DISCUSS BUDGET PLANS
Robert English (left), Bursar of the College, and Dr. Davis Y. Paschall, President, look over reports of the newly-released proposed College expansion budget requests.

More Classrooms Needed

W&M Asks $21 Million For Future Projects

BY SKIP BAMAN
FLAT HAT Editor-in-Chief

William and Mary is asking for over 21 million dollars for capital outlay projects for the period 1966-72. Over 17 million of these proposed funds will be apportioned from the state taxes. The remainder will be drawn from sources other than the state's general fund.

The College, in a report released by the Bureau of the Budget in Richmond, stressed the need for more classroom space. President Davis Y. Paschall said that "the College is already two and one-half classroom buildings short of the minimum necessary for the current enrollment," and that the College "cannot possibly meet its obligation to an increasingly large portion of qualified students seeking admission without more classroom space."

The capital outlay proposals also called for the renovation of many of the existing buildings, the creation of new buildings and the possible erection of more dormitories.

Funds have been requested for two new classroom buildings in the 1966-68 biennium and another in the 1970-72 period. These general classroom buildings will include an $800,000 Georgian design building next to Washington Hall on the old campus.

The total cost for the three classroom buildings is nearly $3,000,000. New life science, chemistry-geology and physical education buildings have been requested to relieve the pressure on the existing buildings.

Including the remodeling of the old library, nine million dollars are requested for these projects. These improvements are requested for the first biennium, 1966-68.

From September, 1935, when the enrollment of the College was only 1,205 to the current enrollment of 3,056, only one complete classroom building has been added to the campus—and that only last year—the William Small physical science building.

The capital outlay request stressed "the most critical need at the College of William and Mary is for instructional facilities." A crisis state, continues the report, has been reached which threatens the very heart of quality education for which this ancient College has prided itself since the days of Jefferson.

In a study of space utilization by the State Council of Higher Education of the Virginia state colleges, William and Mary was found to have by far the smallest amount of teaching space per full-time student and the least number of classroom buildings.

The situation is even more acute when it is realized that much of the space included in the study is really unsuitable for instruction. These spaces include the Wren Building with its eighteenth century facilities, the basement storage and recreational areas of Bryan, Camin, and Madison men's dormitories, the old power plant, a quonset hut and two warehouses, the student rooms in the Campus Center and the

Taylor's Comic Role Saves Moliere Play

A Review
BY W. WILFORD KALE
FLAT HAT Associate Editor

Keith Taylor (Monsieur Jourdain) played the role of a French Zorro as he rescued the William and Mary Theatre's production of Moliere's Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme from total oblivion.

Racing out of the night, Taylor's razor comic talents brought life and excitement to an otherwise mediocre performance. One cannot begin to describe the uproarious situations which presented themselves and which Taylor handled professionally.

The farce, which will be presented tonight and tomorrow night at 8 p. m. in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall, resembled the final work of a committee of non-correspondence.

Taylor

Supporting Taylor while adding their own bright spots to a misty setting were Lee Smith and Patricia Hartleben. Smith once again displayed his acting versatility in his portrayal of the carefree and somewhat foolish fencing master.

As Nicole, Patricia laughed and acted her way into W&M Theatre prominence. The opening scene in the second act, when she saw the attire of Taylor and burst out laughing was one of the highlights of the show.

The remainder of the act was too slow and drawn out, as was much of the production which picked up pace only rarely.

In some cases acting seemed to be non-existent as performers misses cues and lines. Dialogue was garbled, and dramatic expression left something to be desired.

John Kirkpatrick (Master of Philosophy) and Taylor provided a hilarious scene as Kirkpatrick explained the alphabet and phonetics. Some of their facial expressions and sounds were unforgettable.

In her first Theatre role, Virginia Lee Dixon presented a graceful yet forceful presentation of Dorimene. Along with vocalist Joyce Hill, Virginia hosted the quality of the minor characters.

The Turkish scene with George Appenzeller as the Mufti, brought comic relief to the audience in the late stages of the third act, only to be lost in the finale.

Ornate costumes of plumes, lace and sequins, and the tastefully designed scenery added much to the production. Although the orchestra played rather well and provided good background, the dramatic damage had already been done,

December Choral Program To Feature Handel's 'Messiah'

BY SHARON DOMAGALSKI

The Messiah by Handel will highlight the Choir and Chorus' annual Christmas concert, Wednesday and Thursday, Dec. 16-17, at 8:30 p. m. in Phi Beta Kappa Hall.

Tickets for either performance are $1 and may be obtained from any Choir or Chorus member, from Schmidt's Record Shop, from the operator's desk in Ewell Hall or may be purchased at the door.

The Messiah chorus consists this year of 176 voices. There are 79 Choir members, and the Chorus numbers 96.

The Chamber Orchestra, with Richard Voss as concert master, will accompany the Choir. Formerly the Chamber Players, the orchestra is composed of student musicians under the sponsorship of faculty member Alan Stewart. Organist Wallace Casey will accompany the Messiah chorus.

The Messiah, Handel's most successful oratorio, was composed in 1741. It was first performed at a concert given for charitable purposes in Dublin, Ireland, April 13, 1742, with Handel himself conducting the performance. During the course of time Handel changed various arias for different voices, but as a whole the original was left unaltered.

Legend has it that at a performance of the Messiah in London, King George I, swept away by enthusiasm during earlier portions of the program, rose to his feet and stood during the performance of the "Hallelujah Chorus" and thus created the custom, still existing, of standing during this portion of the oratorio.

Staging and set decorations for the performance will be provided by the theatre division of the fine arts department under, Albert Haak.

The William and Mary Choir is in its twentieth year under the direction of Dr. Carl Fehr.

CHRISTMAS CONCERT

Alan C. Stewart (standing), director of the William and Mary chamber orchestra, and Carl A. Fehr, director of the William and Mary choir and chorus, prepare for next week's performances of Handel's "Messiah."

The Thresher

By Joe Ellis

Basketball and Tennis Courts

There is an unverified rumor that when the William and Mary basketball team practices lay-ups, each player is required to dive into the stands. The coaches feel that this drill will simulate game conditions and as such will offset the bruises and broken seats. The necessity of this kind of practice serves to point up the inadequate indoor facilities of the College. Basketball is a major sport — the second most popular varsity activity at William and Mary. It's a pity that Blow Gym is only a second-rate high school arena. Admittedly, the tennis court on which the basketball team plays does have some advantages. Opposing teams lose two or three players to the angry crowd during each game. Driving lay-ups require the daring of a Kamakazi pilot for enemy roundballers. West Virginia refuses to play in Williamsburg, giving as their reason their apprehension at half court contests. But if there are advantages for the basketball team, there are numerous disadvantages that also should be mentioned.

