

Drastic Drive to Curb Freshman Violations As 100 Receive Punishment

College Authorities Agree With Upperclassmen to Expel Constant Offenders; Three Fold Motion Passed At Rousing Session of Men Here

TRIBUNAL SWINGS INTO ACTION METING OUT SENTENCES TO DUCS

With student and administration agencies cooperating to curb apparent open violations of freshman rules, the situation today stands:

1. Expulsion from college of constant violators and the adoption of other drastic measures at a special meeting last Friday of upperclassmen in Phi Beta Kappa hall.
2. Trial and conviction of approximately 100 freshman violators Monday and Tuesday to detention in Washington hall in silence from 7 o'clock until 11 o'clock, every night from three days to two weeks.

Cited as one of the most serious episodes in the history of freshman regulation at William and Mary, leaders of the upper classes have pointed out that the decision to enforce rules by stringent methods has been born of necessity. Since the opening of the second semester, violations of rules have been more open and obvious, although conditions during the last half of the first semester developed an unhealthy complexion, according to campus leaders.

The meeting last Friday night was largely attended and was featured by enthusiastic discussion and unanimous agreement with projects introduced to carry out traditional regulations.

A blanket motion for the punishment by three methods of freshman violators, was carried with little opposition. It provides for the detention, removal of social privileges and camping of offenders. James M. Robertson, president of the Men's Student Body, announced that he had received assurance from the college authorities that repeated violations of these rules will subject the offender to expulsion from college.

At sessions of the Senior-Sophomore Tribunal Monday and Tuesday evenings, about 100 "Ducs" were convicted and sentenced for misdemeanors. They were sentenced according to degree of violations. Their sentences called for detention in Washington hall in silence from 7 o'clock until 11 o'clock every night from three days to two weeks. During the detention periods it is mandatory that the freshmen study.

The complete Freshman rules which have been traditionally enforced at William and Mary follow:

1. Freshmen shall wear a regulation cap of green, gold and silver on all days except Sundays and holidays. This cap shall also be worn inside at all indoor sports, and all dances except private and formal.
2. Freshmen shall wear a standard green four-in-hand tie on every day except Sundays and holidays.
3. Freshmen shall stay on sidewalks at all times when they are on campus. Old men have no power or authority to take freshmen across campus with them.
4. Freshmen shall attend all meetings of their classes, all meetings of the student body, all rallies, all celebrations, and all bonfires.
5. Freshmen shall attend all home games and shall stay in the grandstand, bleachers, or other places designated for them, during the entire game unless called upon to participate in demonstrations.

6. Freshmen shall not converse with co-eds before 4 o'clock, except on Sundays and holidays. They shall not attend any athletic contests accompanied by co-eds.

7. Freshmen shall carry matches at all times, except holidays.

8. The foregoing rules are to be enforced until the first Friday in May when appropriate celebration shall mark the passing of the freshman class from its period of training.

9. Freshmen shall attend Supreme Court to be held at a time and place designated by the Senior Class.

10. Freshmen shall not wear belts or monograms of other schools; this rule also applies to upperclassmen transfers.

11. Freshmen entering college at the beginning of the second semester shall observe the foregoing rules until the end of the college year.

12. Freshmen shall show due respect to members of the administration and faculty, and upperclassmen.

Easter Dances March 15-16

No Orchestra Named Yet For Spring Hops Say's O'Ferrall

The Easter Dances, sponsored by the Cotillion club, will be held Friday and Saturday, March 15 and 16 in Blow Gymnasium, according to an announcement by McLain T. O'Ferrall, president of the club.

The officers are not undecided as to the orchestra, but it is understood that several good ones are under consideration, and it is felt the final choice will be pleasing to all students on the campus.

The Blow Gymnasium will be attractively decorated in a Red and White color scheme, and it is probable the windows will be covered using a checker board effect. This scheme of decorating has not been used before at William and Mary, and officers of the club, are looking forward for the most successful dance ever held at William and Mary.

Following the protests, of the scarcity of "stags" at the Christmas Dances, the president of the club has announced that the price of admission of "stags" for these dances will be cheaper than for those carrying dates.

