsored by Al-Phi Omega, helps local early vention programs purchase ational toys and play equipt for the development or enrement of comprehensive mokills programs for developmendelayed children. This year's iamsburg-James City Schools' ht Beginnings, an early interion program serving at-risk chil-, birth to five, and their fami-Alpha Phi Omega is asking orzations and individuals to make ations at tables in the UC and ketplace, Monday thru Friday, y contacting Philip Forgit, Di-or, Play Ed Project, at 253-0662 debecca Finifter, APO liason, at tronomy Open Houses he William and Mary Physics partment will be holding obserdates: Sept. 24 at 7:30pm, Oct. 1 30pm, Oct. 22 at 7pm, Nov. 5 at pm and Nov. 19 at 5:30pm. Stuts, faculty and the general pubare invited. The open houses be held in the Observatory on third floor of Small, weather mitting. For more information, Dr. McKnight at x3521 or son Newton at 229-4278.

Presidential Meetings

resident Timothy Sullivan has erved office hours especially for themorjust to chat. These hours e been scheduled from 4-5pm the following dates: Thursday, tember 21; Wednesday, October Thursday, November 30. Indiual students or small groups may erve a ten minute appointment ough Gail Scaro, Brafferton 10, 693. (gbscar@facstaff.wm.edu).

Body Image Program on a new eight week Body Image begram designed to improve body age will begin meeting Mondays m 3:30pm to 4:45pm on Oct. 2.

The more information or to reserve a see, call x3620 and ask for Paula. Upcoming Events

Important Dates for May 1996 Degree Candidates

The Office of the University Reg-istrar requires that a Notice of Candidacy for Graduation form be filed by all seniors prior to graduation. Notice of Candidacy forms should be submitted no later than Oct. 27 for May 1996 in order to initiate the evaluation of records before the final semester. Forms will be accepted through February 15, 1996, the last date to assure publication of a student's name in the commencement program, and that graduation information will be mailed to students and their parents. Students who complete degree requirements at the end of Fall 1995 semester may participate in May graduation activities. Undergraduate students planning to graduate in August 1996 and who wish to attend the May ceremony should follow the deadlines for May 1996 candidates. All otherAugust candidates should submit a Notice of Candidacy no later than June 7, 1996. A Notice of Candidacy form must be filed in order to graduate and receive a diploma.

Food Drive

Alpha Lambda Delta and Phi Eta Sigma Honor Societies are sponsoring a food drive for a Williamsburg foodbank. Students are encouraged to donate non-perishable food items to the specially marked box in the Campus Center Lobby Sept. 25-Oct. 6. For further information, contact Dean Ferraro in the Dean of Stu-

Free Car Wash

The William and Mary Psychology Club will be holding a free car wash at the Texaco Station located on Rte. 199 and Jamestown Rd. Sat., Sept. 30 from 10am to 3pm. Dona-tions are gladly accepted. For more information, contact Cari at x5651.

Capriole Performance

Capriole of Williamsburg will perform in the upcoming Colonial Williamsburg Baroque Music Fes-tival on Saturday, Oct. 7 at 3pm and 8pm in the Great Hall of Wren. Tickets are $20, and are available by calling Colonial Williamsburg at 220-7645. Capriole will also perform on Sunday, Oct. 8 at 3pm in Chandler Recital Hall, Old Dominion University. Tickets for the concert are $5 with a student ID and are elayed children. This year's available by mail from Capriole, Ed Project benefits P.O. Box 558, Williamsburg, VA 23187. For more information or ress, call 220-1248

Internet Training

Technology Services and Swem Library will offer training session on Internet access tools on Wed Oct. 4. All sessions are open to all William and Mary faculty, staff and students; no registration required. Sessions will be held in the classroom in the ground floor of Swem at the following times: 9 am: Lynx and the World Wide Web; 10 am: Telnet and FTP; 11 am: LION; 1 pm: WAMI; and 2pm: P-mail. For more informa tion, contact Jim Rettig at jrett@swem.wm.edu or call x3058.