Necessary Nudity

First, the locker facilities are completely inadequate for male physical education. A good portion of the underclassmen do not have a locker or even room in which to change their clothes. Many boys are forced to use metal baskets, originally intended for use at the swimming pool, in place of lockers. Most students change into their gym uniforms in their dormitories, then race to their physical education classes. Cold weather makes this mad dash a bit uncomfortable, especially if you happen to live at Yates. Some day a slow runner is going to be frozen in his tracks outside the gym and provide an embarrassing monument to the inadequate facilities.

Secondly, Blow Gymnasium simply cannot accommodate all of the numerous and varied activities which make up the college sports program. The varsity and freshman basketball teams are forced to share the main court for their daily practices. Meanwhile, in the "little gym" the wrestling team is working out but must curtail its sessions to make room for the intramural volleyball games. Physical education classes must be scheduled around these practices. The indoor track squad is forced to practice outdoors all winter simply because we don't have an indoor track of any size. The physical education department has but one room in which to deliver lectures.

Ellis

The Army Underground

While all of this is going on upstairs, the ROTC offices and equipment room are cramped together in a bomb shelter below. Surely this basement arrangement has some advantages for an army officer. The steady beat of dribbling basketballs above never lets the drill sergeant forget how to count cadence. The pieces of plaster that occasionally drop from the ceiling give the soldiers practice in air raid procedure. However, things are a bit tight and a little noisy.

During the basketball season, there are always a few games at which all of the fans cannot get into the gym. The bandbox can only accommodate so many. If the school enrollment is going to continue to increase, what will this mean for future basketball crowds? How can the school hope to make money from its varsity program with the limited number of reserved seats that now exist in Blow Gymnasium? If William and Mary wants to recruit the better basketball players, does it dare show them a gymnasium that is smaller than their own high school arena?

A Petition

Although there are many building projects which the College might initiate, we suggest that the erection of a new men's gymnasium be given serious consideration now. A great deal has been said concerning this topic in previous years, but nothing has ever been done. All those who feel that immediate action is called for can demonstrate this feeling by affixing their name to a sheet of paper hanging on the bulletin board in the Campus Center.

Guitarist Montoya Set To Appear in Concert

BY PAT CROSS

Flamenco guitarist Carlos Montoya will appear in concert at Blow Gymnasium Friday, Jan. 15, at 8:30 p. m. Sponsored by the Committee of Concerts, Arts and Lectures, Montoya's concert will be free to all students.

Carlos Montoya, a Spanish gypsy born in Madrid, was a musical prodigy, achieving national renown by the age of fourteen when he was the toast of the "cafes cantantes" during the hey-day of flamenco singing and dancing.

In 1945 Montoya gave a full concert recital of flamenco guitar music, a step unheard of for flamenco guitarists, who had heretofore always worked with a singer or dancer. Because of the limited repertoire of most flamenco players his idea was formidable, but Montoya realized it with equally formidable success.

Since that time, Montoya has given solo performances on the guitar in virtually every major outpost of the free world. In addition to his world-wide tours, Montoya also has won international recognition through his numerous recordings. He is the most recorded flamenco artist in history, and has become the living symbol of flamenco music the world over.

Although the flamenco form has very rigid rules of rhythm and certain characteristic chord patterns, the essence of flamenco is in the artists improvisation as he goes along.

Phi Beta Address

Whittemore Looks At American Flaws

BY PAUL BOYNTON

Saturday, December 5, poet Reed Whittemore addressed the 188th anniversary celebration of Phi Beta Kappa.

It is certain that his poem "Return, Alpheus," shocked many. Whittemore maintains that the degree of conformity in America overrules, indeed stamps out, any individualism that might exist. America has gone overboard on committees. Every ten years America reexamines herself. Thus it goes "radical via committee."

But this radicalness does nothing to dent the "dead hell of the Puritan Ethic" which he feels we are still living in. In our society we only can aspire to apathy and "clean desks." Our aim is completely sterilizing in its consequences. This is one of the reasons we cannot recognize art. There is only one fate left for the cultural rebel, and that is to be crushed in the name of the collective good.

Whittemore spared none in his attack on our superficial attempt at culture. The scholar to him, as to many on every campus in the nation, becomes a farce who can only preface a boring lecture by his usual apologies for all that he cannot encompass, and of course, including the appropriate thanks to the librarians, mom and dad, God, etc. Possibly detecting an under-current of resentment and fear, Whittemore expressed his certainty that no administration would invite him back next year, but instead invite another "bard" to sing the praises of all concerned.

Stanley Buetens

Lutenist Buetens to Present Program at Phi Beta Tonight

BY MARY ANN DAILEY

Stanley Buetens, world-renowned lutenist, will present music from the Shakespearean theatre as well as Elizabethan love songs, English lute songs and popular tunes in his concert tonight at 8:30 in Phi Beta Kappa Hall.

This, the third program of the Collegium Musicum Series, is open to the public without charge.

Although the lute was a popular instrument in the sixteenth century, it has almost disappeared from the musical scene. Because the lute was so obsolete, Buetens had to teach himself when he was inspired to study both the works of lute composers and the mastery of the instrument. For over a year the young artist researched in dusty scores in Belgium, England and France to find lute tablatures. The Belgium government awarded him a grant in recognition of his research.

Buetens attributes his devotion to the lute to its music. He said, "Some of the greatest compositions in the music world were written for the lute..." Buetens added that another good feature of the lute is that both it and its music "... have not been done to death by other artists."

In addition to his concerts, Buetens records for Columbia Records, is director of the old music series for Elektra Records and music director for

Elia Kazan's new movie, "America, America."

Buetens has performed solo concerts as singer and lutenist at the Library of Congress. He has also appeared as guest artist with Leopold Stokowski.

SA Yule Tea to Revive Tradition for Faculty

Reviving a College tradition, the Student Association will sponsor a tea for faculty members Tuesday, Dec. 15. The faculty tea will be in rooms A and B of the Campus Center from 7 to 9 p. m.

Up until several years ago, the faculty tea was annually held on the Sunday afternoon before the beginning of Christmas vacation. Because of poor faculty attendance at earlier teas, the Student Association dropped this custom about four years ago.

In reviving the custom this year, the SA is sponsoring the tea on Tuesday evening, rather than Sunday afternoon, in hope that this time will be more convenient for faculty members.

Invitations to the tea have been sent to 270 faculty and administration members and to the 60 SA representatives. Refreshments will be served and any students wishing to meet the faculty members are invited to attend.

Chairman for the tea, Carol Boyson, hopes that many of the faculty members will come to the function to enjoy themselves and take advantage of the opportunity to meet and speak with the representatives of the Student Association.

The SA urges especially that the 50 new faculty members attend the tea in order to become better acquainted with William and Mary students and faculty.

M-W Symposium: U. S. Conservatism

"American Conservatism" is the theme of the 1965 Marshall-Wythe Symposium.

Beginning Feb. 26 six lectures will be given by guest speakers — each recognized authorities in their respective fields. The lectures are open to the public, and juniors and seniors may receive one hour credit for the series.