In accordance with the college regulations there will absolutely be no drinking at these dances, and this will be rigidly upheld by the Cotillion club officers. The committee in charge of decorating is composed of the following: Ed Justis, chairman; Dave Straughn, William Fields, J. M. Hurt, Walter E. Coleman, Greyson Daughtery, Thomas Varney, Shelton Peters, and Frank Graven.

TEA FOR BRANCHI

Dr. E. C. Branchi was welcomed by the old members and introduced to the new ones of Los Quixtescos Friday afternoon at a tea given in his honor. DeEtte Jones, president of the club, poured and was assisted by Lucy Mae Boswell, Margaret Johnson and Carrie Sheren.

Interfraternity Dance In Blow Monday Night

The Interfraternity Council will sponsor the third formal affair of the year, when it presents its dance Monday night in Blow Gymnasium. This dance will be a student body affair, everyone being invited.

The Norfolk Collegians will furnish the music for the occasion. This orchestra has been on the campus before, and has broadcasted over several radio stations in this vicinity. It is understood that the Collegians will bring the latest hits of the year here on their visit.

Dancing will be from 9 o'clock until 2 o'clock. The price of admission will be $3.00.

SATURDAY NIGHT DANCE CANCELLED

The usual Saturday night dance will not be held tomorrow night, according to McLain T. O'Ferrall, in charge of the hops. Reason assigned for this was the Interfraternity Council Dance next Monday evening in Blow Gymnasium.

UNIVERSITY CLUB OFFERS MUSICAL

Williamsburg Chapter of A. A. U. W. Presents J. F. Barnes, Baritone in Phi Beta Kappa Hall Recital

Tonight, at 8 o'clock, the local chapter of the American Association of University Women will sponsor a musical concert in Phi Beta Kappa Hall, with J. Foster Barnes, prominent baritone, as chief attraction on the program.

Mr. Barnes is at present, director of Glee clubs at Duke University, and in December of last year won the Glee club elimination championship in North Carolina, and recently won the Southern Championship in Greenville, S. C., where William and Mary placed second.

Mr. Barnes attended William and Mary fifteen years ago, and while in attendance here, was a member of the quartette that won region-wide prominence for its excellence. His Glee club will compete for National honors in New York on March 9. Mr. Barnes has been in concert work for a considerable length of time, having sung in the majority of the southern states, such cities as Atlanta, Birmingham, Miami, Jacksonville, Tampa, Greensboro, Asheville, Charlotte, Durham, and Richmond.

He was baritone soloist in some of the larger churches in Atlanta and Greensboro. His wife is also interested in this work, being choir director of the choirs of several churches in Asheville for two years, having fifty in the choir, twenty of whom were soloist, this being one of the largest choirs in the south. Since Mr. Barnes has been at Duke, his wife has been assisting him with his duties at the University, where he is in charge of Student Activities—the Glee clubs, and all vocal music.

Tickets for the concert have been distributed among the fraternities, sororities, the Y. M. C. A. and other campus organizations, and may be purchased from any member of these groups.

NEW CHAPEL PLAN

Chapel services for this semester are in the hands of the administration with Dr. L. W. Irwin as chairman of the chapel committee. In an interview Dr. Irwin stated that for the remainder of the year the faculty and ministers of Williamsburg would conduct the services alternately.

Latin America looks at the United States with suspicion because of our policy in Nicaragua and other parts of South America. It seems to Latin America that the United States has an imperialistic policy," said Dr. E. Branchi, Associate Professor of Modern Languages at this college, when interviewed on conditions in South America this week.

Dr. Branchi makes this statement following a sojourn of several months at Valparaiso and Santiago, Chile, where he has been attending to family interests since his departure from this institution last June.

While in South America, Dr. Branchi has had an opportunity to study conditions there at first hand, and has some interesting revelations to make. "Chile together with Argentina and Uruguay are the most civilized republics of Latin America," he said. There are two universities in Chile, the professors in which are Italians, German, very rich in mineral, even though the mans and Chileans. The country is exchange is low. England gets the greater part of Chilean commerce, with America running her a close second, and gaining rapidly. About one-fourth of Chile's commerce is with America.