Career Exploration Day

The Office of Career Services is porisoring their annual Career Exoration Day Fri. Oct. 13 from 11am to 2pm in Trinkle Hall. Students are invited to ask W&M alumni about internship/externship opportuni-ties, career path options and job search strategies. Stop by the Office of Career Services, room 123 Blow Hall, for more information.

> Archaeological Fall Lecture Series

On Oct. 5 the Archaeological Institute of America, Williamsburg Chapter, will present the second lec-ture in its Fall 1995 Lecture Series. Professor Barbara Tsakirgas of Vanderbilt University will give a talk entitled "To Live as a Greek: The Ancient Greek House." The lec-ture will take place at 4 pm in Andrews Hall 101. A reception will

NAACP Meeting
The first meeting of the NAACP scheduled for Sun. Oct. 1 in the C James Room at 7:30pm.

Upcoming Events

Open Auditions

Open auditions for A.R. Gurney's lay The Dining Room will be held in PBK from 5pm to 7pm on Mon. and Tues., Oct. 2-3. "The Dining Room" calls for six actors to play 60 different characters, and will be presented Nov. 16-19. Further details and an appointment sign-up schedule are posted on the theatre's call board.

> Campus Positions

Hollaender Postdoctoral Fellowships

Recent recipients of doctoral de-grees in the life, biomedical, and environmental sciences and related disciplines are eligible to apply for the U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) Alexander Hollaender Distinguished Postdoctoral Fellowship Program. Each fellowship is served for one year and is renewable for up to one additional year. To receive information and an application packet, write to the Science/Engineering Education Division, Oak Ridge Institute for Science and Education, P.O. Box 117, Oak Ridge, TN, 37831-0117, or call (615) 576-9975. The application deadline is January

B-Ball Managers Needed The William and Mary men's basketball team needs three managers for the upcoming season. Managers will need to be available to the team beginning October 15. For more information, call Dan at x4188.

College Partnership for Kids

Did you miss the College Part-nership for Kids information session? There's still time to sign up to tutor! Slots are available in local elementary and middle schools and transportation can be arranged. For more information stop by the Stu-dent Office of Volunteer Services in room 209 of the Campus Center or call Kristen Gage at x2996. No experience necessary!

Tutors Needed

Disability Services seeks tutors in the following subject areas: Spanish (100 level), Greek (100 level), German (200level), Biology (100 & 300 level), Computer Science 151. Stop by the Dean of Students Office, 109 Campus Center, or call x2510 for further information.

Volunteer Readers

Volunteers are needed to assist blind and low-vision students on campus by recording class readings to tape. Subjects include Govern-ment, Anthropology, and Biology. Read as much or as little as your schedule permits. Stop by the Dean of Students Office, 109 Campus Cen-ter, or call x2510 for further infor-

> Religious Events

Unitarian Universalists

If you're a Unitarian Universalist, interested in becoming one or just plain curious, join Living Unitarian Universalist Principalists (LUUP) for church on Sun, Oct. 1 at 10:45 am outside PBK or at 4 pm on the main steps of the Sunken Gardens. Everyone is welcome, no matter what their religious background. For more information, contact Ann at 221-7987 or Amber at 221-7966

Baptist Worship

The Williamsburg Baptist Church elcomes students to its 11am Sunday worship at 227 Richmond Road (across from Monroe Hall).

Hillel Services

Shabbat services are performed at Temple Beth Elevery Friday evening at 7:30pm and every Saturday at 10 am. Torah study for adults and children is every Sunday from 11am-1215pm. For more information call 229-8795.

Religious Events

Campus Masses

The Catholic Campus Ministry of-fers mass each Sunday at 10:30am in Rogers 100 and 5pm in St. Bede's Parish Center, just beyond Zable Stadium. Mass is also offered in the Wren Chapel at 7pm on Tuesdays and 12:45pm on Thursdays as well as in St. Bede's Church daily at 9am. Call Father Tom (220-9375) or

Toby Style (221-4421) for more in-

Knights of Columbus

The Knights of Columbus are forming a council on campus. All Catholic men who are faculty, students, or staff are welcome to join. For more information call Andrew Foos at 564-9529.