The lecture schedule is "Educational Policy," Feb. 26; "Social Problem," March 12; "Economic Aspects," March 26; "Military," April 9; "Foreign Policy," April 23; and "Politics," Mar. 7. Dr. Dwyndal B. Pettengill, of the department of government and director of the program, will announce the speakers after Christmas vacation.

"There has been a period of reaction in the past three years, more pronounced than in any other period since World War II," explained Dr. Pettengill in reference to this year's topic. "The recent national elections were a rallying point for conservatives."

The College has sponsored the Marshall-Wythe Symposium annually since 1938. Each lecture will take place in Washington 200 on every other Friday at 4 p. m. and will last an hour. After the lecture there will be a question and answer period.

Any junior or senior desiring one credit in social science for the series must attend every lecture and pass a written examination on the series. He must enroll at his class registration time.

The course may be taken twice. There is no limit to the size of the class. Generally 75 to 100 students take the course for credit.

The 1964 symposium lectures, entitled "American Society: Challenge and Criticism," are currently being printed. Students enrolled for credit in last year's symposium may obtain their copies free in Marshall-Wythe 319 from 1 to 5 p. m. daily after Christmas vacation. A limited number of copies will be available at the library after Christmas.

Frosh Christmas Dance

The freshman class will sponsor a semi-formal Christmas dance, open to the entire student body, tomorrow night in the Campus Center ballroom from 8 to 12 p. m.

Two combos and a folksinging group will be featured at the dance. The Collegiates, a combo from Williamsburg, and the Strangers, an on-campus combo, will provide music for the dance. During the intermission, a William and Mary folksinging trio, Rick Scheid, Don Schreiber and Robin Russell, will entertain.

Students may buy tickets for the dance at the door. The cost will be $1.50 per couple. Refreshments will be served by the freshman class at the dance.

If these unsuitable spaces were removed from the study report, and even more acutely demanding situation would be revealed.

The proposed $1,730,000 life-science building, the $3,400,000 men's physical education building, which includes a gymnasium and auditorium, and the $2,250,000 chemistry-geology building are expected to relieve Marshall-Wythe and Rogers Halls for more classroom space.

All these buildings are planned for the 1966-68 biennium. A new infirmary will be built in the 1967-70 period.

Two capital requests for proposed men's housing and one for women's are requested for the 1966-72 period.

Funds are being requested for men's housing to be built in the 1966-68 and 1970-72 interval while the women's dormitories are to be constructed in the 1968-70 period. The College also proposes the erection of facilities for housing married students at the cost of $1,500,000 in the 1970-72 period.

Renovations are proposed for the old library, Marshall-Wythe, Rogers, Washington basement, Trinkie dining hall and Blow Gymnasium. The estimated cost is $1,700,000 for these projects, all proposed for the 1968-70 biennium except the library renovation which is proposed for the 1966-68 period.

Another $2,550,000 is asked for the improvement and landscaping of the College grounds and the creation of necessary utilities and maintenance facilities. This capital request is spread over three bienniums.

Alumni Board of Directors Chooses Sands as President

The Board of Directors for the Society of Alumni elected new officers Saturday during its second and final meeting of the year.

The newly elected president is Dr. George D. Sands, Jr., '39. The vice president is Dr. A. F. Chestnut, '41 and the secretary-treasurer is Mrs. W. Whitney Sweeney, '35.

Dr. Sands is a resident of Williamsburg. He graduated in 1939, a member of Phi Beta Kappa. Later he went to the University of Richmond where he received his M.A. in 1941. In 1945, he received his Ph.D. from the University of Illinois. From 1945-48 he was a senior research chemist for Firestone Tire and Rubber Company.

Sands taught chemistry at his alma mater from 1948-56 and later served as Chief of the Nuclear Branch of U. S. Transportation and Engineering at Fort Eustis. He is presently an aero-space technologist at Langley Research Center.

Dr. Chestnut was, during his college years, a member of Omicron Delta Kappa, and was president from 1940-41. Chestnut was a president's aide from 1940-41 and a varsity football player for three years.

Chestnut received his M.S. and Ph.D. at Rutgers. He is presently professor and director of the Institute of Fisheries at the University of North Carolina in Morehead City.

Chestnut is married to Janet Wood of the Class of '40.

Mrs. Sweeney (Catheryn Chriswell), resident of Lynchburg, was a member of Kappa Delta social sorority and also a member of Mortar Board. She was president of the Women's Student Government from '34-35. Her daughter, Mary Kay Sweeney, is a junior this year and a member of Alpha Chi Omega sorority.

Space Problem

Facilities Dictate Educational Decline

William and Mary is suffering from a lack of classroom space. This lack makes it necessary to schedule classes in inadequate facilities, overcrowded rooms, hold classes at times which do not allow many students to schedule them, and prohibits the proper use of space which was originally designed for other purposes. Inevitably, under such conditions the level of education at the College will fall unless something is done to correct the situation.

Many of the currently used facilities should not be used as classrooms. In a study made by the Virginia State Council of Education many of the areas now used for instructional purposes were classified as "poor;" if there had been an "unsuitable" category doubtless many of the facilities would have been placed in that column. These failities are located in out of the way places (the old church, the quonset huts, and the warehouses), often the lighting is poor, and the ventilation is usually inadequate.

Besides the facilities which are physically inadequate, many other facilities which are now used should not be, because they are being deprived of their correct usage. Many classes are scheduled in the Campus Center in rooms which were originally designed for other purposes. In the dormitories, the conversion of recreational areas to classrooms has taken away the leisure space which is needed for the students.

The press for classroom space, has meant that classes must be scheduled whenever a vacant room appears, rather than at the convenience of the professor or the students.

Consequently, classes are held at odd and inconvenient times.

Larger classes naturally are a result of the shortage of classroom space. It is harder for a professor to teach a large class in a creative and interesting manner. Every year we see more courses converted from seminar to lecture form. Often as a result, the quality and enjoyability of the education at the College falls.

The new dormitories have put an even greater pressure on our instructional facilities which have not increased sizeably for the last 29 years. No more dorms should be built until the instructional facilities on campus are made adequate for the present enrollment.

The classroom facilities are at the breaking point; from here William and Mary can only suffer an educational decline.

We Weren't Afraid

The evening was not all laughs last week when Martha and George and their two guests spent over three hours wandering through the realms of reality and unreality in Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf, Edward Albee's play, presented by a touring company and sponsored by the William and Mary Theatre and Speech Department, provided the College community with thought-provoking action, highly spiced with modern drawing room wit. It was an excellent performance, generally well-acted, and Martha was not the only person with tears in her eyes at the final curtain.

We hope that stimulating and contemporary productions such as Virginia Woolf will be brought to the College more often in the future. And we encourage more students to sample the excellent fare offered by the theatre.