V. P. I. Man President; Convention Goes on Record as Favoring Activity Fees

The Virginia Tech, of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute was awarded first place in the standing of student newspaper members of the Virginia Intercollegiate Press Association last week end at the University of Richmond. The Flat Hat of the College of William and Mary was awarded second position. This marked a loss of the prestige of the William and Mary paper as it had won the loving cup offered for a similar position last year.

Other awards were to "Cargore" of Richmond, in the magazine class; the annual of Randolph Macon Woman's College in the class of the larger annuals, the "Bluestocking," of Mary Baldwin among the small annuals, and to "The Virginia Reel" as the best comic.

Either Blacksburg, with V. P. I. as hosts, and East Radford State Teachers' College assisting, or East Radford, with the group there as hosts, and V. P. I. assisting was selected as the next meeting place, the final meeting place to be definitely decided on later by the executive committee. J. T. L. Dickenson, Managing Editor of the Virginia Tech was named president of the association for the coming year.

The convention at Richmond was held Friday night and Saturday morning at the University of Richmond, and ended Saturday night at the University club downtown with a dinner and a dance. It was at the dinner that cups were presented.

Among principal matters taken up in the business meeting of the convention beside the naming of officers and meeting place for next year, were the question of incorporation for college publications, on which no definite action was taken, the question of students' activity fees in all the colleges, with the convention going on record as favoring, and recommending to the student bodies of the institutions represented, and the question of a cup being awarded to The Flat Hat for its showing at the first convention. A cup was awarded at this time but was lost enroute to Williamsburg. It was voted to present the Williamsburg publication with one to replace the lost one.

Thirty eight student publications were represented at the meeting, from practically all colleges in the state.

Piqued at his indifference, several citizens asked why, if Red Gulch wasn't tough enough to interest him, he didn't go back where he came from.

"I cain't," the stranger drawled. "That place is so all-fired hard, they kicked all us sissies out!" A clear case of relativity. If you've smoked

What Next in Censorship?

And now comes the information that the Ladies and Gentlemen of the bluenose, in other words, the self styled guardians of public morals known as censors, are claiming the privilege, under existing state laws covering review and revision of motion pictures, to delete from sound productions conversation and "immoral noises." Not only are they claiming the privilege, but in certain cities and states, notably in New York and Boston, the state and city boards as the case may be are actually ordering distributors and exhibitors of sound films and films synchronized with rubber disks on which speech and music is recorded to refrain from letting the voices behind the screen make certain statements.

As was to have been expected when the censors endeavored to put such a proposition into operation, protests were heard from all sides, and to the gradual rumble which is working up over the country, THE FLAT HAT adds its tiny cry.

Somewhere in the documents on which United States and individual commonwealth laws are presumed to be based there is a statement to the effect that freedom of speech shall not be abridged. With this being the case, how is it possible for a single statement made behind a screen, which in the presentation of motion pictures is analogous to the speaker's platform, be cut out.

Censorship in sound pictures is spoiling an art too. If the picture in question is being shown on a "sound film," the popular name for which is "movietone," it is a simple matter for the portion not appealing to the bluenose squadron to be cut out. But, when the picture is screened and the sound amplified, the audience is likely to be listening to a speech by an actor, and then without any apparent reason the sound shifts to a musical accompaniment which may have fitted perfectly into the story as originally made, but which merely sounds foolish under the circumstance. The proposition is worse still in the presentation of pictures, accompanied by sounds from rubber disks played on a double turn outfit, the mechanism commonly known as "vitaphone." It is impossible to cut the sound out of the record, so each projectionist who handles the film and records under the jurisdiction of a censor board objecting to a particular statement is instructed to watch for the offending place, and when it is reached to move the amplifier down to zero, an operation which keeps the words from being spoken, but which at the same time gives the audience a "sound" picture without sound. And it is this kind of stuff that is hampering the progress of a new art and industry.

But while this may be annoying, the greatest evil if the censorship idea on speech grows, will be the conflict with ideas of democracy. For when free speech goes, democracy goes also.

The question of censorship on sound productions is likely to reach the Supreme Court some day, and when the decision is handed down, the people of the world will know whether free speech exists in this country or whether it is merely a figment of imagination under which the Grea American Public is living.