BSU Events

Ever tried the BSU? Why not? We accept anyone - even Baptists! Join us for one of our upcoming activities, or come to our weekly program and dinner at the BSU House at 244 Boundary St. Call the BSU Hotline (x1800, enter mailbox #13632, password is FRIEND) for up-to-date activity information. For more infornation, call 229-3471.

Scholarships

Goldwater Scholarship Competition

William and Mary students interested in a career in mathematics, natural sciences or engineering dis-ciplines that contribute significantly to the technological advances of the United States are invited to apply to the Barry M. Goldwater Scholarship and Excellence in Education Program. To be considered for an award, gram. To be considered for arrawall, a student must be nominated by their institution. Deadline for applications is November 17. The scholarship covers elgible expenses up to a maximum of $7,000 a year. Students of $1.000 a year. dents must be a current full-time sophomore or junior pursuing a baccalaureate degree, have a Baverage, stand in the upper fourth of the class, and be a US citizen, resident alien or US national. Those interested should contact Lisa Grimes at x2460 or lmgrim@mail.wm.edu.

Student Conference Funding

The conference fund provides financial assistance to full-time graduate and undergraduate students. Guidelines and applications are available from the Office of the Student Activities Accountant, Camous Center Room 208. For more information, call Anita Hamiln at x13271 or Ken Smith, Jr at x13270.

DOE Fellowship Money

The US Department of Energy (DOE) is offering money to students interested in pursuing master's or doctoral degrees in such areas as nuclear engineering, applied health physics, radioactive waste management and industrial hygiene. Graduate fellowship pro-grams sponsored by DOE and ad-ministered by the Oak Ridge Institute for Science and Education provide full payment of tuition and fees, monthly stipends and the op-portunity to gain experience at a DOE laboratory. For more information or an application, call Tom Richmond or Rose Etta Cox at 800-

Miscellaneous

ASU Dance

The Asian Student Union will be sponsoring a dance from 9pm to 12:30amon Sept. 30atthe U.C. Cafe. Anyone and everyone is welcome.

Substance Abuse Recovery Support Group

If you are in recovery from alco hol or other drug abuse, you may be hol or other drug abuse, you may be interested in joining a support group. This group will offer information on lifestyle changes, social support and ways of strengthening your recovery. It will not be a twelve step group. The group will meet weekly for 45 minutes throughout the semiester in the Counseling Center, Blow Hall. Call x3620 to register and indicate the times you are available. Paid Advertisements

For Sale

For Sale: Sharp 486SX laptop with carrying case, 639K-3328K with carrying case, 639K-3328K ext. memory, Word for Windows 2.0, Logitech mouse, TrackMan Portable Mouse. Prices negotiable All two years old. Call 220-6807.

Employment

Part time house keeping posi-ions avaliable for assisted living acility. Wonderful working conditions. Experience w/seniors helpful. Please call Barbara at 258-3444. Located on bus line.

Wanted

Wanted: Wednesday evening paby sitter. 5pm-11pm. $5.00 per nour. Call 229-8260.

Misc.

Would you spend $15 a n harmony in your body and mind This 100% natural complex foo product may potentially improv your physical stamina and menta clarity (just to name a few). NO chemicals, NO pesticides, NO pre-servatives, NO laboratory-nour-ished solely by sun, water and or-ganic minerals. Call Caroline today, 259-0023 for information Available capsules, tablets, liqu or protein shakes and snacks.

SPRING BREAK - Nassau/Para dise Island, Cancun and Jamai from $299.00. Air, Hotel, Transfe Parties, and More! Organize a sm group and earn a FREE trip plus commissions! Call 1-800-822-0321

Miscellaneous

Programs Abroad Information Session

The Programs Abroad Office will hold information sessions every Monday afternoon from 1:30 to 5:30 pm in the Reeves Center Second Floor Conference Room to introduce students to the Study Abroad Library and study abroad opportuni-ties available through the College. For more information, contact the Programs Abroad Office at x3594.

Christian Science

Meetings The Christian Science Organiza-tion meets every Tuesday from 7 pm to 8pm in the Conference room in the upstairs of the old Campus Center ballroom. For more infor-mation, contact Mike Mossat x4832.