Letters to the Editor

Ellis Continues

To the Editor:

Due to a lack of space, part of my argument concerning Pascal's Bet was eliminated from my letter of Dec. 4. I therefore humbly ask that the following crucial argument be printed.

If one believes in God and He does not exist, then one negates his worldly life. "This is not necessarily true." Then why has God made suicide a mortal sin preventing one from being with Him as soon as possible? Of course there are other less drastic means of negating life — all the doctrines of Asceticism.

If, on the other hand, one does not believe in God, and He does exist, one does not have to lose anything, i.e. if one leads a moral life for the sake of morality and not, because of reward or punishment, then a God of justice will appreciate this more than if one leads a moral life for the sake of reward or fear of punishment. Also one would appreciate Heaven more if he weren't expecting to go there and then found himself there. Thus, by Pascal's Bet, it is better not to believe, than it is to believe — provided one leads a moral life for the sake of morality. (But this is another problem which involves a detailed study of Ethics.)

E. K. Ellis

Criticizes Ellis Defense

To the Editor:

Concerning Mr. Ellis' letter: I agree that the negative point of view should have been presented in the article on religion. However, I don't think his defense was a good one.

His first point, on the creation of the Universe, has some validity. We can't prove that matter hasn't always existed and thus wasn't created by God. But on the other hand, we can't simultaneously prove the reverse. So Mr. Ellis' argument is hardly a convincing one.

The second point, about order in the Universe, is ridiculous. "... some Intelligence has imposed order on the Universe — Man!" Really, Mr. Ellis! It sounds as though you are saying that since man is recognizing order in the world around him, he is the one responsible for it, and further, that before man recognized this order, it didn't exist. Perhaps it didn't exist as far as man's knowledge was concerned, but this certainly doesn't mean it didn't exist at all.

The third point of the defense concerns purpose in life, and states that the belief in an after-life negates the worldly life and thus precludes any great purpose existing in it. How utterly false! People who genuinely believe in an after-life also believe that it is not just there, but that it must be earned. And this is the purpose of the worldly life. The purpose of peace and harmony in this life becomes secondary, and yet it is more important and much more likely to be achieved under these conditions of belief than it would be if there were no belief in an after-life — where there would be no idea of reward for self-sacrifice or punishment for self-centeredness at the expense of others. But my main point here is that, far from negating the worldly life, belief in an after-life makes it infinitely more meaningful, and gives it a savor that cannot be gotten in any other way. I suggest Mr. Ellis cease knocking it until he has tried it.

To William and Mary Students:

Now that our 1964 season has been completed I would like to express my appreciation and the appreciation of our squad and coaching staff to all of you for the magnificent support which you gave us throughout the year.

College football is meant to be a game of spirit and enthusiasm and it was most apparent to me that our student body participated vigorously in our team's efforts.

I like to feel that the great spirit as shown by our students represented a "twelfth man" on the field for the Indians. This helped to give us quite an advantage against an opponent's eleven men. It was extremely gratifying to receive, prior to our Richmond game, a telegram bearing approximately 1,000 student names. Certainly this served to make us aware of the presence of the "twelfth man!"

I am extremely proud of the men who played for William and Mary during this past season, and I did want all of you to know how proud we all are of you as well.

(An Editorial)

Several weeks ago an unusual booklet passed over our desk. Unlike most annual business reports consisting of pages of statistics and charts, this one was different and, in fact, rather interesting.

The report was the Annual Report of the President of Colonial Williamsburg and the interesting features were the pictures. Forty-seven of the 64 pages in the report were filled with more than 50 photographs of the colonial capital.

The late John D. Rockefeller Jr., who was instrumental in bringing the restoration of Williamsburg into reality explained, "You can't appreciate Williamsburg unless you walk through the town. Always you see something different, a fence or a chimney from some angle you never saw before."

Carlisle Humelsine, president of CW, and Taylor Lewis, Norfolk photographer, take you on such a walk. Lines and curves, lights and shadows become the basic features in this photographic wonderland.

Stock pictures of the famous buildings — the palace and capitol — are nowhere to be seen as President Humelsine's Report looks at these buildings through stone statues and gracious sweeps of iron.

Children skip up the sidewalk on a misty morning, while a newspaper tossed on a stoop patiently awaits its reader.

The photographic walk continues past weather-worn fences and gateposts and geometrically designed brick walls. Windows, doors and shutters are also important sights of interest.

These scenes, Humelsine says, "can be seen by any visitor and yet there is an air about them quite different from the usual views of Williamsburg — an air filled both with repose and excitement of beauties newly seen."

The President's Report is a tasteful album of the little things an eye might catch or sometimes miss on a walk through Colonial Williamsburg.

News For And About Greeks

Parties and New Sisters

Theta Delt hosted Alpha Chi at a Hoodlum Party last Friday night. Chi-O and Sigma Nu frolicked Saturday afternoon while Theta and Sig Ep rocked away at the lodge that night. Sunday morning the Kappa's awakened the Alpha Chi's for a surprise breakfast at the KKG house!

Sunday night the joy of sisterhood reigned at Phi Mu as they initiated Carolyn Brock, Sue Daffron, Linda Fombell, Kit Kurstedt, Karen Phillips and Sandy Reese. The initiation theme ran through the week, for Tuesday Gamma Phi gained their newest sister, Ruby Schonfeld. The Tri-Delts were right in step with their installation of Alice Respass and Pris Walker.

Last night Alpha Chi's "spaget was et" by over 150, and Omicron Delta Kappa and Mortar Board again backed a tremendous celebration in Christmas spirit at the Yule Log ceremony.

Coming Up

Tonight Gamma Phi's tree-trimming parties are welcoming all freshman men. The close of the Fall and Christmas dance season of the Greeks will come tomorrow with the Monmouth Duo of Kappa and Pi Phi. The dance is named after the college at which both were founded many moons ago. The Chi-O's holiday dance will also take place tomorrow night. The highlight of the football season is yet to come—Sigma Nu's "Big Green" for the varsity gridders Saturday night.

The Greeks will bring Santa early this year to several of Williamsburg's less fortunate children and families. Sunday the orphans are to be entertained by the DDD girls and the Sigma Pi's. Meanwhile, the Kappa Sig's will host a group of underprivileged children and this annual affair will be co-sponsored by Alpha Chi.

Before We Go

With Monday's meetings on the Court, the jolly man will be impersonated and the Christmas spirit will encompass the annual parties. Pi Phi will hold a Christmas open house that night.

Kappa Sigma's spaghetti dianer next Thursday night will be a great send-off for the holiday. The fraternities' serenades begin this week, so many a lilting, weaving melody will find its way into the hearts of everyone on campus.

Last of All

Best wishes to Jim Deinlein, Kappa Sig, and Vicki Bickers of Madison College, on their recent marriage; and to Betty Keahey, Gamma Phi, who recently became engaged to Robert Paul Glasen of Dickinson. The new pinmates are Margie Jensen, Pi Phi, and Bob Kiley, Sigma Pi; Bonnie Robinson, KD, and David Shephard, a PiKA of University of Richmond; Donna Says, Pi Phi, and Glick Schultz, Phi Tau.