Campus Visitors

Being the second oldest educational institution in America, and located in an historical town, William and Mary is visited by a large number of tourists all during the year. As spring draws on, and the wanderlust takes hold of America many will naturally include Williamsburg and this college in their tours.

There being no well organized tourist agency in this city, most tourists find it extremely difficult to hunt out the most important places of interest in Williamsburg. There is, to be sure, a tourist agency in Williamsburg, but it provides only for large groups. No provision whatever has been made for persons touring in small groups.

However difficult it may be for tourists to visit Williamsburg, when they come to the college grounds, every student should consider it his duty to show them through the college buildings, and over the campus, explaining William and Mary's traditions, and history. Regretfully, this is not always done. It is not an uncommon occurrence to see visitors wandering around over the campus, students passing on all sides, and yet not making the slightest effort to orientate them.

When visitors come to William and Mary, that in itself is an indication that they are interested in the college, and it is only courtesy on the part of the students to do all possible to make their visit a pleasure.

FRESHMAN CONFINEMENT

The freshman tribunal is to be congratulated on having worked out the plan of enforcing freshman rules which was accepted by the men of the three upper classes last week. Further condemnation, however, is due the men who saw to it that the new plan was put into immediate effect, for it is largely the immediate and impartial application of such enforcement measures that will determine their success. Upperclassmen who have deplored the laxity among men of the class of 1932 heard with gratification the results of the first tribunal under the new rules, at which violators of freshman regulations were sentenced to terms of punishment.

The advantages arising from the new plan of confining violators to an assigned hall from 7 to 11 P. M. every night may be considered two fold without much stretch of the imagination. For not only will the offenders gain new respect for the rules and regulations, but likewise they may profit by the enforced period of quiet and confinement, with only the companionship of study books for solace.

The vogue of the green tie and the green hat seems destined to remain awhile longer at William and Mary. Now that enforcement again has been undertaken, it is to be hoped the efforts will not be relaxed. The administration dealt freshmen regulation a severe blow in prohibiting the "power to paddle," but with continued vigilance adequate enforcement still is possible.

OPEN FORUM LETTERS

The Open Forum column is open to all readers of The Flat for the expression of their opinions on subjects of current interest. The editors urge that whenever possible criticism be constructive. Contributions must be signed, but initials or a nom de-plume will be published instead of signatures if the contributor so desires.

We Apologize, Cavalier, But Ask You To Remember That Signed Columns In a Paper Do Not Necessarily Reflect Editorial Opinion; Certainly Not in This Particular Case

Editor of The Flat Hat:
 Sir:

The cavalier transfers certainly do appreciate the warm welcome they received from the William and Mary students in last week's edition of the Flat Hat.

I think that this publication was absolutely unnecessary and very narrow-minded on the part of the William and Mary students. They seem to have judged the entire group of Virginia transfers in one or two weeks just because they don't seem to mix well with the students here. After all, no man can be judged fairly in so short a time. Anyone who transfers from one college to another is apt to feel out of place at his new abode, and I think that this welcome was a very poor reflection on the students of William and Mary. This is certainly the best way in the world to make enemies of the transfers and also to make them hang together in one little group instead of circulating around and mingling with the other students. Instead of trying to encourage friendship and make them feel at home, you have done just the opposite. No wonder they don't like William and Mary. Who would with such a cold reception? However, if the William and Mary students, of course there are exceptions, want to have nothing to do with the Virginia transfers, I am sure that the cavaliers will be perfectly willing to meet them half-way and be well satisfied with the bargain. But even if the William and Mary students, do not wish to accept the cavaliers as friends rather than enemies, let them do it in silence and not publish it, as nothing can be gained by this.

The University of Virginia has had for a long time the reputation of being snobbish and high hat, all over the south. But there is a great misunderstanding on the part of those who judge her although some criticize because of jealousy. The University is entirely different from most colleges and just because it is not a "Rah Rah!" college, and is more serious and conservative, all the other colleges think that she is high hat. But I advise, that before William and Mary criticises Virginia she should get some first hand information and not criticise in absolute ignorance.

I for one, and I think that I can speak for the rest of the cavaliers, appreciate very sincerely everything that William and Mary has done for us, especially Dr. Hodges, and I hate to think that there is a feeling of hatred among the students, under him, for transfers from a sister state college. I think that this is doing Dr. Hodges a great injustice as well as yourselves.