Swem Hours

Swem library hours were listed incorrectly last week; the correct hours are as follows: Sunday, 1 pm to midnight; Monday-Thursday, 9 am to midnight; Friday and Satur-

> Sexual Assault Support Group

Sexual assault can happen to any-one. If this has happened to you or to someone you know, there is help. Avalon provides support groups in which survivors find a safe p to break the silence, share with others, and heal. The group meets Thursday evenings, from 5:30-7pm. Please call Laura French at 258-5051 for information.

Gay Student

Support Group
The Gay Student Support Group
meets every Monday night at 9pm.
in the Catacombs meeting room under St. Bede's Church on Richmond Road. It is open to all members of the College community, graduate and undergraduate, male and female, straight and gay. We meet for informal discussions on topics of mutual concern and friend-ship. Confidentiality is assured and no one is ever obligated to identify oneself as gay or straight. For more information, contact George Greenia at x13676.

Easels Available at University Center

Easels are available for advertising upcoming events for your orga-nization. Easels must be reserved in advance and are available for three days per event. The number of ea-sels is limited, so reserve early in UC Room 224 or by calling x3433 be-tween 8am and 5pm Monday ough Friday.

Boathouse Open

The Boathouse is open! You may renta canoe for use on Lake Matoaka from the Boathouse on Lake Matoaka. You must have a valid college ID to rent a boat. Certain rules and restrictions apply. Boathouse hours are Tuesday, Thursday, Friday, and Sunday, 2-5ptr. The Boathouse will be closed during inclement weather.

Miscellaneous

Oral Communication Studios

Two Oral Communications Studios, located in 219 Phi Beta Kappa and in the Writing Resources Center (115A Tucker), offer resources to students at any stage in oral development, free of charge. One-onone consultations with trained Oral Communication Consultants are available, as are four interactive computers which can help you develop your skills in listening, critical thinking, writing introductions and conclusions and outlining as well as measure apprehension, motivation and level of behavioral effectiveness across communication contexts. Each studio houses videotaping and playback equipment for use in analyzing oral presenta-tions. The studios contain small re-source libraries consisting of vid-eotaped speeches, "how-to" videos, textbooks, audiotapes and exercise manuals. For more information, contact Prof. Tamara Burk at x2671.

AA Meeting

There will be an Alcoholics Anonymous meeting every Friday afternoon at 5pm in the Braxton House (Project Taproot). Braxton House is a white house with a screened front porch located across the street from the Band Box, next to cerned about your drinking, or think you might have a problem with substance abuse, please come.

Learn More About

Your Heritage ASSE International Student Ex-change Programs, a nonprofit, pub-lic-benefit organization, has volun-teer opportunities which can help you learn more about your heritage. As an ASSE volunteer Area Re sentative, you will supervise high school aged students from Euro-pean, South Amercian and Central American countries, as well as Australia and New Zealand, and their American host families, as well as assist American teenagers who wish to go abroad. You will learn about different cultures and customs and different cultures and customs and, at the same time, have the chance to share the American way of life with overseas students. ASSE Area Representatives are reimbursed for their expenses, receive materials and training, and become part of an "in-ternational family" of students, faimilies and program representa-tives. If you are interested in explor-ing your heritage while sharing your culture, please call 1-800-677-2773.

Student Video Contest

Have you see any interesting vidriave you see any interesting videos lately on the topics of sexual assault, substance abuse or HIV/AIDS-STD's? Your ideas can pay off. Come up with an educational video that addresses one or all of these issues and you may win $250. Production costs will be covered by the grant. Submit video ideas to the Critical Issues Video Contest. For more information, call Cynthia Burwell at the Student Health Center at x12195.

The Best Way To Save Money On Stuff (Other Than Borrowing Your Roommate's). Roommates tend to get a little weird when you borrow their stuff. (They're funny like that.) Better to get Master C.

5412 3456 7890

ODDO MAR 2/96
SARBY GLASER

MasterCard

yourself a MasterCard® card. Then you could use it to buy the things you really want. And with these

College MasterValues* coupons, you'll save up to 40%. And until you get your own place, it's the smartest thing you can do. Roommates are weird enough as it is. MasterCard. It's more than a credit card. It's smart money.™