And Happy Holidays to Everyone!

Registration to Continue

All seniors, graduate students and unclassified students completed second semester registration today.

Sophomores will register between Monday, Jan. 4, and Friday, Jan. 8. Freshmen will register from Jan. 11 to Jan. 15.

All registration will take place between 8:30 a. m. and 4:30 p. m. These times and registration dates are final. If there is a need for a change, it must be made through the Offices of the Deans of Men and Women between 8:30 a. m. and 5 p. m., Friday, Jan. 29, and Friday, Feb. 12.

Tribe Seeks 4th Straight Win

TAP-IN FOR BEN POMEROY

Fresh from an impressive 86-71 basketball victory at Richmond last night, Furman's Paladins invade Blow Gymnasium tonight with high hopes.

The underdog South Carolina outfit came into last night's battle against Richmond with an 0-3 record, but revealed what their coach Lyles Alley has been saying all along. They know how to shoot!

Paced by dynamic Dave Selvy, the Paladins placed all five of their starters in the double figure scoring column.

Besides shooting accuracy, the Paladins also boast good team speed while fast-breaking only when the occasion calls for it. The club's biggest weaknesses are its rebounding and depth.

William and Mary's Indians bolstered their Southern Conference record with two consecutive victories over SC foes; East Carolina, 86-62, and George Washington University, 54-44.

The two victories moved the Tribe record to 2-0 in the conference and 3-1 overall.

In last Tuesday night's affair, the William and Mary cage contingent, with a rather sloppy first half showing, had to really scramble to keep up with the Colonials of GW.

However, the Big Green, behind the hot scoring of junior Walter Wenk and sophomore Ben Pomeroy's rebound coverage, pulled the contest out in the second stanza.

Four men finished in double figures for the Indians, paced by Wenk with his second straight double figure night, hitting on 9 out of 10 from the charity line for a game total of 13.

Another standout was Pomeroy, both offensively and defensively, hitting for 10 points and grabbing 10 of the Tribe's 46 rebounds.

The deadly accuracy of senior Martin Morris and junior Larry Paffrath added another 22, each hitting 12 and 10 respectively.

William and Mary, hampered by a rash of floor mistakes, could not generate any offense during the opening stanza. However, the Colonials' inept shooting percentage (30.8%) kept the contest close as they held a 23-22 edge at the half.

As the Indians shifted from a man-to-man to a zone defense in the second half, GW experienced an unbelievable scoring drought. Unable to crack the Tribe defense, they only made two field goals in the opening nine minutes and tallied only 21 for the entire half.

During this span, the Tribe gradually edged ahead, hitting for a seven-point splurge that broke the contest open.

In Saturday night's offensive show, the shooting of Wenk, Pomeroy and Morris sparked William and Mary to a thorough trouncing of the Pirates.

Ahead from the opening tipoff, the Green and Gold were never headed, leading at intermission, 32-21.

Pomeroy again proved the defensive ace, pulling down 18 rebounds. Wenk also had another excellent night, tallying 22 points and exhibiting outstanding floor play.

Other top scorers for the Indians were Morris with 19, Pomeroy with 16 and junior Tim Walter tallying 13.

When William and Mary, after a fantastic scoring streak, in the middle of the final period, pulled ahead, 84-53, both squads began to substitute freely.

Chambers was particularly pleased with the performance of Tim Walter in the two contests.

Tonight, the Tribe's starting line-up with be as usual, Lew Ollice at center, Pomeroy and Morris at the forwards and Wenk and Larry Paffrath at guard.

Grapplers Start Season Tomorrow

BY JOE LENZI

This Saturday at 2 p. m. marks an innovation in sports history at William and Mary.

The reservation's newly-initiated wrestling team meets the Peninsula Wrestling Club in Blow Gymnasium.

The Indian grapplers, who have been anxiously awaiting the commencement of their season, come up against one of the finest groups of wrestlers put together in the state.

Although this meet is only a scrimmage-exhibition, it will give the Tribe an opportunity to see just how capable it is for inter-collegiate competition.

Coaches Pleased

Coaches Mo Weber and Bill Cowardin seemed very pleased earlier in the week with the progress of their squad.

"The spirit is very high," remarked Weber, "We're hoping to get a good look at the boys Saturday to get an idea of our potential," he continued.

There's no question that William and Mary will be coming up against one of the finest squads around. Last Tuesday, the Peninsulars made a distinguished debut by defeating Richmond Professional Institute 33-5.

PWC won the first six matches, four on pins, before losing the 177 class. Don Marks, the 1963 Southern Conference champion from Virginia Tech, won the heavy-weight bout for the Peninsula club by pinning his man in just one minute and 9 seconds.

More Support Possible

Weber appeared a little disturbed about the number of competent wrestlers at William and Mary who did not come out for the team.

"There's a number of capable wrestlers in school who could really be helping us out if they only come out," commented Weber.

The enthusiastic mentor was not sure about his starting eight grapplers, but at the moment it looks as if the squad is pretty well set.

The eight regulars will be Sam Smart (123), Jim Murphy (130), Pete Nance (137), Lynn Devendorf (147), Jerry Stettler (157), Woody Caine (167), Rob Fromm (177) and Bucky Showker, heavy-weight.

The Indians first regular season meet will be Jan. 13 against RPI.

In that tomorrow's match is a non-league affair, the Indians will be able to use freshmen, of which there is an abundance of talent. There are no freshman meets scheduled as yet.

Of the varsity performers, Nance, Smith, Devendorf and Caine are given the best chances for victory. Murphy is the only starting freshman.

Winner Cindermen Gird for Campaign

By PAT BUTLER

Last Monday, the William and Mary winter track team started practice for the season under track coach Harry Groves. Although there are no facilities for the indoor sport here at William and Mary, the team practices outside to prepare for indoor meets in Richmond, and at the conference schools which do have the facilities.

Leading the team this year are Bill Hurley and Joe Green, the two co-captains. Green, who is the Southern Conference shot putting champion, is one of the two veterans who will participate in this event for the Indians. Roger Bates, the other shot putter, and Hurley will be shooting for the mark of fifty-four feet that the N.C.A.A. requires of participants in order to qualify for the National Championships.

Jimmy Johnson, the State and Southern Conference indoor mile and two mile champion, will again head up the list of distance runners that the Indians will have this year. Supporting Johnson in these events and in the relays will be a job of capable performers such as Steve Jackson, Tom Ryan, Paul Bernstein, Joe Philpot, Jon Kurtin and Dave Gapp.

William and Mary will be putting John Markland, the Southern Conference broad jump champion, at the head of its list of jumpers. Markland will also be competing for the Indians in the triple jump.