I am sure that no William and Mary student has ever received such a cold welcome at the University or ever will. And I see no reason why two sister state colleges should be such enemies, especially since one of them was founded by an alumnus of the other.

A Cavalier.

Responsibility Rests On Shoulders Of Cavaliers Themselves

A group of William and Mary men, very small, most fortunately, have taken it upon themselves to pose as censors of the conduct exhibited by our new transfer-friends from the University. It is with a feeling of embarrassment, but nevertheless of infinite pleasure, that the writers welcome these students whole-heartedly. It is their desire, through actions rather than words, to directly counteract the unwarranted, and unethical, verbal attack of some less enlightened fellow-workers.

Now, you Cavaliers, jump into the academic and extra-curricular life of the College and show these skeptics just how wrong they are. Your own future behaviour about the campus will either prove or disprove the truth of the derogatory statements made concerning you.

PHI KAPPA TAU PLEDGES

Alpha Theta chapter of Phi Kappa Tau announces the pledging of William Read Kyle of Galax, Va.

THIS DEPARTMENT

Speaking strictly for ourselves, of course. This Department is not a little disturbed about the rather childish attitude adopted by a very, very few students at William and Mary toward our Charlottesville transfers this semester. Certainly it is unkind, and on the surface it would seem to be very foolish to entertain any inimical feeling for those students who for one reason or another have chosen to leave the University and come to Williamsburg.

The matter, we understand, was brought up at a meeting of that exclusive society whose members call themselves (for no reason at all) the W. W.'s, and who make it their business to inquire on occasion into the whys and wherefores of various contemporary matters. The W. W.'s, we are informed, after a fairly thorough investigation arrived at the conclusion that the vast majority of William and Mary students hold no feeling of animosity for the Charlottesville Cavaliers, if, indeed, they have given the matter thought one way or another.

It was further agreed, so we have it, that the antagonism is not at all representative of the William and Mary attitude. Lastly, the members are said to have decided, the Virginia transfers with whom they have come in contact display none at all of the snobbery of which they are accused, but are on the contrary friendly fellows, likeable and not opposed to being liked.

Algernon said—yes, Algernon is our informant—that one of the members went so far as to attribute the present situation to somebody's inferiority complex, but the W. W.'s, voted as a whole not accept this explanation out of consideration for inferiority complexes in general, since the latter are being so heedlessly burdened in this fashionable psychological age with responsibility for most of the world's woes. We might say that Algernon, while not really a charter member, is a sort of charter mascot to the Williamsburg Wits—there! it's out. And Algernon specifically requested that the club be known only by its initials, due to its juntaic nature. (Sorry, Al. Spit milk, burned buildings, water flows under the Rhine bridge, etc., etc., you know.)

On the whole, then, This Department is of the opinion that the Charlottesville men will do well to overlook the little unpleasantness as simply One of Those Things. The sooner it blows over, the better.

And as to the Williamsburg Wits. Well, Algernon is rather vague about the society.

"It is so strictly juntaic," he said, and we are quoting word for word, "that its members maintain utmost secrecy, being sworn among themselves never to reveal their membership in public. Even should a man be suspected of membership, he will, if questioned, lie like a soldier and deny affiliation; for under the peculiar code of the fraternity, this is the pledge its members must take."

Algernon would not disclose the meeting place, but we suspect it is in a garret, or some similar musty place, for there were cobwebs on his back when he nosed in last night. Incidentally we are of the opinion that the W. W.'s, have been putting Algernon through some strange initiation, for he has been wandering about with a world-weary look of late, as though he had been attending an all-night session; and we understand that he nearly broke up the earnest lecture of an assistant professor in Citizenship yesterday, with unearthly mutterings and groanings. Perhaps, though, it is only spring fever.

And of course everybody has heard the latest Lent song: "I can't give up anything but love, baby!"

The Inquiring Reporter

He asks ten people every week some question on college life. If you have any problems you would like to see discussed in this column, send them to "The Inquiring Reporter," care of The Flat Hat.

THIS WEEK'S QUESTION
Do you think that college Greek letter social fraternities should dispense with Hell Week?

Mitt Stribling, senior: "I am a staunch supporter of 'horse play' for goats, not during the entire semester, but at least for one night. If a freshman goes through several hardships, he may look back upon that night in later years with a great deal of feeling for the fraternity, especially in the company of a fellow-pledge initiated at the same time. To do away with the informal initiation will also abolish some of the fraternity feeling."

J. E. Early, junior: "I most assuredly do not approve of 'Hell Week'. In a way it does more harm than it does good. In the first place it smacks of 'prep schoolishness' and secondly it causes the freshmen to forget the full meaning of the step he has taken."

R. D. Mallowney, sophomore: "Certain practices which are carried on during 'Hell Week' are fine for helping college and fraternal spirit and keeping it alive. This practice if abused may prove disadvantageous to the college, the fraternity, and of course, 'the goat'. I believe however, that in its present form 'Hell Week' should be continued on the campus of the College of William and Mary."

B. F. Gorsline, freshman: "I do not. 'Hell Week' is one of the few remaining bright spots in college life and I am sure that the 'Goats' get as much kick out of it as the older men."

J. S. Owen, senior: "Yes I believe that they should abolish it. It is a very foolish and useless idea. It isn't funny, it is pathetic for it represents a very coarse and uncouth form of humor and cannot increase the respect of the pledge for his fraternity. It gives him the wrong conception of just what a fraternity should represent."

William Savage, junior: "Absolutely not. Dispensing with what is known as 'Hell Week' would take from the prospective member an experience that is more or less looked forward to with pleasant expectation and certainly provides a treasured memory thereafter."

Joe Bennett, sophomore: "No, I don't think so. After going through with the forms of punishment administered during 'Hell Week' the fraternity goat is given a sense of accomplishment at having had to go through the ordeals to reach the ultimate goal. 'Hell Week,' I think, brings the goats closer together and gives them something to remember and talk about in later years."

Nelson Case, freshman: "'Hell Week', as informal initiation, is a practice which has few evils, but public exhibitions which tend to ridicule the pledge are unnecessary and rather juvenile."

J. W. Clemens, senior: "No, I don't think this should be abolished although disturbances in the classrooms and during class hours should be done away with. It gives the freshman something to remember and cherish as he grows older."

Frank Darden, junior: "I have yet to see the advantages of 'Hell Week' used by some of the Greek letter fraternities on the campus. I think that the fraternity could be impress-

Campus Co-Eds is "But Another Relic of Barbarism Dating Back to the Times When Women Were the Goods and Chattels of Men" Says The Critograph, Student Paper at Lynchburg College in an Editorial Suggesting Student Government Association Use Common Sense Instead of Codes

That Old Double Standard

While this is being written several girls are suffering the woes of being "campused." This means that they not only cannot leave the college grounds, but that while they are under this penalty they must forego the pleasure of conversing with the masculinity of the student body. Of course these fair offenders are suffering for a crime in which another was just as much or even more so to blame. Naturally they feel that it is unfair for them to receive punishment and the other guilty party to escape.

Perhaps this is but another relic of barbarism dating back to the times when woman was the goods and chattels of man. Why it should be any more of a crime for a girl to sign up to go one place and then go somewhere else than for a man we do not know; but such, it seems, convention has decreed at Lynchburg College anyway.

Sometimes one wonders if some of the Women's Student Government regulations were not drawn up for use in some medieval nunnery or Puritan colony. But then they are too iron-clad for that.

When compared to the rules that the girls live by, it seems that the liberty of the male students has become license. The only rule strictly enforced by the Men's Student Council is that which pertains to smoking. According to the by-laws of the Men's Student Council, "Smoking anywhere on the campus or in the buildings except in a room or rooms designated by the administration is prohibited." And Article VII of the by-laws says, "Visitors are expected to abide by these regulations while on the college campus."