In the high jump, the Indians will be represented by William Keen. Rounding out the attack will be Gene Griffin and L. T. Lilliston in the pole vault.

The Indians will open their season Jan. 8, 1965, at the Chesterfield County meet in Richmond.

Although the Freshman team has not been completely formed, many men have turned out. However, not too much

Panneton, Rama, Taylor Top 3rd Frosh Win in Row

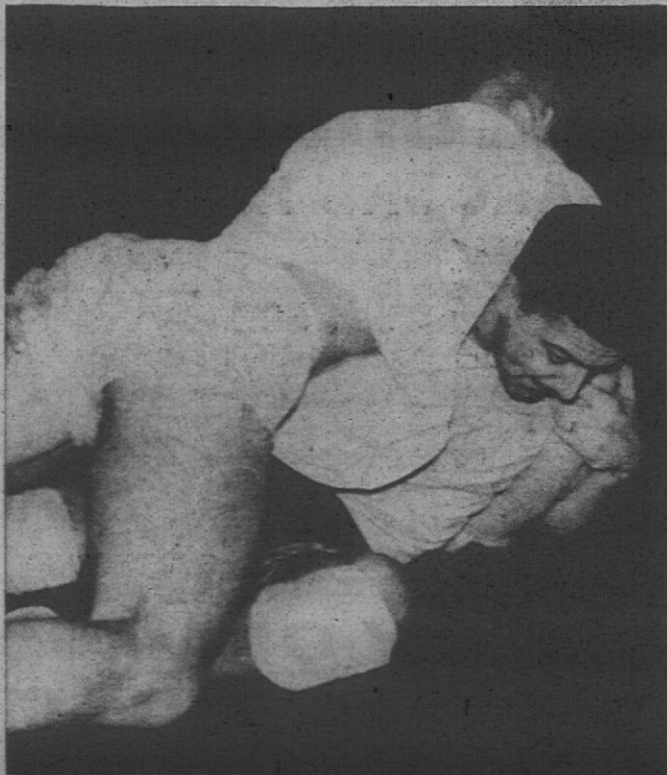

Paced by Jim Rama's 20 points the William and Mary Papoose basketball team ran its winning streak to three games with an 85-63 trouncing of the George Washington's frosh Tuesday night. Leading 43-22 at the half, the Papooses nearly matched that total with a 42 point effort the second frame.

The Baby Colonials scored 41, but the game was already decided. Ron Panneton continued his hot shooting, dumping in 17 points. He was followed closely by Bill Taylor, who had 12.

Over the weekend, the William and Mary frosh whipped the East Carolina Pirate frosh by 17 points, 77-60. Ron Panneton had the best night of any frosh player thus far, connecting on 12 shots for a total of 31 points.

Jim Rama had 21 and Bill Taylor had 12, to grab second and third in team honors. Rama led all rebounders with 15. After a slow start, the Frosh broke ahead and led at intermission by 12, 37-25. Experiencing another "patented" William and Mary second half spurt, the frosh scored 40 points in the next 20 minutes and were never headed.

TOP WRESTLING HOPE

William and Mary's Lynn Devendorf (on bottom) is a top wrestling hope for the Indians in Saturday's opening meet for the season against the Peninsula Wrestling Club. The Tribe is competing in intercollegiate wrestling for the first time in the school's history.

TRIBE TALK

WITH TOM GARDO
SPORTS EDITOR

A Critical Period

William and Mary's basketball squad entered what was regarded as the "most critical" two weeks of the season on the right foot. Tonight, they hope to take another step in the right direction.

Before the winter campaign commenced, Tribe coach Bill Chambers had pointed to the two-week period, beginning with Tuesday's George Washington contest as "very important." In that stretch, the Indian schedule has them facing four strong Southern Conference clubs (GW, Furman, West Virginia and VMI). A good showing for the inexperienced Tribe would go a long way towards a successful year.

With Tuesday's impressive victory against the Colonials, the Indians appear in much better shape than most pre-season prognosticators gave them credit. But, Chambers is keeping his fingers crossed.

The biggest worry for the Tribe coach is scoring. William and Mary boasts a fine rebounding game, and is coming along fast in the art of defense. However, the Tribe's shooting accuracy has been a bit too erratic for Chambers to feel at ease.

"There are going to be some nights when we can't score," said Chambers, "and then we're going to be in trouble."

HERE-N-THERE—One thing Chambers has been very disappointed with has been the size of William and Mary basketball crowds this year. One thing's for sure. We'll never get a new gym if we can't even fill up the one we've got . . . Talking about crowds, Sigma Nu certainly had an unusually large one at their lodge last weekend . . .

There's a difference in Walter Wenk. The junior starting guard, who played 20 minutes a game last year, scored only 19 foul shots in 41 attempts for a miserable 46.3 percentage. Thus far this year, he leads the team in foul shots made (22) and foul shooting percentage (84.6) in an almost complete reversal of his 1963-1964 form. His 15 points per game is also a sharp rise from the 4.0 average of last year . . .

Former Tribe quarterback Dan Henning is back on the active list with the San Diego Chargers . . . William and Mary has averaged 48 rebounds per game this year while their opponents have pulled in only 36 per outing . . . much-improved guard Bob Eskay missed the East Carolina fracas last Saturday because of a kidney infection . . . Biggest surprise in the Southern Conference cage race this year is Richmond. Coach Lewis Mills has done wonders with a minimum of talent . . . The FLAT HAT will enter a team in intramural basketball come January. They'll be called the Dead-liners. They should be called the dead-losers . . . Overheard: "One thing Marv Levy proved, you don't have to be a winning team to be a good team."

Tracksters Strong

Widell, Steve Wing, Jim Cal-lahan and Ned Hopkins.

Rounding out the track portion of the team are Dee Craig, Phil Dillard and Carl Flemer, the hurdlers.

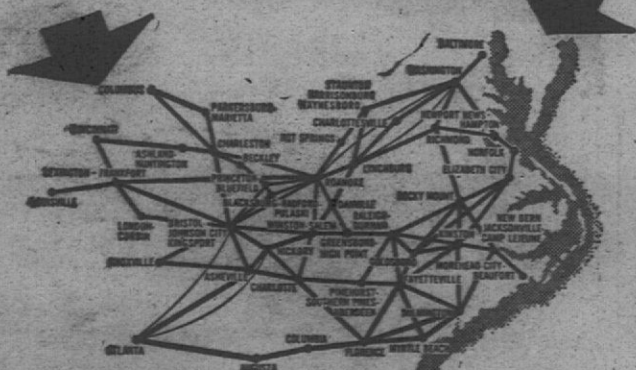

In the field events, John Todd will handle the shot, Marshall Stone will do the pole vaulting, John Prentiss and Keith Bricklemeyer will be the broad jumpers and Dee Craig and Jim Jancattis will represent William and Mary in the high jump.