We wonder what the Men's Student Council would look like enforcing By-Law VII. Suppose that at every basket-ball game the Council members were to tell every gentleman from town who comes out to see the "Hornets" play and who insists on enjoying a cigar during the process: "Sir, you are violating Article VII of the By-Laws of the Men's Student Government of Lynchburg College which says, 'Visitors are expected to abide by these regulations while on the college campus.' This of course refers to Article IV which says: 'The following are prohibited: Gambling, profanity, and vulgarity; smoking anywhere on the campus or in the buildings except in a room or rooms designated by the administration is prohibited.' If you desire to smoke, you must go over to the boys' dormitory where we have a room for people who cannot refrain from the evil habit of smoking."

"How silly!" you will say. Yet this is what would probably happen if it were a Woman's Student Government rule. Herein lies the double standard—the Men's Student Council uses common sense; the Woman's Student Government goes by the letter of a code drawn up we know not when. It is a difference between principles and "Shalts and shalt nots."

It would probably be more sensible for the boys to be under a few more regulations, freshmen anyway. It is doubtful if a freshman has brains enough to spend seven nights a week in town and pass all his courses. Reports show this to be true.

Be that as it may, the only solution we can see to the double standard proposition is to have one central student government board with power to try any and all offenders. But then we wonder how practical this would be. What do girls know about trying boys or boys about trying girls? Their viewpoints are different, their ideas are different, their natures are different. So it seems that there must remain a double standard until the women revise their own rules and give themselves more freedom.

Same Quartet Which Won in Philly Last Week Will Don Shoes Tomorrow Night

Coach "Scrap" Chandler's squad of runners will be in Charlottesville tomorrow night to participate in the annual invitation meet held by the University of Virginia. The Indian trackmen, fresh from their triumph in Philadelphia await the gun that will start them on their respective runs.

This meet is an annual affair at the University of Virginia and is held in Memorial gymnasium. Eight college and university teams, six freshmen teams, four private preparatory schools and seven high schools from Virginia, Maryland, North Carolina and the District of Columbia have been entered in the competition.

The Indians showed up well in this meet last year, and with the additional strength that they possess this year they should stand high in the scoring when the meet is over. Coach Chandler has not made any definite selections as yet. Full varsity and freshmen teams will be entered. The varsity relay team will be the same as the one that ran in the Quaker City last week, Davis, Zabel, Graham, and Baggett. Campbell will be entered in the two mile run, with Gresham, Trice, Mann, and others in the short distance runs. Scott, Davis, and Bennett will be entered in the dashes.

The freshmen present a far more serious problem, and their entries will not be made known until the evening of the meet.

William and Mary Tankmen traveled to Charlottesville Saturday to be defeated by the Cavaliers 39-21. The Indians took three first places while the Virginia boys swam away with four. GOOCH RECEIVES AWARD 14 YEARS AFTER WON

More than fourteen years elapsed from the time he won a certain gold football before he got it, but Manager William S. Gooch now has the charm. In the fall of 1915, Mr. Gooch was awarded the tiny ornament for service on the University of Virginia football team, and left the institution to play professional ball before the actual presentation was made.

For some reason, even though he lived in Charlottesville for a while between that date and this year, Mr. Gooch never received the football. Last week, however, the jeweler who handled the set came across the lone trophy in his shop and forwarded it to its owner fourteen years late.

Gridiron Again Takes Limelight as Spring Football Swings into Action Monday

The gridiron again takes the limelight next Monday when spring football practice will get under way. Spring football is an annual affair at the college and this year will be under the direction of the two football coaches and the graduate manager of athletics.

Practice will get under way Monday afternoon on Cary Field. This preliminary drill will consist chiefly of limbering up exercises and will be under the direction of Assistant Coach J. S. Kellison and Graduate Manager W. S. Gooch. This will be the first chance that Coach Kellison has had to show his wares on the gridiron and many eyes will be on his work.

This preliminary practice will run until March 4 when Head Coach Branch Boccock will take charge. He will run the teams through some primary plays and elementary signal drill until March 9 when the training period will come to an end. It is expected that about fifty men will answer the call for spring drill.

The William and Mary Coeds Trim the Briarites by 26-14

William and Mary handed Sweet Briar a set back to the tune of 26-14 Saturday. The game was interesting throughout with both teams playing speedy, scientific basketball.

Dignan was leading scorer for William and Mary with a total of 17 points and Olcott for the visitors with 8 points. Isabel Kemp played a beautiful game at guard and Charlotte King played her usual good game at sidecenter.

For Sweet Briar, Huldah Williams and Polly Swift were outstanding. They had a hard job in guarding the speedy William and Mary forwards, and they handled it ably.

At the half the count stood 11-8 in favor of the Redmen, but the Tigers put on a burst of speed, only to be defeated in the final minutes of play. Silverman, Light, and Mozeleski led the Indian attack, while Wooten and Sloan were the high scorers for the Death Valley boys.

William and Mary basketballers won their second victory of the season over the Medical College of Virginia Tuesday night in Richmond. When the final whistle sounded the Indians were leading 35-26.

MATCH SET FOR BLOW POOL AT 3:30 O'CLOCK

Meet Will Mark Fourth Collegiate Swim For Justis and His Men During Present Season

NO ENTRIES AT PRESS TIME

Things Point to Usual Line-up With Ducs Helping Out in the Rough Spots

William and Mary tankmen will meet the University of Delaware swimmers in Blow pool tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. This will make the fourth meet for the Indians this season and the third contest in the home pool.

Last week the Indian Natadors showed up well against the University of Virginia and this Saturday with the added strength of the freshmen they are hoping to take the Delaware boys into camp. Last year this same team from the University of Delaware was the only opponent to defeat Ed Justis's charges.

Nothing definite has been decided about the entries in the various events, but no doubt Phillips will be entered in the dashes, Wood and Fasto in the breast stroke and 220 yard swim, Justis and Gilley in the back stroke, and Justis, Kent and several freshmen in the diving event.

The University of Delaware has one of the best swimming teams in the country. Several members of their squad holding intercollegiate records in their events. Last year, however, they only defeated the Indians by a slight margin, and now the Redmen have added strength and experience.

INDIAN RUNNERS WIN AT PHILLY

Relay Team Wins Heat With Ease; Johnson Runs Wild in Handicap

Success marked efforts of the William and Mary relay team in the Meadowbrook games at Philadelphia last Tuesday night, when the Indian runners won the event, defeating Villa Nova, Temple University, and St. Joseph's in New York with comparative ease. The Indian team composed of Davis, Graham, Zabel, and Baggett romped around the track to win easily. The time for the event was three minutes and thirty-six seconds.

Johnson, freshman protege of "Scrap" Chandler's outfit, running in the 1000 yard handicap race, with a handicap of only five feet won his event over a field of over sixty runners. Many of these men were experienced college athletes and amateurs. Only one man started behind him, the captain of the University of Pennsylvania team, who ran from scratch. Johnson's time was two minutes, twenty-two and one tenth seconds.

Smith, another freshman who was entered in the high jump and low hurdles failed to place. The high jump was won by Osborn, of Illinois, with a jump of six feet, four inches. Other nationally known athletes in these games were Joey Ray, Percy Williams, and Pavvo Nurmi. At the conclusion of the games each member of the relay team and Johnson were awarded a gold medal with a diamond set in the center.

the mining industry, being sent there as representatives of large business concerns in America. The largest copper mines in the world, which are in the Andes Mountains of Chile, are owned by an American company."

When asked concerning Chile's attitude toward the recent Bolivia-Paraguay boundary dispute, Dr. Branchi declared that Chile, an enemy to Bolivia, disapproved of the war and was able to do much to bring the two nations to arbitration. "Chile has been called the Germany of South America never having lost a war, and in military strength is far superior to both Bolivia and Paraguay," he pointed out. "Moreover, two of the three railroads that connect Bolivia with the sea are under the control of the Chilean government, a fact which gave Chile much power in bringing the two disputants to a conference."

According to Dr. Branchi, the population of Chile is a hodge-podge of Germans, English, Frenchmen, Italians, and Americans. The Italians, which are more numerous than the other nationalities, control the manufacturing plants and local commerce. The dominant religion of the country is Catholic.

"Oh, I know very well this famous college of Virginia," said Herbert Hoover, President-elect, when Dr. Branchi talked to him of William and Mary during Mr. Hoover's trip to Chile. On accompanying the new President from the pier to the station, Dr. Branchi observed, that he did not have his traditional "smiling face as seen in Miami newspapers, but rather a stoic face."