In the sprints, the Papooses will be represented by Larry Koch, Jim Garrison and Fred Ainspach. Tom Hatch will run for William and Mary in the quarter mile and Terry Donnelly, Richard Olsen and Roger McKain will handle the half mile.

In the distance events, the frosh will have cross-country veterans Al Lamb, Richard Widell, Steve Wing, Jim Cal-lahan and Ned Hopkins. Rounding out the track portion of the team are Dee Craig, Phil Dillard and Carl Flemer, the hurdlers. In the field events, John Todd will handle the shot, Marshall Stone will do the pole vaulting, John Prentiss and Keith Bricklemeyer will be the broad jumpers and Dee Craig and Jim Jancattis will represent William and Mary in the high jump.

Varsity Defeats Frosh Squad In Pre-Season Swim Meet

In a pre-season tune up last Monday, the varsity swimming team defeated a strong freshman squad by a score of 56-48, both teams being hurt by lack of depth.

Jumping off to an early lead the freshman team of Bob Frase, Keith Mauer, David Appler and George Bear won the medley relay in a time of 4:15.5. Co-captain Jim Winfree combined with John Garrett to sweep the 200 free style for the varsity. Winfree's time was 2:09.2. Jim Walker was third for the frosh.

Co-captain Ron Good won the 50 in 22.5 with freshman Wally Gage close behind. The varsity's Don Cave was third. The varsity took first and third in the 400 individual medley as co-captain Pete MacIntosh won in 5:32.5. Harrison was second ahead of Pete Heyne.

Divers Bob Stoker and Bob Willey swept the diving ahead of freshman Dick Westerman. MacIntosh came back to win the 200 butterfly in 2:48.9; the varsity's Rick Babcock was second ahead of frosh Steve Bogardes.

Gage's 55.0 won the 100 ahead of Cave and Walker. Frase made it two in a row for the freshmen, winning the 200 backstroke in 2:33.5. New was second ahead of freshman Carroll Howard.

Winfree won the 500 in 6:05.2 followed by freshman Bear and Harvey Ziegler. MacIntosh made it three first places by beating Wade Harrison and Bogardes with a time of 2:32.1 in the 200 individual medley.

In a race which saw the lead seesaw back and forth, the freshmen won the freestyle relay in 3:40.4. This was a race highlighted by fine performances from Good and Gage, the latter turning in a 51.4 100.

Today at 3 p. m. the varsity opens the regular season with a meet against a very much improved Roanoke College team.

Tomorrow at 3 p. m., the team faces a stiff challenge from a strong Catholic University squad and next Tuesday Baldwin comes to Adair Pool; Thursday the Wallace team faces U.Va.

Tuesday the frosh traveled to Fork Union for their opening meet. Despite fine performances by Gage and Mauer the final score was 61-34 in favor of Fork Union.

ELECTRONIC ENGINEERS MATHEMATICIANS

Let's discuss tomorrow

In science and technology, the accomplishments of today are but direction for tomorrow. Why? Simply because resting on the accomplishments of today is a luxury we cannot afford.

In Communications Engineering, where others are content to modify, our mandate is to CREATE.

In Electronic Data Processing Systems, where others are content to innovate, our mandate is to CREATE.

This, then, is the philosophy . . . the crux of intellectual thought . . . at the National Security Agency—where the concepts of tomorrow are the problems of today.

So let's discuss the future . . . yours and ours

If you are a gifted and interested Engineer or Mathematician, we have much in common—including A COMPULSION TO SUCCEED.

Our future is contingent upon a constant input of new . . . and creative . . . scientific talent . . . the lifeline of any institution. Our success is embodied in the technical capabilities of our professional staff. To assure this, scientific employees are encouraged to pursue graduate studies at local universities under Agency sponsorship. Your future with NSA will entail education . . . early responsibility . . . and unusually challenging assignments. Why? Because . . .

- We MUST create completely new kinds of communications equipments and systems embodying concepts and techniques THAT HAVE NO PRECEDENT . . . antennas, transmitters, receivers and terminal hardware of a most advanced design.

- We MUST assure the complete invulnerability of message content through the novel . . . but never static . . . science of cryptology.

- We MUST develop special refinements for computers and electronic data processing systems . . . experimenting with the latest semiconductors, magnetic film and superconductive devices, to provide new logic circuits and memory units for increased speed and capacity.

Interested? . . . If so, then LET'S DISCUSS TOMORROW. Representatives of the National Security Agency will be on campus in the near future. Check with your Placement Office for details and dates, or write to:

Only PiKA's, Vims Post No-Loss Slate

BY BILL BARNETT

The intramural volleyball league season is rapidly drawing to a close, with only two teams left unbeaten. PiKA in the fraternity division and the Vims of the independent division, currently holding 8-0 and 7-0 records respectively, boast the only perfect records.

Although returns have not been filed as yet on all games, the remainder of the fraternity standings show SAE in second place at 7-2, followed by KA (4-3), Sigma Pi (3-2), Lambda Chi (3-3), Phi Tau (2-2), Theta Delt (2-3), Kappa Sig (2-5), Sig Ep (2-6), Sigma Nu (1-4), and Pi Lamb (0-4).

PiKA's league-leading squad is paced by Bob Sizemore, Dick Weber and Butch Plageman. Runner-up SAE's most valuable men are Clyde Culp and Tucker Coleman.

If present trends continue, the school championship game, set for Thursday, December 17 at 5 p. m., will thus match PiKA and the Vims.

The free throw championship was determined this week, with junior independent Jim Smart dropping in 37 of 40 shots for first place. He was followed by Jim Johnson of KA, freshman John Johnson and PiKA's Gordon Kelley, who each sank 36 of 40.

PiKA continues to pick up points in the Greek overall race, forging close to winning in bowling with a 21-0 record with only one week left in the season. However, opponents left to meet are defending champ Theta Delt (22-2), and Sig Ep (17-4), each of whom could bring the PiKA streak to an end. The "Hot Dogs" also have yet to meet Kappa Sig (10-14), Lambda Chi (9-18), and Sigma Nu (8-16).

Leading alley talent thus far has included Theta Delt's Jeff Gaber, Dick Weber of PiKA, and Sigma Nu's Ray White-man.

Strong Navy Gymnasts Beat Tribe; Anthony Stars

A strong Naval Academy gymnastics team completely overwhelmed William and Mary's undermanned squad in their first outing last week 84-28.

Despite the loss, Tribe coach Chet Whitten praised several outstanding individual efforts for William and Mary, including a first-place winner on the trampoline, senior Jay Anthony.

Sophomore Nick Orrick also did an outstanding job, placing second on the trampoline event. The Naval Academy had six entries in the trampoline exercise. W&M had only two.

Other scorers for the Indians, who travel to Charlottesville this Saturday for a meet with Virginia, were Jay Bassage and Bob Rowland.

Events included in the meet were the parallel bars, the rings, the side horse, the long horse vault, the trampoline, the high bar and floor exercises.

'Spread of U. S. Communism Due to Indifference' - Adams

BY CLAIRE ANDERSON

"In 1903, there were 17 supporters of the Communist party. Today in 1964, 61 years later, there are over one billion," pointed out Rex Adams, graduate of the School of Investigative Agents of the U. S. Counter Intelligence Corps, at the Political Science Forum Wednesday night.

The Forum invited Adams, presently a Newport News businessman and noted speaker on Communist activities, to speak on the Communists' political and psychological war against America.

Every American can help combat this psychological spread of Communism by studying Communist tactics and keeping informed of current events, according to Adams. However, most Americans do not care about keeping informed. It is too hard a job.

Adams deplored the fact that the American way of life is concerned with money and social status. With such a situation, the Communists will not have to fight America — it will decay from within. Khrushchev said that the average American is so intellectual lazy and intoxicated with entertainment that he is powerless to stop the Communist movement.

2700 people in London and explained the method of the Communist movement. He said that the Communists would take Eastern Europe. Then they would overrun Asia and encircle the United States, the last stronghold of capitalism. Lenin stated, "We will not have to take America. It will fall like overripe fruit into our hands."

"Public indifference to this threat is tantamount to national suicide," explained Adams.

Adams cited Cuba as an example of Communism encircling the United States.

Adams is a graduate of the University of Richmond and attended the law college of Washington and Lee University.

Spirited Senior Shows Zeal For All Areas of Campus Life

Mary Erskine

Having a zeal for service and travel and an active interest in the people and functions of the College, Mary Erskine, a senior psychology major from Arlington, has participated in almost all the areas of William and Mary life.

Mary is one of the thirteen President's Aides. These aides assist President and Mrs. Davis Y. Paschall at official functions, such as Burgesses Day and class teas, as well as forming part of the official party at convocation.

"I really have enjoyed it because I have gotten to know President and Mrs. Paschall better in an informal way," she commented.

Student Offices

As secretary-treasurer of the senior class, Mary is also co-ordinator of the student publication committee. Her principal duty is acting as co-ordinator for the student publications, the William and Mary Review, the Flat Hat and the Colonial Echo.

Mary believes that the way to get the most out of life is to "give of yourself." She feels that sincere involvement in several different activities offers a full and rewarding life.

Summer in Sweden

Adhering to this belief, Mary became involved in the Experiment in International Living during the summer of her junior year. She lived in Mora, a town located in the Dalarna folk country of central Sweden.

"The Swedish are very Americanized. However, I had to get used to little things. My 'sister' was sixteen, loved popular music but didn't like school. The kids generally, though, have a more serious outlook on life. Their universities are difficult, and they even study in the summer in preparation for the next year," Mary explained.

"All the people speak English, Swedish, Danish, Norwegian and German. It gives an American a narrow feeling, since the majority of us know only English," she observed.

Freshman Counselor

Mary enjoyed a very interesting and exciting experience as freshman sponsor and house president at Ludwell. "Freshman counselors are extremely important. They can help freshmen realize that many students who seem so popular and do such good work had problems which every freshman sees as unique to himself," she explained.

One of the five finalists in the Miss William and Mary contest, Mary is also pledge trainer of Pi Beta Phi sorority.

Enrolling at William and Mary because she wanted a small, co-educational, liberal arts college, Mary feels that the College has fulfilled her expectations. "Both the professors and the students are very friendly — just like a family," she concluded.

Carol Festival at Bruton

Bruton Parish will present "Lessons and Carols of Prophecy Fulfilled," its annual Festival of Carols, Sunday at 8 p. m. in Bruton Parish Church.

Open to the public, the program will feature a series of readings from scripture and carols, based on the three themes: "Christ Is Born in Bethlehem," "All People Come to Christ" and "The Son of God is the Light of the World."

The festival was arranged by leaders of each campus religious group. Serving on the committee were Jeff Camp and Charles Joy, Canterbury Club; Ernest Johnson, Baptist Student Union; Alan Baxter, Westminster Fellowship; Larry Bolton, Lutheran Student Association; Leon Bly, Newman Club and Janet Beers, Wesley Foundation.

Washington Nightclub Pianist To Appear in Concert Jan. 10

BY DEE FORD

"If you knew Susie like I know Susie . . ." is just one of the familiar strains that jangles through the smoky "Escapade Room" of Basin's on 14th street in the nation's capital.

Candles glowing in wine bottles and red checked tablecloths bring to mind the days of the Stutz Bearcat, prohibition and Eliot Ness, when the speakeasy was "23 skidoo" and more. In this basement night spot, the source of the bawdy honky-tonk of the '20's is a lively animated pianist, Jerry White.

Honky-Tonk Music

"Few people in our age take honky-tonk music seriously enough to play it," said White, "but the interest is still great enough to create a demand for it." Evidenced by the crowds that frequent the D. C. hide-away, White caters well to this demand.

In his six years of entertaining at Basin's, he has played for foreign dignitaries and government officials as well as notables in his own profession.

White will appear in concert Jan. 10 in Blow Gym at 8 p. m., tickets costing only 50 cents. After playing at several colleges in Virginia and Maryland he commented, "I like playing for the college set; they listen and they don't have to have cocktails to appreciate the music."

Primary Interest

A '38 graduate of Mount Saint Mary's College in New York, White currently resides with his wife in Silver Spring, Md.

Having had no formal instruction in piano, White attributes his success to "long hours of practice in developing style, a genuine interest in music and a fear of sore wrists."

JERRY WHITE

Pianist Jerry White recreates the bawdy honky-tonk style of the 1920's, with tunes such as "If you knew Susie like I know Susie . . ." White will appear in concert on January 10 in Blow Gym. Admission is 50 cents. White has become popular performer on college campuses and is a familiar nightclub performer in the Washington area. The forthcoming January concert will be his second visit to the William and Mary campus.

Kitchen Cabinet Plans Christmas Production

The Kitchen Cabinet will present John Milton's masque, Comus, at 4 p. m., Sunday, Dec. 14, in the Wren Kitchen. This Christmas masque will be open to the public.

First produced in 1634 by the Earl of Bridgewater, Milton's play concerns virtue. Described by Dr. David Jenkins of the English department as "decorous amateur entertainment," the masque was designed to be performed by members of the household.

Comus, he says, "is more like a morality play than most."

Music for the masque will be provided by a group of musicians under the direction of Alan Stewart of the music department. The music, written by Henry and William Lawes in the seventeenth century, is contemporary to the play. Dr. Jenkins is in charge of Comus. Sets are being handled by Susan Ward.

The primary roles of the masque are "The Spirit," acted by Martin Burrows; "Comus," played by Bill Brooke; and "The Lady," played by Lynn Kingery. The actors are all in their first year at William and Mary. Production of the masque is expected to take forty minutes.

The presentation of a Christmas play by the Cabinet is an annual tradition at the College. Last year's production was The Vision of De- light by Ben Jonson.
